1800.

After the restoration of King CHARLES II. those who were at the helm, minding money more than merit, our author found that verse in JUVENAL to be exactly verified in himself:

*Haud facile emergunt, quorum virtutibus obstat
Res angusta domi :*

And being endued with that innate modesty, which rarely finds promotion in Princes' courts. He became Secretary to RICHARD Earl of Carbury, Lord President of the Principality of Wales, who made him Steward of Ludlow-castle, when the court there was revived. About this time he married one Mrs. HERBERT, a Gentlewoman of a very good family, but no widow, as the Oxford antiquary has reported: she had a competent fortune, but it was most of it unfortunately lost, by being put out on ill securities, so that it was of little advantage to him. He is reported by the antiquary to have been Secretary to his Grace GEORGE Duke of Buckingham, when he was Chancellor to the university of Cambridge; but whether that be true or no, it is certain, the Duke had a great kindness for him, and was often a benefactor to him. But no man was a more generous friend to him, than that MECÆNAS of all learned and witty men, CHARLES Lord Buckhurst, the late Earl of Dorset and Middlesex, who, being himself an excellent poet, knew how to set a just value upon the ingenious performances of others, and has often taken care privately to relieve and supply the necessities of those, whose modesty would endeavour to conceal them; of which our author was a signal instance, as several others have been, who are now living. In fine, the integrity of his life, the acuteness of his wit, and easiness of his conversation, had rendered him most acceptable to all men; yet he prudently avoided a multiplicity of acquaintance, and wisely chose such only whom his discerning judgment could distinguish (as Mr. COWLEY expresseth it)

From the great vulgar or the small.

And having thus lived to a good old age, admired by all, though personally known to few, he departed this life in the year 1680, and was buried at the charge of his good friend Mr. LONGUEVIL of the Temple, in the yard belonging to the church of St. Paul's Covent-garden, at the west end of the said yard, on the north side under the wall of the said church, and under that wall which parts the yard from the common highway. And since he has no monument yet set up for him, give me leave to borrow his epitaph from that of MICHAEL DRAYTON the poet, as the author of Mr. COWLEY'S has partly done before me:

And though no monument can claim
To be the treasurer of thy name;
This work, which ne'er will die, shall be
An everlasting monument to thee.

TO THE READER.

POETA nascitur non fit, is a sentence of as great truth as antiquity, it being most certain, that all the acquired learning imaginable is insufficient to compleat a poet, without a natural genius and propensity to so noble and sublime an art. And we may, without offence, observe, that many very learned men, who have been ambitious to be thought poets, have only rendered themselves obnoxious to that satyrical inspiration our author wittily invokes.

Which made them, tho' it were in spight
Of nature and their stars, to write

On the other side, some who have had very little human learning, but were endued with a large share of natural wit and parts, have become the most celebrated * poets of the age they lived in. But, as these last are, Rara avis in terris, so, when the muses have not disdained the assistance of other arts and sciences, we are then blessed with those lasting monuments of wit and learning, which may justly claim a kind of eternity upon earth. And our author, had his modesty permitted him, might, with HORACE, have said,

Ergo monumentum ære perennius:

Or, with OVID,

Jamque opus exegi, quod nec Jovis ira, nec ignis,
Nec poterit ferrum, nec edax abolere vetustas.

The author of this celebrated poem was of this last composition: for although he had not the happiness of an academical education, as some affirm, it may be perceived, throughout his whole poem, that he had read much, and was very well accomplished in the most useful parts of human learning.

RAPIN (in his reflections) speaking of the necessary qualities belonging to a poet, tells us, he must have a genius extraordinary; great natural gifts; a wit just, fruitful, piercing, solid and universal; an understanding clear and distinct; an imagination neat and pleasant; an elevation of soul, that depends not only on art or study, but is purely the gift of heaven, which must be sustained by a lively sense and vivacity; judgment to consider wisely of things, and vivacity for the beautiful expression of them, &c.

Now, how justly this character is due to our author, we leave to the impartial reader, and those of nicer judgment, who had the happiness to be more intimately acquainted with him.

The reputation of this incomparable poem is so thoroughly established in the world, that it would be superfluous, if not impertinent, to endeavour any panegyric upon it. King CHARLES II. whom the judicious part of mankind will readily acknowledge to be a sovereign judge of wit, was so great an admirer of it, that he would often pleasantly quote it in his conversation. However, since most men have a curiosity to have some account of such anonymous authors, whose compositions have been eminent for wit or learning, we have, for their information, subjoined a short Life of the Author.

THE AUTHOR'S LIFE.

SAMUEL BUTLER, the author of this excellent poem, was born in the parish of Strensham, in the county of Worcester, and baptized there the 13th of Feb. 1612. • His father, who was of the same name, was an honest country farmer, who had some small estate of his own, but rented a much greater of the Lord of the manor where he lived. However, perceiving in this son an early inclination to learning, he made a shift to have him educated in the free-school at Worcester, under Mr. HENRY BRIGHT; where having passed the usual time, and being become an excellent school-scholar, he went for some little time to Cambridge, but was never matriculated into that university, his father's abilities not being sufficient to be at the charge of an academical education; so that our author returned soon into his native county, and became clerk to one Mr. Jefferys of Earls-Croom, an eminent Justice of the Peace for that county, with whom he lived some years, in an easy and no contemptible service. Here, by the indulgence of a kind master, he had sufficient leisure to apply himself to whatever learning his inclinations led him, which were chiefly history and poetry; to which, for his diversion, he joined music and painting; and I have seen some pictures, said to be of his drawing, which remained in that family; which I mention not for the excellency of them, but to satisfy the reader of his early inclinations to that noble art; for which also he was afterwards entirely beloved by Mr. SAMUEL COOPER, one of the most eminent painters of his time.

He was after this recommended to that great encourager of learning, ELIZABETH Countess of Kent, where he had not only the opportunity to consult all manner of learned books, but to converse also with that living library of learning, the great Mr. SELDEN.

Our author lived some time also with Sir SAMUEL LUKE, who was of an ancient family in Bedfordshire; but, to his dishonour, an eminent Commander under the Usurper OLIVER CROMWELL: and then it was, as I am informed, he composed this loyal Poem. For, though fate, more than choice, seems to have placed him in the service of a Knight so notorious, both in his person and politics, yet, by the rule of contraries, one may observe throughout his whole Poem, that he was most orthodox, both in his religion and loyalty. And I am the more induced to believe he wrote it about that time, because he had then the opportunity to converse with those living characters of rebellion, nonsense, and hypocrisy, which he so lively and pathetically exposes throughout the whole work.

CANTO I.

THE ARGUMENT.

Sir Hudibras his passing worth ;
The manner how he sally'd forth.
His arms and equis age are shown,
His horse's virtues and his own.
Th' adventure of the ben and fiddle
Is sung, but breaks off in the middle.

WHEN civil a dudgeon first grew high,
And men fell out they knew not why ;
When hard words, jealousies and fears
Set folks together by the ears,
And made them fight, like mad or drunk, 5
For dame religion as for punk ;
Whose honesty they all durst swear for,
Tho' not a man of them knew wherefore ;
When gospel-trumpeter, surrounded
With long-ear'd rout, to battle sounded, 10
And pulpit, drum ecclesiastic,
Was beat with fist instead of a stick ; }

Then did Sir Knight abandon dwelling,
 And out he rode a colnelling.
 A wight he was whose very sight wou'd 15
 Intitle him, Mirrour of Knighthood ;
 That never bow'd his stubborn knee
 To any thing but chivalry ;
 Nor put up blow, but that which laid
 Right worshipful on shoulder-blade : 20
 Chief of domestic Knights and errant,
 Either for chartel, or for warrant :
 Great on the bench, great in the saddle,
 That could as well bind o'er as swaddle :
 Mighty he was at both of these, 25
 And styl'd of war, as well as peace
 (So some rats, of amphibious nature,
 Are either for the land or water.)
 But here our authors make a doubt,
 Whether he were more wise or stout. 30
 Some hold the one, and some the other ;
 But howsoe'er they make a pother.
 The difference was so small, his brain
 Outweigh'd his rage but half a grain ;
 Which made some take him for a tool, 35
 That knaves do work with, call'd a fool.
 For't has been held by many, that
 As MONTAIGNE^c, playing with his cat,
 Complains she thought him but an ass,
 Much more she wou'd Sir HUDIBRAS ; 40
 (For that's the name our valiant Knight
 To all his challenges did write)
 But they're mistaken very much,
 'Tis plain enough he was no such.
 We grant, altho' he had much wit, 45
~~But~~ very shy of using it ;

As being loth to wear it out, •
 And therefore bore it not about;
 Unless on holy-days, or so,
 As men their best apparel do. 50
 Beside, 'tis known he cou'd speak GREEK
 As naturally as pigs squeek:
 That LATIN was no more difficile,
 Than to a blackbird 'tis to whistle.
 Being rich in both, he never scanted 55
 His bounty unto such as wanted;
 But much of either wou'd afford
 To many that had not one word,
 For HEBREW roots, altho' they're found
 To flourish most in barren ground, 60
 He had such plenty, as suffic'd
 To make some d think him circumcis'd;
 And truly so he was, perhaps;
 Not as a proselyte, but for claps.
 He was in LOGICK a great critick, 65
 Profoundly skill'd in e analytick:
 He cou'd distinguish and divide
 A hair 'twixt south and south-west side;
 On either which he wou'd dispute,
 Confute, change hands, and still confute. 70
 He'd undertake to prove, by force
 Of argument, a man's no horse.
 He'd prove a buzzard is no fowl,
 And that a Lord may be an owl,
 A calf an Alderman, a goose a Justice, 75
 And rooks Committee-men and Trustees.
 He'd run in debt by disputation,
 And pay with ratiocination.
 All this by syllogism, true
 In mood and figure, he wou'd do. 80

For RHETORICK, he cou'd not ope
 His mouth, but out there flew a trope :
 And when he happen'd to break off
 I'th' middle of his speech, or cough,
 H' had hard words ready to shew why, 85
 And tell what rules he did it by :
 Else, when with greatest art he spoke,
 You'd think he talk'd like other folk.
 For all a rhetorician's rules
 Teach nothing but to name his tools. 90
 But, when he pleas'd to shew't, his speech,
 In loftiness of sound, was rich ;
 A Babylonish ' dialect,
 Which learned pedants much affect.
 It was a party-colour'd dress 95
 Of patch'd and py-ball'd languages :
 'Twas English cut on Greek and Latin,
 Like fustian heretofore on sattin.
 It had an odd promiscuous tone,
 As if h' had talk'd three parts in one ; 100
 Which made some think, when he did gabble,
 Th' had heard three labourers of Babel ;
 Or CERBERUS himself pronounce
 A leash of languages at once.
 This he as volubly would vent 105
 As if his stock would ne'er be spent ;
 And truly, to support that charge,
 He had supplies as vast and large :
 For he cou'd coin or counterfeit
 New words, with little or no wit ; 110
 Words, so debas'd and hard, no stone
 Was hard enough to touch them on :
 And, when with hasty noise he spoke 'em,
 The ignorant for current took 'em ;

That had the ^h orator, who once : 115
 Did fill his mouth with pebble-stones
 When he harangu'd, but known his phrase,
 He would have us'd no other ways,
 In MATHEMATICKS he was greater
 Than TYCHO BRAHE or ERRA PATER : 120
 For he, by geometrick scale,
 Could take the size of pots of ale ;
 Resolve, by sines and tangents, straight,
 If bread or butter wanted weight ;
 And wisely tell what hour o' th' day 125
 The clock does strike, by algebra.
 Beside, he was a shrewd PHILOSOPHER,
 And had read ev'ry text and gloss over :
 Whate'er the crabbed'st author hath,
 He understood b' implicit faith : 130
 Whatever ^k Sceptick cou'd enquire for,
 For ev'ry why, he had a wherefore :
 Knew more than forty of them do,
 As far as words and terms cou'd go :
 All which he understood by rote, 135
 And, as occasion serv'd, would quote :
 No matter whether right or wrong,
 They might be either said or sung.
 His notions fitted things so well,
 That which was which he cou'd not tell ; 140
 But oftentimes mistook the one
 For th' other, as great clerks have done.
 He cou'd ^l reduce all things to acts,
 And knew their natures by abstracts ;
 Where entity and quiddity, 145
 The ghosts of defunct bodies, fly ;
 Where ^m truth in person does appear,
 Like words ⁿ congeal'd in northern air :

He knew what's what, and that's as high
 As metaphysic wit can fly. 150
 In school-divinity as able
 As he that hight, Irrefragable;
 A second THOMAS, or, at once
 To name them all, another DUNCE:
 Profound in all the nominal 155
 And real ways beyond them all;
 For he a rope of sand cou'd twist
 As tough as learned SORBONIST;
 And weave fine cobwebs, fit for scull
 That's empty when the moon is full; 160
 Such as take lodgings in a head
 That's to be let unfurnished.
 He cou'd raise scruples dark and nice,
 And after solve 'em in a trice;
 As if divinity had catch'd 165
 The itch an purpose to be scratch'd;
 Or, like a mountebank, did wound
 And stab herself with doubts profound,
 Only to shew with how small pain
 The sores of faith are cur'd again; 170
 Altho' by woful proof we find
 They always leave a scar behind,
 He knew the seat of paradise,
 Cou'd tell in what degree it lies;
 And, as he was dispos'd, cou'd prove it 175
 Below the moon, or else above it.
 What ADAM dreamt of, when his bride
 Came from her closet in his side:
 Whether the devil tempted her
 By a High-dutch interpreter: 180
 If either of them had a navel:
 Who first made musick malleable:

Whether the serpent, at the fall,
 Had cloven feet, or none at all.
 All this, without a gloss or comment, 185
 He cou'd unriddle in a moment,
 In proper terms, such as men smatter,
 When they throw out, and miss the matter.

For his RELIGION, it was fit
 To match his learning and his wit : 190
 'Twas presbyterian true blue ;
 For he was of that stubborn crew
 Of errant saints whom all men grant
 To be the true church militant ;
 Such as do build their faith upon 195
 The holy text of pike and gun ;
 Decide all controversies by
 Infallible artillery ;
 And prove their doctrine orthodox
 By apostolic blows and knocks : 200
 Call fire, and sword, and desolation,
 A godly thorough reformation,
 Which always must be carry'd on,
 And still be doing, never done :
 As if religion were intended 205
 For nothing else but to be mended.
 A sect whose chief devotion lies
 In odd perverse antipathies ;
 In falling out with that or this,
 And finding somewhat still amiss : 210
 More peevish, cross, and splenetick,
 Than dog distract, or monkey sick ;
 That with more care keep holy-day
 The wrong, than others the right way :
 Compound for sins they are inclin'd to, 215
 By damning those they have no mind to.

HUDIBRAS.

All so perverse and opposite,
 As if they worship'd God for spite :
 The self-same thing they will abhor
 One way, and long another for. 220
 Free-will they one way disavow ;
 Another, nothing else allow.
 All piety consists therein
 In them, in other men all sin.
 Rather than fail, they will decry 225
 That which they love most tenderly ;
 Quarrel with minc'd-pies, and disparage
 Their best and dearest friend, plum-porridge :
 Fat pig and goose itself oppose,
 And blaspheme custard thro' the nose. 230
 Th' apostles of this fierce religion,
 Like MAHOMET's w, were ass and widgeon ;
 To whom our Knight, by fast instinct
 Of wit and temper, was so linkt,
 As if hypocrisy and nonsense 235
 Had got th' advowson of his conscience.
 Thus was he gifted and accouter'd ;
 We mean on th' inside, not the outward ;
 That next of all we shall discuss :
 Then listen, Sirs, it follows thus : 240
 His tawny beard was th' equal grace
 Both of his wisdom and his face ;
 In cut and dye so like a tile,
 A sudden view it wou'd beguile :
 The upper part thereof was whey ; 245
 The nether, orange mix'd with grey.
 This hairy meteor did denounce
 The fall of scepters and of crowns ;
 With grisly type did represent
 Declining age of government ; 250

And tell with hieroglyphick spade,
 Its own grave and the state's were made.
 Like SAMPSON'S heart-breakers, it grew
 In time to make a nation rue ;
 Tho' it contributed its own fall, 255
 To wait upon the publick downfal.
 It was a monastick, and did grow
 In holy orders by strict vow ;
 Of rule as fullen and severe,
 As that of rigid Cordeliere. 260
 'Twas bound to suffer persecution
 And martyrdom with resolution ;
 T' oppose itself against the hate
 And vengeance of th' incensed state ;
 In whose defiance it was worn, 265
 Still ready to be pull'd and torn ;
 With red-hot irons to be tortur'd ;
 Revil'd, and spit upon, and martyr'd.
 Maugre all which, 'twas to stand fast
 As long as monarchy shou'd last ; 270
 But when the state should hap to reel,
 'Twas to submit to fatal steel,
 And fall, as it was consecrate,
 A sacrifice to fall of state ;
 Whose thread of life the fatal sisters 275
 Did twist together with its whiskers,
 And twine so close, that time should never,
 In life or death, their fortunes sever ;
 But with rusty sickle mow
 Both down together at a blow. 280
 So learned TALIACOTIUS, from
 The brawny part of porter's bum,
 Cut supplemental noses, which
 Wou'd last as long as parent breech

But when the date of Nock was out, 285
 Off drop'd the sympathetic snout.
 His back, or rather burthen, show'd,
 As if 't stoop'd with its own load :
 For as ÆNEAS * bore his fire
 Upon his shoulders thro' the fire, 290
 Our Knight did bear no less a pack
 Of his own buttocks on his back ;
 Which now had almost got the upper-
 Hand of his head, for want of crupper.
 To poise this equally, he bore 295
 A paunch of the same bulk before ;
 Which still he had a special care
 To keep well-cramm'd with thrifty fare ;
 As white-pot, butter-milk, and curds,
 Such as a country-house affords ; 300
 With other victual, which anon
 We farther shall dilate upon,
 When of his hose we come to treat,
 The cup-board where he kept his meat.
 His doublet was of sturdy buff, 305
 And tho' not sword yet cudgel-proof ;
 Whereby 'was fitter for his use,
 Who fear'd no blows, but such as bruise.
 His breeches were of rugged woollen,
 And had been at the siege of Bullen ; 310
 To old King HARRY so well known,
 Some writers held they were his own.
 Thro' they were lin'd with many a piece
 Of ammunition bread and cheese,
 And fat black-puddings, proper food 315
 For warriors that delight in blood.
 For, as we said, he always chose
 To carry vittles in his hose ;

That often tempted rats and mice
 The ammunition to surprise : 320
 And when he put a hand but in
 The one or t' other magazine,
 They stoutly in defence on't stood,
 And from the wounded foe drew blood ;
 And 'till th' were storm'd and beaten out, 325
 Ne'er left the fortify'd redoubt.
 And tho' Knights Errant, as some think,
 Of old did neither eat nor drink,
 Because, when thro' rough desarts vast,
 And regions desolate, they past, 330
 Where belly-timber above ground,
 Or under, was not to be found,
 Unless they graz'd, there's not one word
 Of their provision on record ;
 Which made some confidently write, 335
 They had no stomachs, but to fight.
 'Tis false : for * ARTHUR wore in hall
 Round table like a farthingal,
 On which, with shirt pull'd out behind,
 And eke before, his good Knights din'd. 340
 Though 'twas no table, some suppose,
 But a huge pair of round trunk hose ;
 In which he carry'd as much meat
 As he and all the Knights cou'd eat, 344
 When, laying by their swords and truncheons,
 They took their breakfasts, or their luncheons.
 But let that pass at present, lest
 We shou'd forget where we digress,
 As learned authors use, to whom
 We leave it, and to th' purpose come. 350
 His puissant sword unto his side,
 Near his undaunted heart, was lay'd ;

With basket-hilt, that wou'd hold broth,
 And serve for fight and dinner both.
 In it he melted lead for bullets, 355
 To shoot at foes, and sometimes pullets,
 To whom he bore so fell a grutch,
 He ne'er gave quarter t' any such.
 The trenchant blade, ^b Toledo trusty,
 For want of fighting, was grown rusty, 360
 And ate into itself, for lack
 Of somebody to hew and hack.
 The peaceful scabbard where it dwelt,
 The rancour of its edge had felt;
 For of the lower end two handful 365
 It had devoured, 'twas so manful;
 And so much scorn'd to lurk in case,
 As if it durst not shew its face.
 In many desperate attempts,
 Of warrants, exigents, contempts, 370
 It had appear'd with courage bolder
 Than serjeant BUM invading shoulder.
 Oft had it ta'en possession,
 And pris'ners too, or made them run.
 This sword a dagger had t' his page, 375
 That was but little for his age;
 And therefore waited on him so,
 As dwarfs upon Knights Errant do.
 It was a serviceable dudgeon,
 Either for fighting or for drudging. 380
 When it had stabb'd, or broke a head,
 It would scrape trenchers, or chip bread;
 Toast cheese or bacon; tho' it were
 To bait a mouse-trap, 'twould not care.
 'Twould make clean shoes; and in the earth
 Set leeks and onions, and so forth. 386

It had been 'prentice to a brewer,
 Where this and more i^did endure ;
 But left the trade, ' as many more
 Have lately done on the same score. 390

In th' holsters, at his saddle-bow,
 Two aged pistols he did stow,
 Among the surplus of such meat
 As in his hose he cou'd not get.
 These wou'd inveigle rats with th' scent, 395
 To forage when the cocks were bent ;
 And sometimes catch 'em with a snap
 As cleverly as th' ablest trap.
 They were upon hard duty still,
 And ev'ry night stood centinel, 400
 To guard the magazine i'th' hose
 From two-legg'd and from four-legg'd foes.

Thus clad and fortify'd, Sir Knight
 From peaceful home set forth to fight.
 But first with nimble, active force 405
 He got on th' outside of his horse ;
 For having but one stirrup ty'd
 'T' his saddle, on the further side,
 It was so short, h' had much ado
 To reach it with his desp'rate toe. 410

But, after many strains and heaves,
 He got up to the saddle-eaves,
 From whence he vaulted into th' seat,
 With so much vigour, strength and heat,
 That he had almost tumbled over 415
 With his own weight, but did recover
 By laying hold on tail and main,
 Which oft he us'd instead of rein.

But now we talk of mounting steed,
 Before we further do proceed, 420

It doth behove us to say something
 Of that which bore our valiant bumkin.
 The beast was sturdy, large, and tall,
 With mouth of meal, and eyes of wall.
 I wou'd say eye; for h' had but one, 425
 As most agree; tho' some say none.
 He was well stay'd; and in his gait
 Preserv'd a grave, majestick state.
 At spur or switch no more he skipt,
 Or mended pace, than Spaniard whipt; 430
 And yet so fiery, he wou'd bound
 As if he griev'd to touch the ground:
 That CÆSAR'S horse'd, who, as fame goes,
 Had corns upon his feet and toes,
 Was not by half so tender hooft, 435
 Nor trod upon the ground so soft.
 And as that beast would kneel and stoop
 (Some write) to take his rider up;
 So HUDIBRAS his ('tis well known)
 Wou'd often do to set him down. 440
 We shall not need to say what lack
 Of leather was upon his back;
 For that was hidden under pad,
 And breech of Knight, gall'd full as bad.
 His strutting ribs on both sides show'd. 445
 Like furrows he himself had plow'd;
 For underneath the skirt of pannel,
 'Twixt ev'ry two there was a channel.
 His dragging tail hung in the dist,
 Which on his rider he wou'd flurt, 450
 Still as his tender side he prick'd
 With arm'd heel, or with unarm'd kick'd:
 For HUDIBRAS wore but one spur;
 As wisely knowing, cou'd he stir

To active trot one side of's horse,
The other wou'd not hang an arse.

A squire he had, whose name was RALPH;
That in th' adventure went his half :
Though writers, for more stately tone,
Do call him RALPHO ; 'tis all one ; 460
And when we can with metre safe,
We'll call him so ; if not, plain RALPH ;
(For rhyme the rudder is of verses,
With which like ships they steer their courses.
An equal stock of wit and valour 465
He had laid in ; by birth a taylor.
The mighty Tyrian Queen^e, that gain'd
With subtle shreds a tract of land,
Did leave it with a castle fair
To his great ancestor, her heir. 470
From him descended cross-legg'd Knights,
Fam'd for their faith, and warlike fights
Against the bloody canibal,
Whom they destroy'd both great and small.
This sturdy Squire, he had, as well 475
As the bold Trojan Knight, seen Hell ;
Not with a counterfeited pass
Of golden bough, but true gold-lace.
His knowledge was not far behind
The Knight's, but of another kind, 480
And he another way came by't :
Some call it GIFTS, and some NEW-LIGHT ;
A liberal art, that costs no pains
Of study, industry, or brains.
His wit was sent him for a token, 485
But in the carriage crack'd and broken.
Like commendation nine-pence croak'd
With—To and from my love it look'd.

He ne'er consider'd it, as loth
 To look a gift-horse in the mouth ; 490
 And very wisely wou'd lay forth
 No more upon it than 'twas worth.
 But as he got it freely, so
 He spent it frank and freely too.
 For saints themselves will sometimes be 495
 Of gifts, that cost them nothing, free.
 By means of this, with hem and cough,
 Prolongers to enlighten'd snuff,
 He cou'd deep mysteries unriddle
 As easily as thread a needle. 500
 For as of vagabonds we say,
 That they are ne'er beside their way ;
 Whate'er men speak by this new light,
 Still they are sure to be i' th' right.
 'Tis a dark-lanthorn of the Spirit, 505
 Which none see by but those that bear it :
 A light that falls down from on high,
 For spiritual trades to cozen by :
 An Ignis Fatuus, that bewitches
 And leads men into pools and ditches, 510
 To make them dip themselves, and sound
 For Christendom in dirty pond ;
 To dive like wild-fowl for salvation,
 And fish to catch regeneration.
 This light inspires and plays upon 515
 The nose of saint like bag-pipe drone,
 And speaks through hollow empty soul,
 As through a trunk, or whisp'ring hole,
 Such language as no mortal ear
 But spirit'al eaves-droppers can hear ; 520
 So PHOEBUS, or some friendly muse,
 Into small poets long infuse,

Which they at second hand rehearte,
Thro' reed or bag-pipe, verse for verse.

Thus RALPH became infallible ; 525
As a three or four-legg'd oracle,
The ancient cup, or modern chair ;
Spoke truth point-blank, tho' unaware.

For MYSTICK LEARNING, wond'rous able
In ^h magick Talisman and Cabal, 530

Whose primitive tradition reaches
As far ⁱ as ADAM's first green breeches :
Deep-sighted in intelligences,
Ideas, atoms, influences ;
And much of Terra Incognita, 535

'Th' intelligible world, cou'd say :
A deep OCCULT PHILOSOPHER,
As learn'd ^k as the wild Irish are,
Or Sir AGRIPPA^l ; for profound
And solid lying much renown'd. 540

He ^m ANTHROPOSOPHUS, and FLOUD,
And JACOB BEHMEN understood :
Knew many an amulet and charm,
That wou'd do neither good nor harm :
In ROSY-CRUCIAN ⁿ lore as learned, 545

As he that Vere adeptus earned.
He understood the speech of birds
As well as they themselves do words :
Cou'd tell what subtlest parrots mean,
That speak, and think contrary clean : 550
What Member 'tis of whom they talk,
When they cry, Rope, and walk, knave, walk,
He'd extract numbers out of matter,
And keep them in a glass, like water ;
Of sov'reign pow'r to make men wise ; 555
For drop'd in beaz thick-sighted eyes,

They'd make them see in darkest night,
 Like owls, tho' purblind in the light.
 By help of these (as he profess'd)
 He had First Matter teen undress'd : 560
 He took her naked all alone,
 Before one rag of form was on.
 The Chaos too he had descry'd,
 And teen quite thro', or else he ly'd :
 Not that of paste-board, which men shew 565
 For groats, at fair of Barthol'mew ;
 But its great grandfire, first o' th' name,
 Whence that and REFORMATION came ;
 Both cousin-germans, and right able
 'T' inveigle and draw in the rabble. 570
 But Reformation was, some say,
 O' th' younger house to puppet-play.
 He cou'd foretel whats'ever was
 By consequence to come to pass ;
 As death of great men, alterations, 575
 Diseases, battles, inundations.
 All this, without th' eclipse o' th' sun,
 Or dreadful comet, he hath done,
 By inward light ; a way as good
 And easy to be understood ; 580
 But with more lucky hit than those
 That use to make the stars depose,
 Like Knights o' th' post, and falsely charge
 Upon themselves what others forge :
 As if they were consenting to 585
 All mischiefs in the world men do :
 Or, like the devil, did tempt and sway 'em
 To rogueries, and then betray 'em.
 They'll search a planet's house to know
 Who broke and robb'd a house below : 590

Examine VENUS, and the MOON,
 Who stole a thimble or a spoon;
 And tho' they nothing will confess,
 Yet by their very looks can guess,
 And tell what guilty aspect bodes, 595
 Who stole, and who receiv'd the goods.
 They'll question MARS, and, by his look,
 Detect who 'twas that nam'd a cloke:
 Make MERCURY confess, and 'peach
 Those thieves which he himself did teach. 600
 They'll find, i' th' physiognomies
 O' th' planets, all men's destinies;
 Like him that took the doctor's bill,
 And swallow'd it instead o' th' pill:
 Cast the nativity o' th' question, 605
 And from positions to be guess'd on,
 As sure as if they knew the moment
 Of native's birth, tell what will come on't.
 They'll feel the pulses of the stars,
 To find out agues, coughs, catarrhs; 610
 And tell what crisis does divine
 The rot in sheep, or mange in swine:
 In men, what gives or cures the itch;
 What makes them cuckolds, poor or rich;
 What gains or loses, hangs or saves; 615
 What makes men great, what fools or knaves,
 But not what wise; for only of those
 The stars (they say) cannot dispose,
 No more than can the astrologians.
 There they say right, and like true Trojans. 620
 This RALPHO knew, and therefore took
 The other course, of which we spoke.
 Thus was th' accomplish'd Squire endu'd
 With gifts and knowledge, per'lous shrew'd.

Never did trusty Squire with Knight, 625
 Nor Knight with Squire, e'er jump more right.
 Their arms and equipage did fit,
 As well as virtues, parts, and wit.
 Their valours too were of a rate;
 And out they sallied at the gate. 630
 Few miles on horseback had they jogged,
 But Fortune unto them turn'd dogged;
 For they a sad adventure met,
 Of which anon we mean to treat;
 But 'ere we venture to unfold 635
 Achievements so resolv'd and bold,
 We shou'd, as learned poets use,
 Invoke th' assistance of some muse:
 However, criticks count it sillier
 Than jugglers talking to familiar. 640
 We think 'tis no great matter which;
 They're all alike; yet we shall pitch
 On one that fits our purpose most,
 Whom therefore thus do we accost:
 Thou that with ale, or viler liquors, 645
 Didst inspire WITHERS, PRYNE, and VICKARS,
 And force them, tho' it was in spite
 Of nature and their stars, to write;
 Who, as we find in sullen wits,
 And cross-grain'd works of modern wits, 650
 With vanity, opinion, want,
 The wonder of the ignorant,
 The praises of the author, penn'd
 By himself, or wit-insuring friend;
 The itch of picture in the front, 655
 With bays and wicked rhyme upon't;
 All that is left of th' forked hull,
 To make men scribble without skill;

Canst make a poet spite of fate,
 And teach all people to translate,
 Tho' out of languages in which
 They understand no part of speech ;
 Assist me but this once, I'mplore,
 And I shall trouble thee no more.

66

In western clime there is a town, 665
 To those that dwell therein well known.
 Therefore there needs no more be said here,
 We unto them refer our reader ;
 For brevity is very good,

When w'are, or are not, understood. 670

To this town people did repair
 On days of market, or of fair ;
 And to crack'd fiddle, and hoarse tabor,
 In merriment did drudge and labour.
 But now a sport more formidable 675
 Had rak'd together village rabble :

'Twas an old way of recreating,
 Which learned butchers call bear-baiting :

A bold advent'rous exercise,
 With ancient heros in high prize : 680

For authors do affirm it came
 From Isthmian or Nemean game :

Others derive it from the bear
 That's fix'd in northern hemisphere,
 And round about the pole does make 685

A circle like a bear at stake,
 That at the chain's end wheels about,
 And overturns the rabble-rout :

For after solemn proclamation,
 In the bear's name, (as is the fashion 690

According to the law of arms,
 To keep men from inglorious harms,)

That none presume to come so near
 As forty foot of stake of bear,
 If any yet be so fool-hardy, 695
 T' expose themselves to vain jeopardy,
 If they come wounded off, and lame,
 No honour's got by such a maim ;
 Altho' the bear gain much, b'ing bound
 In honour to make good his ground, 700
 When he's engag'd, and takes no notice,
 If any press upon him, who 'tis ;
 But let's them know, at their own cost,
 That he intends to keep his post.
 This to prevent, and other harms, 705
 Which always wait on seats of arms,
 (For in the hurry of a fray
 'Tis hard to keep out of harm's way,)
 Thither the Knight his course did steer,
 To keep the peace 'twixt dog and bear ; 710
 As he believ'd he was bound to do
 In conscience and commission too ;
 And therefore thus bespoke the Squire :
 We that are wisely mounted higher
 Than constables in curule wit, 715
 When on tribunal bench we sit,
 Like speculators shou'd foresee,
 From Pharos of authority,
 Portended mischiefs farther then
 Low Proletarian tything-men : 720
 And therefore being inform'd by bruit,
 That dog and bear are to dispute ;
 For so of late men fighting name,
 Because they often prove the same ;
 (For where the first does hap to be, 725
 The last does coincidere ;)

Quantum in nobis, have thought good,
 To save th' expence of Christian blood,
 And try if we, by mediation
 Of treaty and accommodation, 730
 Can end the quarrel, and compose
 The bloody duel without blows.
 Are not our liberties, our lives,
 The laws, religion, and our wives,
 Enough at once to lie at stake 735
 For Cov'nant and the Cause's sake ?
 But in that quarrel dogs and bears,
 As well as we, must venture their's ?
 This feud, by Jesuits invented,
 By evil counsel is fomented : 740
 There is a MACHIAVILIAN plot,
 (Tho' ev'ry Narc olfact is not,)
 A deep design in't to divide
 The well-affected that confide,
 By setting brother against brother, 745
 To claw and curry one another.
 Have we not enemies plus satis,
 That Cane & Angue pejus hate us ?
 And shall we turn our fangs and claws
 • Upon our own selves, without cause ? 750
 That some occult design doth lie
 In bloody & cynarctomachy,
 Is plain enough to him that knows
 How saints lead brothers by the nose.
 I wish myself a pseudo-prophet, 755
 But sure some mischief will come of it ;
 Unless by providential wit,
 Or force, we 'averruncate it.
 For what design, what interest,
 Can beast have to encounter beast ? 760

They fight for no espoused cause,
 And privilege, fundamental laws,
 Nor for a thorough reformation,
 Nor covenant, nor protestation,
 Nor liberty of consciences, 764
 Nor Lords and Commons ordinances;
 Nor for the church, nor for church-lands,
 To get them in their own no hands;
 Nor evil counsellors to bring
 To justice, that seduce the King; 770
 Nor for the worship of us men,
 Though we have done as much for them.
 Th' Egyptians worshipp'd dogs, and for
 Their faith made internecine war.
 Others ador'd a rat, and some 775
 For that church suffer'd martyrdom.
 The ' Indians fought for the truth
 Of th' elephant and monkey's tooth,
 And many, to defend that faith,
 Fought it out mordicus to death: 780
 But no beast ever was so slight,
 For man, as for his God, to fight.
 They have more wit, alas! and know
 Themselves and us better than so.
 But we, who only do infuse 785
 The rage in them like ' Boute-fus;
 'Tis our example that infills
 In them th' infection of our ills.
 For, as some late philosophers
 Have well observ'd, beasts, that converse 790
 With man, take after him, as hogs
 Get pigs all the year, and bitches dogs.
 Just so, by our example, cattle
 Learn to give one another battle.

We read in NERO's time, the heathen, 795
 When they destroy'd the Christian brethren,
 They sew'd them in the skins of bears,
 And then set dogs about their ears :
 From thence, no doubt, th' invention came
 Of this lewd antichristian game. 800

To this, quoth RALPHO, verily
 The point seems very plain to me.
 It is an antichristian game,
 Unlawful both in thing and name.
 First for the name ; the word, bear-baiting, 805
 Is carnal, and of man's creating :
 For certainly there's no such word
 In all the scripture on record :
 'Therefore unlawful, and a sin ;
 And so is (secondly) the thing. 810
 A vile assembly 'tis, that can
 No more be prov'd by scripture than Provincial, classic, national ;
 Mere human-creature cobwebs all.
 Thirdly, it is idolatrous ; 815
 For when men run a whoring thus.
 With their inventions, whatsoe'er
 The thing be, whether dog or bear,
 It is idolatrous and pagan,
 No less than worshipping of DAGON. 820

Quoth HUDIBRAS, I smell a rat :
 RALPHO, thou dost prevaricate :
 For though the thesis which thou say'st
 Be true ad amussim, as thou say'st ;
 (For that bear-baiting should appear 825
Jure divino lawfuller
 Than synods are, thou dost deny,
Totidem verbis ; so do I.)

Yet there's a fallacy in this;
 For it by fly HOMÆOSIS, 830
Nullis pro crepitu, an art
 Under a cough to flut a fact,
 'Thou woud'st sophistically imply,
 Both are unlawful, I deny.

And I (quoth RALPHO) do not doubt 835
 But bear-baiting may be made out,
 In gospel-times, as lawful as is
 Provincial or parochial classis;
 And that both are so near of kin,
 And like in all, as well as sin, 840
 That put them in a bag, and shake 'em,
 Yourself o'th' sudden wou'd mistake 'em,
 And not know which is which, unless
 You measure by their wickedness :
 For 'tis not hard t' imagine whether 845
 O'th' two is worst, tho' I name neither.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, Thou offer'st much,
 But art not able to keep touch.
Mira de lente, as 'tis i'th' adage,
Id est, to make a leek a cabbage ; 850
 'Thou'lt be at best but such a bull,
 Or shear-swine, all cry and no wool;
 For what can synods have at all
 With bear that's analogical ?
 Or, what relation has debating 855
 Of church-affairs with bear-baiting ?
 A just comparison still is
 Of things ejusdem generis.
 And then what genus rightly doth
 Include and comprehend them both ? 860
 If animal, both of us may
 As justly pass for bears as they ;

PART I. CANTO I.

For we are animals no less,
 Altho' of different species
 But, RAIPIO, this is not fit place 865
 Nor time to argue out the case
 For now the field is not far off,
 Where we must give the world a proof
 Of deeds, not words, and such as suit
 Another manner of dispute, 870
 A controversy that affords
 Actions for arguments, not words,
 Which we must manage at a rate
 Of prowess and conduct adequate
 To what our place and fame doth promise, 875
 And all the godly expect from us.
 Nor shall they be deceiv'd, unless
 We're flurr'd and outed by success.
 Success, the mark no mortal wit,
 Or surest hand, can always hit 880
 For whatsoever we perpetrate,
 We do but row, we're steer'd by Fate,
 Which in success oft disinherits,
 For spurious causes, noblest merits.
 Great actions are not always true sons 885
 Of great and mighty resolutions;
 Nor do the boldest attempts bring forth
 Events still equal to their worth,
 But sometimes fail, and in their stead
 Fortune and cowardice succeed. 890
 Yet we have no great cause to doubt;
 Our actions still have borne us out;
 Which, tho' they're known to be so ample,
 We need not copy from example.
 We're not the only persons quist 895
 Attempt this province, nor the first.

In northern clime a val'rous Knight
 Did whilom kill his bear in fight,
 And wound a fidler: we have both
 Of these the objects of our wroth, 900
 And equal fame and glory from
 Th' attempt of victory to come.
 'Tis sung, there is a valiant ^u Mamaluke
 In foreign land, yclep'd—
 To whom we have been oft compar'd 905
 For person, parts, address, and beard;
 Both equally reputed stout,
 And in the same cause both have fought:
 He oft in such attempts as these
 Came off with glory and success; 910
 Nor will we fail in th' execution,
 For want of equal resolution.
 Honour is like a ^w widow, won
 With brisk attempt and putting on;
 With ent'ring manfully, and urging; 915
 Not slow approaches, like a virgin.
 'Tis said, as yerst the Phrygian Knight,
 So ours with rusty steel did smite
 His Trojan horse, and just as much
 He mended pace upon the touch; 920
 But from his empty stomach groan'd
 Just as that hollow beast did sound,
 And angry answer'd from behind,
 With brandish'd tail and blast of wind.
 So have I seen, with armed heel, 925
 A wight bestride a Common-weal;
 While still the more he kick'd and spurr'd,
 The less the sullen jade has stirr'd.

PART I. CANTO II.

THE ARGUMENT.

The catalogue and character
Of th' enemy best men of war;
Whom, in bold far march, the Knight
Defies, and challenges to fight
H' encounter, Gaiol, routs the Bear,
And takes the Filler prisoner,
Conveys him to enchanted castle,
There shuts him fast in wooden castle

THERRF was a sage philosopher,
That had read ALEXANDER ROSS over,
And swore the world, as he cou'd prove,
was made of fighting and of love
Just so romances are; for what else 5
Is in them all, but love and battels,
O'th' first of these we have no great matter
To treat of, but a world o' th' latter;
In which to do the injur'd right
We mean, in what concerns just fight. 10
Certes our authors are to blame,
'I or to make some well-sounding name
A pattern fit for modern knights
To copy out in frays and fights;
(Like those that a whole street do raise 15
To build a palace in the place)
They never care how many others
They kill, without regard of mothers,
Or wives, or children, so they can
Make up some fierce, dead-doing man, 20
Compos'd of many ingredient valours,
Just like the manhood of nine taylors.

See a Wild Tartar, when he spies
 A man that's handsome, valiant, wise,
 If he can kill him, thinks t' inherit 25
 His wit, his beauty, and his spirit;
 As if just so much he enjoy'd
 As in another is destroy'd.
 For when a giant's slain in fight,
 And mow'd o'erthwart, or cleft downright, 30
 It is a heavy case, no doubt,
 A man should have his brains beat out
 Because he's tall, and has large bones;
 As men kill beavers for their stones.
 But as for our part, we shall tell 35
 The naked truth of what befel;
 And as an equal friend to both
 The Knight and Bear, but more to troth,
 With neither faction shall take part,
 But give to each his due desert; 40
 And never coin a formal lye on't,
 To make the Knight o'ercome the giant.
 This b'ing profest, we've hopes enough,
 And now go on where we left off.
 They rode; but authors having not 45
 Determin'd whether pace or trot,
 (That is to say, whether * Tollutation,
 As they do term't, or Succussion,)
 We leave it, and go on, as now
 Suppose they did, no matter how; 50
 Yet some from subtle hints have got
 Myſterious light, it was a trot:
 But let that paſs: they now begun
 To ſpur their living engines on.
 For as whipp'd tops, and bandy'd balls, 55
 Earned hold, are animals;

So horses they affirm to be
Mere engines made by geometry;
And were invented first from engines,
As y Indian Britons were from Penguins. 60
So let them be; and, as I was saying,
They their live engines ply'd, not staying
Until they reach'd the fatal champain,
Which th' enemy did then incamp on;
The 7 dire Pharsalian plain, where battle 65
Was to be wag'd 'twixt puissant cattle.
And fierce auxiliary men,
That came to aid their brethren,
Who now began to take the field,
As Knight from ridge of steed beheld. 70
For as our modern wits behold,
Mounted a pick-back on the old,
Much further off, much further he,
Rais'd on his aged beast, cou'd see;
Yet not sufficient to descry 75
All postures of the enemy;
Wherefore he bids the Squire ride further,
T' observe their numbers, and their order;
That when their motions he had known,
He might know how to fit his own. 80
Mean while he stopp'd his willing steed,
To fit himself for martial deed. *
Both kinds of metal he prepar'd,
Either to give blows, or to ward:
Courage and steel, both of great force, 85
Prepar'd for better, or for worse.
His death-charg'd pistols he did fit well,
Drawn out from life-preserving vittle.
These being prim'd, with force he labour'd
To free's sword from retentive scabbard; 90

And, after many a painful pluck,
 From rusty durance he bail'd tuck.
 Then shook himself, to see that prowess
 In scabbard of his arms sat loose ;
 And, rais'd upon his desp'rate foot, 95
 On stirrup-side he gaz'd about,
 Portending blood, like blazing star,
 The beacon of approaching war.
 RALPHO rode on with no less speed
 Than Hugo in the forest did ; 100
 But far more in returning made ;
 For now the foe he had survey'd,
 Rang'd, as to him they did appear,
 With van, main battle, wings, and rear.
 I' the head of all this warlike rabble, 105
 CROWDERO march'd, expert and able.
 Instead of trumpet and of drum,
 That makes the warrior's stomach come,
 Whose noise whet valour sharp, like beer
 By thunder turn'd to vinegar, 110
 (For if a trumpet sound, or drum beat,
 Who has not a month's mind to combat ?)
 A squeaking engine he apply'd
 Unto his neck, on north-east side,
 Just where the hangman does dispose, 115
 To special friends, the knot of noose :
 For 'tis great grace, when statesmen straight
 Dispatch a friend, let others wait,
 His warped ear hung o'er the strings,
 Which was but souse to chitterlings : 120
 For guts, some write, e're they are sodden,
 Are fit for music, or for pudden ;
 From whence men borrow ev'ry kind
 Of minstrelsy, by string or wind.

His grisly beard was long and thick, 125.
 With which he strung his fiddle-stick ;
 For he to horse-tail scorn'd to owe,
 For what on his own chin did grow.
 Chiron, ^a the four-legg'd bard, had both
 A beard and tail of his own growth ; 130
 And yet by authors 'tis averr'd,
 He made use only of his beard.
 In ^b Staffordshire, where virtuous worth
 Does raise the minstrelsy, not birth ;
 Where bulls do chuse the boldest king, 135
 And ruler, o'er the men of string ;
 As once in Persia, 'tis said,
 Kings were proclaim'd by a horse that neigh'd,)
 He bravely vent'ring at a crown,
 By chance of war, was beaten down, 140
 And wounded fore. His leg then broke,
 Had got a deputy of oak :
 For when a shin in fight is cropp'd,
 The knee with one of timber's propp'd,
 Esteem'd more honourable than the other, 145
 And takes place, though the younger brother.
 Next march'd brave O&SIN, famous for
 Wise conduct, and success in war :
 A skilful leader, stout, severe,
 Now marshal to the champion bear. 150
 With truncheon, tipp'd with iron head,
 The warrior to the lists he led ;
 With solemn march, and stately pace,
 But far more grave and solemn face :
 Grave ^c as Emperor of Pegu, 155
 Or Spanish potentate Don Diego.
 This leader was of knowledge great,
 Either for charge or for retreat,

He knew when to fall on pell-mell ;
 To fall back and retreat as well. 160
 So lawyers, lest the bear defendant,
 And plaintiff dog, shou'd make an end on't,
 Do stave and tail with writs of error,
 Reverse of judgment, and demurrer,
 To let them breathe a while, and then 165
 Cry whoop, and set them on again.
 As ROMULUS a wolf did rear,
 So he was dry-nurs'd by a bear,
 That fed him with the purchas'd prey
 Of many a fierce and bloody tray ; 170
 Bred up, where discipline most rare is,
 In military Garden Paris.
 For soldiers heretofore did grow
 In gardens, just as weeds do now,
 Until some splay-foot politicians 175
 'T' APOILLO offer'd up petitions,
 For licensing a new invention
 They'd found out of an antique engine,
 To root out all the weeds that grow
 In public gardens at a blow, 180
 And leave th' herbs standing. Quoth Sir Sun,
 My friends, that is not to be done.
 Not done ! quoth Statesmen ; yes, an't please ye,
 When it's once known, you'll say 'tis easy.
 Why then let's know it, quoth Apollo. 185
 We'll beat a drum, and they'll all follow.
 A drum ! (quoth PHOEBUS ;) troth, that's true ;
 A pretty invention, quaint and new.
 But though of voice and instrument
 We are th' undoubted president, 190
 We such loud music don't profess :
 The devil's master of that office,

Where it must pass, if't be a drum;
 He'll sign it with Cler. Parl. Dom. Com.
 To him apply yourselves, and he 195
 Will soon dispatch you for his fee.
 They did so; but it prov'd so ill,
 Th'ad better let 'em grow there still.
 But to resume what we discoursing
 Were on before, that is, stout ORSIN; 200
 That which so oft, by sundry writers,
 Has been apply'd t' almost all fighters,
 More justly may b'ascrib'd to this,
 Than any other warrior, (viz.)
 None ever acted both parts bolder, 205
 Both of a chieftain and a soldier.
 He was of great descent, and high
 For splendor and antiquity;
 And from celestial origine
 Deriv'd himself in a right line. 210
 Not as the ancient heroes did,
 Who, that their base-births might be hid,
 (Knowing they were of doubtful gender,
 And that they came in at a windore,)
 Made Jupiter himself, and others 215
 O' th' gods, gallants to their own mothers,
 To get on them a race of champions,
 (Of which old Homer first made Lamppoons.)
 ARCTOPHYLAX, in northern sphere,
 Was his undoubted ancestor; 220
 From him his great forefathers came,
 And in all ages bore his name.
 Learned he was in med'c'nal lore;
 For by his side a pouch he wore, 224
 Replete with strange Hermetic powder, [soldier;
 That wounds nine miles point-blank wou'd

By skilful chymist, with great cost,
 Extracted from a rotten post;
 But of a heav'nlier influence
 Than that which mountebanks dispense; 230
 Tho' by Promethean fire made,
 As they do quack that drive that trade.
 For as, when slovens do amiss
 At others' doors, by stool or piss,
 The learned write, a red-hot spit 235
 B'ng. prudently apply'd to it,
 Will convey mischief from the dung
 Unto the part that did the wrong,
 So this did healing; and as sure
 As that did mischief, this would cure. 240
 Thus virtuous ORSIN was endu'd
 With learning, conduct, fortitude,
 Incomparable: and as the prince
 Of poets, HOMER, sung long since,
 A skilful leech is better far 245
 Than half a hundred men of war,
 So he appear'd, and by his skill,
 No less than dint of sword, cou'd kill.
 The gallant BRVIN march'd next him,
 With visage formidably grim, 250
 And rugged as a Saracen,
 Or Turk of Mahomet's own kin;
 Clad in a mantle della guerrie
 Of rough impenetrable fur;
 And in his nose, like Indian King, 255
 He wore, for ornament, a ring;
 About his neck a threefold gorget,
 As rough as trebled leathern target;
 Armed, as heralds cant, and langued;
 Or, as the vulgar say, sharp-fanged. 260

For as the teeth in beasts of prey
 Are swords, with which they fight in fray;
 So swords, in men of war, are teeth,
 Which they do eat their vittle with.
 He was by birth, some authors write, 265
 A Russian, some a Muscovite;
 And 'mong the Cossacks had been bred;
 Of whom we in diurnals read,
 That serve to fill up pages here,
 As with their bodies ditches there. 270
 SCRIMANSKY was his cousin-german,
 With whom he serv'd, and fed on vermin;
 And when these fail'd, he'd suck his claws,
 And quarter himself upon his paws.
 And tho' his countrymen, the Huns, 275
 Did stew their meat between their bums
 And th' horses backs o'er which they straddle,
 And ev'ry man eat up his saddle;
 He was not half so nice as they,
 But eat it raw when 't came in's way. 280
 He had trac'd countries far and near,
 More than LE BLANC, the traveller;
 Who writes, he spous'd in India,
 Of noble house, a lady gay,
 And got on her a race of worthies, 285
 As stout as any upon earth is.
 Full many a fight for him between
 TALGOL and ORSIN oft had been;
 Each striving to deserve the crown
 Of a fav'd citizen; the one 290
 To guard his bear; the other fought
 To aid his dog; both made more stout
 By sev'ral spurs of neighbourhood,
 Church-fellow-membership, and blood;

But TALGOL, mortal foe to cows, 295
 Never got aught of him but blows ;
 Blows, hard and heavy, such as he
 Had lent, repaid with usury.

Yet TALGOL was of courage stout,
 And vanquish'd oft'ner than he fought : 300
 Inur'd to labour, sweat and toil,
 And like a champion shone with oil.
 Right many a widow his keen blade,
 And many fatherless, had made.
 He many a boar and huge dun-cow 305
 Did, like another GUY, o'erthrow :
 But GUY with him in fight compar'd,
 Had like the boar or dun-cow far'd.
 With greater troops of sheep h' had fought
 Than AJAX or bold DON QUIXOTE : 310
 And many a serpent of fell kind,
 With wings before, and stings behind,
 Subdu'd : as poets say, long ago
 Bold SH GEORGE, St. GEORGE did the dragon. -
 Nor engine, nor device polemic, 315
 Disease, nor doctor epidemic,
 Tho' stor'd with delectory med'cines,
 (Which whosoever took is dead since,)
 E'er sent so vast a colony
 To both the under worlds as he : 320
 For he was of that noble trade
 That demi-gods and heroes made,
 Slaughter and knocking on the head ;
 The trade to which they all were bred ;
 And is, like others, glorious when 325
 'Tis great and large, but base if mean.
 The former rides in triumph for it ;
 The latter in a two-wheel'd chariot,

For daring to profane a thing
So sacred with vile bungling. 330

Next these the brave MAGNANO came :

MAGNANO, great in martial fame.
Yet when with ORSIN he wag'd fight,
'Tis sung, he got but little by't.
Yet he was fierce as forest boar, 335

Whose spoils upon his back he wore,
As thick as AJAX' seven-fold shield,
Which o'er his brazen arms he held :
But brass was feeble to resist
The tury of his armed fist ; 340

Nor cou'd the hardest ir'n hold out
Against his blows, but they wou'd through't.

In MAGIC he was deeply read,
As he that made the brazen head ;
Profoundly skill'd in the black art ; 345

As ENGLISH MERLIN for his heart ;
But far more skilful in the spheres
Than he was at the sieve and shears.
He cou'd transform himself in colour
As like the devil as a collier ; 350
As like as hypocrites in show

Are to true saints, or crow to crow.
Of WARLIKE ENGINES he was author,
Devis'd for quick dispatch of slaughter :
The cannon, blunderbuss, and saker, 355

He was th' inventor of, and maker :
The trumpet, and the kettle-drum,
Did both from his invention come.
He was the first that e'er did teach
To make, and how to stop, a breach. 360

A lance he bore with iron pike ;
Th' one half wou'd thrust, the other strike ;

And when their ~~Yorres~~ he had join'd,
He scorn'd to turn his parts behind.

He TRULLA lov'd; TRULLA, more bright
Then burnish'd armour of her knight : 366
A bold virago, stout and tall,
As ^d JOAN of FRANCE, or English MALL.
Thro' perils both of wind and limb,
Thro' thick and thin, she follow'd him, 370
In ev'ry adventure h' undertook,
And never him or it forlook.
At breach of wall, or hedge surprize,
She shar'd i' th' hazard and the prize :
At beating quarters up, or forage, 375
Behav'd herself with matchless courage ;
And laid about in fight more busily
Than the ^c Amazonian dame Penthesile.

And though some criticks here cry shame,
And say our authors are to blame, 380
That (spite of all philosophers,
Who hold no females stout, but bears ;
And heretofore did so abhor
That women should pretend to war,
They would not suffer the stout'st dame 385
To swear ^f by HERCULES's name)
Make feeble ladies, in their works,
To fight like termagants and Turks ;
To lay their native arms aside,
Their modesty, and ride astride ; 390
To run a-tilt at men, and wield
Their naked tools in open field ; .
As stout ^s ARMIDA, bold THALESTRIS,
And she that wou'd have been the mistress
Of ^h GUNDIBERT ; but he had grace, 395
And rather took a country lass :

They say, 'tis false, without all sense,
 But of pernicious consequence
 'To government, which they suppose
 Can never be upheld in prose : 400
 Strip nature naked to the skin,
 You'll find about her no such thing.
 It may be so ; yet what we tell
 Of TRULLA, that's improbable,
 Shall be depos'd by those who've seen't, 405
 Or, what's as good, produc'd in print :
 And if they will not take our word,
 We'll prove it true upon record.

The upright CERDON next advanc't,
 Of all his race the valiant'st : 410
 CERDON the Great, renown'd in song,
 Like HERC'LES, for repair of wrong :
 He rais'd the low, and fortify'd
 The weak against the strongest side :
 Ill has he read, that never hit 415
 On him in muses deathless writ.
 He had a weapon keen and fierce,
 That through a bull-hide shield you'd pierce,
 And cut it in a thousand pieces, 420
 Tho' tougher than the Knight of Greece his,
 With whom his black-thumb'd ancestor
 Was comrade in the ten years war :
 For when the restless Greeks sat down
 So many years before Trøy town, 425
 And were renown'd, as HOMER writes,
 For well-soal'd boots no less than fights,
 They ow'd that glory only to
 His ancestor, that made them so.
 Fast friend he was to REFORMATION, 430
 Until 'twas worn quite out of fashion.

Next rectifier of wry LAW,
 And wou'd make three to cure one flaw.
 Learned he was, and could take note,
 Transcribe, collect, translate and quote. 435
 But PREACHING was his chiefest talent,
 Or argument, in which b'ing valiant,
 He us'd to lay about and stickle,
 Like ram or bull, at conventicle.
 For disputants, like rams and bulls, 440
 Do fight with arms that spring from sculls.
 Last COLON came, bold man of war,
 Destin'd to blows by fatal star;
 Right expert in command of horse;
 But cruel, and without remorse. 445
 That which of CENTAUR long ago
 Was said, and has been wrested to
 Some other knights, was true of this;
 He and his horse were of a piece.
 One spirit did inform them both; 450
 The self-same vigour, fury, wrath;
 Yet he was much the rougher part,
 And always had a harder heart;
 Although his horse had been of those
 That fed on man's flesh, as some goes. 455
 Strange food, for horse! and yet, alas!
 It may be true, for flesh is grass.
 Sturdy he was, and no less able
 Than HERCULES to clean a stable;
 As great a drover, and as great 460
 A critic too, in hog or neat.
 He ripp'd the womb up of his mother,
 Dame Tellus, 'cause she wanted tother
 And provender wherewith to feed
 Himself, and his less cruel steed. 465

It was a question, whether he
 Or's his horse were of a family
 More worshipful : 'till antiquaries
 (After th' had almost por'd out their eyes)
 Did very learnedly decide • 470

The business on the horse's side ;
 And prov'd not only horse, but cows,
 Nay, pigs, were of the elder house :
 For beasts, when man was but a piece
 Of earth himself, did th' earth possess. 475

These worthies were the chief that led
 The combatants, each in the head
 Of his command, with arms and rage,
 Ready and longing to engage.
 The numerous rabble was drawn out 480
 Of sev'ral counties round about,
 From villages remote, and shires,
 Of east and western hemispheres :
 From foreign parishes and regions,
 Of different manners, speech, religions, 485
 Came men and mastiffs ; some to fight
 For fame and honour, some for sight.
 And now the field of death, the lists,
 Were enter'd by antagonists,

And blood was ready to be broach'd, 490
 When HUDIBRAS in haste approach'd,
 With Squire and weapons, to attack 'em :
 But first thus from his horse bespake 'em :

What rage, O citizens ! what fury
 Doth to these dire actions hurry ? 495
 What i Oestrum, what phrenetic mood,
 Makes you thus lavish of your blood,
 While the proud Vics your trophies boast,
 And unreveng'd walks——ghost ?

What towns, what garrisons might you 500
 With hazard of this blood subdue,
 Which now y'are bent to throw away
 In vain, untriumphable fray?
 Shall SAINTS in civil bloodshed wallow
 Of Saints, and let the CAUSE lie fallow? 505
 The Cause, for which we fought and swore
 So boldly, shall we now give o'er?
 Then, because quarrels still are seen
 With oaths and swearings to begin,
 The SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVENANT 510
 Will seem a mere God-dam-me rant;
 And we, that took it, and have fought,
 As lewd as drunkards that fall out.
 For as we make war for the King
Against himself the self-same thing, 515
 Some will not stick to swear we do
 For God and for religion too:
 For if bear-baiting we allow,
 What good can Reformation do?
 The blood and treasure that's laid out, 520
 Is thrown away, and goes for nought:
 Are these the fruits o' th' PROTESTATION,
 The Prototype of Reformation,
 Which all the Saints, and some, since Martyrs,
 Wore ^k in their hats like wedding garters, 525
 When 'twas ^l resolv'd by either House
 Six Members quarrel to espouse?
 Did they for this draw down the rabble,
 With zeal and noises formidable,
 And make all cries about the town 530
 Join throats to cry the Bishops down?
 Who having round begirt the palace,
 (As once a month they do the gallows,)

As Members gave the sign about,
 Set up their throats with hideous shout. 535
 When tinkers bawl'd aloud to settle
 Church discipline, for patching kettle :
 No sow-gelder did blow his horn
 To geld a cat, but cry'd, Reform.
 The oyster-women lock'd their fish up, 540
 And trudg'd away, to cry, No Bishop.
 The mouse-trap men laid save-alls by,
 And 'gainst Ev'l Counsellors did cry.
 Butchers left old cloaths in the lurch,
 And sell to turn and patch the Church. 545
 Some cry'd the Covenant instead
 Of pudding-pies and ginger-bread ;
 And some for brooms, old boots and shoes,
 Baul'd out to Purge the Commons House.
 Instead of kitchen-stuff, some cry, 550
 A Gospel-preaching Ministry ;
 And some, for old suits, coats, or cloak,
 No Surplices nor Service-Book.
 A strange harmonious inclination
 Of all degrees to Reformation. 555
 And is this all ? Is this the end
 'To which these carr'ngs on did tend ?
 Hath public faith, like a young heir,
 For this ta'en up all sorts of ware,
 And run in't every tradesman's book, 560
 'Till both turn'd bankrupts, and are broke ?
 Did Saints for this bring in their plate,
 And crowd as if they came too late ?
 For when they thought the Cause had need on't,
 Happy was he that could be rid on't. 565
 Did they coin pifs-pots, bowls, and flaggons,
 Int' officers of horse and dragoons ;

And into pikes and musquetteers
 Stamp beakers, cups, and porringers ?
 A thimble, bodkin, and a spoon, 570
 Did start up living men as soon
 As in the furnace they were thrown,
 Just like the dragon's teeth b'ing sown.
 Then was the Cause of gold and plate,
 The Brethren's off'rings, consecrate, 575
 Like th' Hebrew calf, and down before it
 The Saints fell prostrate to adore it :
 So say the wicked——and will you
 Make that ^m sarcasms scandal true,
 By running after dogs and bears ? 580
 Beasts more unclean than calves or steers.
 Have pow'rsful Preachers ply'd their tongues,
 And laid themselves out and their lungs ;
 Us'd all means, both direct and sinister,
 I' th' pow'r of Gospel-preaching Minister ? 585
 Have they invented tones to win
 The women, and make them draw in
 The men, as Indians with a female
 Tame elephant inveigle the male ?
 Have they told Prov'dence what it must do, 590
 Whom to avoid, and whom to trust to ?
 Discover'd th' enemy's design,
 And which way best to countermine ?
 Prescrib'd what ways it hath to work,
 Or it will ne'er advance the Kirk ? 595
 Told it the news o' th' last express,
 And after good or bad success,
 Made prayers, not so like petitions,
 As overtures and propositions,
 (Such as the army did present 600
 To their creator, th' Parliament,)

In which they freely will confefs,
 They will not, cannot acquiesce,
 Unless the work be carry'd on
 In the same way they have begun, 605
 By setting Church and Common-weal
 All on a flame, bright as their zeal,
 On which the Saints were all a-gog,
 And all this for a bear and dog?
 The Parliament drew up petitions 610
 To' itself, and sent them, like commissions,
 To well-affected persons down,
 In ev'ry city and great town;
 With pow'r to levy horse and men,
 Only to bring them back agen : 615
 For this did many, many a mile,
 Ride manfully in rank and file,
 With papers in their hats, that show'd
 As if they to the pillory rode.
 Have all these courses, these efforts, 620
 Been try'd by people of all sorts,
Puls & remis, omnibus nervis,
 And all t'advance the Cause's service?
 And shall all now be thrown away
 In petulant intestine fray ? 625
 Shall we that in the Cov'nant swore,
 Each man of us to run before
 Another, still in Rêformation,
 Give dogs and bears a dispensation ?
 How will Dissenting Brethren relish it ? 630
 What will malignants say ? videlicet,
 That each man swore to do his best,
 To damn and perjure all the rest !
 And bid the devil take the hiremost ;
 Which at this race is like to win most. 635

They'll say our bus'ness, to reform
 The Church and State, is but a worm;
 For to subscribe, unsight, unseen,
 To an unknown Church-discipline,
 What is it else, but before-hand 64c
 T'engage, and after understand?
 For when we swore to carry on
 The present Reformation,
 According to the purest mode
 Of Churches best reform'd abroad, 64s
 What did we else, but make a vow
 To do we know not what, nor how?
 For no three of us will agree
 Where or what Churches these shou'd be;
 And is indeed ⁿ the self-same case 65c
 With theirs that swore et cetera's;
 Or the ^o French League, in which men vow'd
 To fight to the last drop of blood.
 These slanders will be thrown upon
 The Cause and Work we carry on, 65s
 If we permit men to run headlong
 T' exorbitances fit for Bedlam,
 Rather than Gospel-walking times,
 When slightest sins are greatest crimes.
 But we the matter so shall handle, 66c
 As to remove that odious scandal.
 In Name of King and Parliament,
 I charge ye all, no more foment
 This feud, but keep the peace between
 Your brethren and your countrymen; 66s
 And to those places straight repair
 Where your respective dwellings are.
 But to that purpose first surrender
 The IDLER, as the prime offender,

Th' incendiary vile, that is chief 670
 Author and engineer of mischief;
 That makes division between friends,
 For profane and malignant ends.
 He, and that engine of vile noise,
 On which illegally he plays, 675
 Shall (dictum factum) both be brought
 To condign punishment, as they ought.
 This must be done; and I would fain see
 Mortal so sturdy as to gam-lay:
 For then I'll take another course, 680
 And soon reduce you all by force.
 This said, he clapp'd his hand on sword,
 To shew he meant to keep his word.

But TALGOL, who had long suppress'd
 Inflamed wrath in glowing breast, 685
 Which now began to rage and burn as Implacably as flame in furnace,
 Thus answer'd him:—Thou vermin wretched
 As e'er in measled pork was hatched;
 Thou tail of worship, that dost grow 690
 On rump of justice as of cow;
 How dar'st thou, with that sullen luggage
 O' th' self, 'old ir'n, and other baggage,
 With which thy steed of bones and leather
 Has broke his wind in halting hither; 695
 How durst th', I say, adventure thus
 To oppose thy lumber against us?
 Could thine impertinence find out
 No work t'employ itself about,
 Where thou, secure from wooden blow, 700
 Thy busy vanity might'st show?
 Was no dispute a-foot between
 The caterwauling Brethren?

No subtle question rais'd among 704
 Those out-o'-their wits, and those i'th'wrong;
 No prize between those combatants
 O' th' times, the Land and Water-Saints;
 Where thou might'st stickle without hazard
 Of outrage to thy hide and mazzard;
 And not for want of bus'ness come 710
 To us to be so troublesome,
 To interrupt our better sort
 Of disputants, and spoil our sport?
 Was there no felony, no bawd,
 Cut-purse, no burglary abroad; 715
 No stolen pig, nor plunder'd goose,
 To tie thee up from breaking loose?
 No ale unlicens'd, broken hedge,
 For which thou statute might'st alledge,
 To keep thee busy from foul evil, 720
 And shame due to thee from the Devil?
 Did no committee sit, where he
 Might cut out journey-work for thee?
 And set th' a task, with subornation,
 To stitch up sale and sequestration; 725
 To cheat, with holiness and zeal,
 All parties and the common-weal?
 Much better had it been for thee,
 H' had kept thee where th' art us'd to be;
 Or sent th' on bus'ness any whither, 730
 So he had never brought thee hither.
 But if th' hast brain enough in skull
 To keep itself in lodging whole,
 And not provoke the rage of stones
 And cudgels to thy hide and bones; 735
 Tremble, and vanish, while thou may'st,
 Which I'll not promise, if thou stay'st.—

At this the Knight grew high in wroth,
 And lifting hands and eyes up both,
 'Three times he smote on stomach stout, 740
 From whence at length these words broke out:

Was I for this entitled SIR,
 And girt with trusty sword and spur,
 For fame and honour to wage battle,
 Thus to be brav'd by foe to cattle? 745
 Not all that pride that makes thee swell
 As big as thou dost blown-up veal;
 Nor all thy tricks and sleights to cheat,
 And sell thy carrion for good meat;
 Not all thy magic to repair 750
 Decay'd old age in tough lean ware;
 Make nat'ral appear thy work,
 And stop the gangrene in stale pork;
 Not all that force that makes thee proud,
 Because by bullock ne'er withstood; 755
 'Though arm'd with all thy cleavers, knives,
 And axes made to hew down lives,
 Shall save or help thee to evade
 The hand of justice, or this blade,
 Which I, her sword-bearer, do carry, 760
 For civil deed and military.
 Nor shall these words of venom base,
 Which thou hast from their native place,
 Thy stomach, pump'd to sting on me,
 Go unreveng'd, though I am free. 765
 'Thou down the same throat shalt devour 'em,
 Like tainted beef, and pay dear for 'em.
 Nor shall it e'er be said, that wight
 With gantlet blue, and bases white,
 And round blunt truncheon by his side, 770
 So great a man at arms defy'd

With words far bitterer than wormwood,
That would in Job or Grizel stir mood.
Dogs with their tongues their wounds do heal;
But men with hands, as thou shalt feel. 775

This said, with hasty rage he snatch'd
His gun-shot, that in holsters watch'd;
And bending cock, he levell'd full
Against th' outside of TALCOL's skull;
Vowing that he shou'd ne'er stir further, 780
Nor henceforth cow or bullock murder.

But PALLAS came in shape of rust,
And 'twixt the spring and hammer thrust
Her Gorgon shield, which made the cock
Stand stiff, as t'were transform'd to stock. 785
Mean while fierce TALCOL, gath'ring might,
With rugged truncheon, charg'd the Knight;
But he with petronel upheav'd,
Instead of shield, the blow receiv'd.

The gun recoil'd, as well it might, 790
Not us'd to such a kind of fight,
And shrunk from its great master's gripe,
Knock'd down and stunn'd by mortal stripe.

Then HUDIBRAS, with furious haste,
Drew out his sword; yet not so fast, 795
But TALCOL first, with hardy thwack,
Twice bruise'd his head, and twice his back.

But when his nut-brown sword was out,
With stomach huge he laid about,
Imprinting many a wound upon 800
His mortal foe, the truncheon..

The trusty cudgel did oppose
Itself against dead-doing blows,
To guard its leader from fell bane,
And then reveng'd itself again. 805

And tho' the sword (some understood)
 In force had much the odds of wood,
 'Twas nothing so; both sides were ballanc't
 So equal, none knew which was valiant'st:
 For wood, with Honour b'ing engag'd, 810
 Is so implacably enrag'd,
 Though iron hew and mangle fore,
 Wood wounds and bruises Honour more.
 And now both Knights were out of breath,
 Tir'd in the hot pursuit of death; 815
 Whilst all the rest amaz'd stood still,
 Expecting which should take or kill.
 This HUDIBRAS observ'd; and fretting,
 Conquest should be so long a getting,
 He drew up all his force into 820
 One body, and that into one blow.
 But TALGOL wisely avoided it
 By cunning sleight; for had it hit,
 The upper part of him the blow
 Had slit as sure as that below. 825
 Mean while th' incomparable COLON,
 To aid his friend, began to fall on.
 Him RALPH encounter'd, and straight grew
 A dismal combat 'twixt them two: 829
 Th'one arm'd with metal, th'other with wood;
 This fit for bruise, and that for blood.
 With many a stiff thwack, many a bang,
 Hard crab-tree and old iron rang;
 While none that saw them cou'd divine
 To which side conquest would incline, 835
 Until MAGNANO, who did envy
 That two should with so many men vie,
 By subtle stratagem of brain,
 Perform'd what force cou'd ne'er attain;

For he, by foul hap, having found 847
 Where thistles grey on barren ground,
 In haste he drew his weapon out,
 And having cropp'd them from the root,
 He clapp'd them underneath the tail
 Of steed, with pricks as sharp as nail. 845
 The angry beast did straight resent
 The wrong done to his fundament;
 Began to kick, and fling, and wince,
 As if h' had been beside his sense,
 Striving to disengage from thistle, 850
 That gall'd him sorely under his tail:
 Instead of which, he threw the pack
 Of Squire and baggage from his back;
 And blund'ring still with smarting rump,
 He gave the Knight's steed such a thump 855
 As made him reel. The Knight did sloop,
 And late on further side aslope.
 This TALBOT viewing, who had now
 By sleight escap'd the fatal blow,
 He rally'd, and again fell to't; 860
 For catching foe by nearer foot,
 He lifted with such might and strength,
 As would have hurl'd him thrice his length,
 And dash'd his brains (if any) out:
 But MARS, that still protects the stout, 865
 In pudding-time came to his aid,
 And under him the bear convey'd;
 The bear, upon whose soft fur-gown
 The Knight with all his weight fell down.
 The friendly rug preserv'd the ground, 870
 And headlong Knight, from bruise or wound;
 Like feather-bed betwixt a wall
 And heavy brunt of cannon-ball.

As Sancho on a blanket fell,
 And had no hurt, our's fair'd as well 875
 In body, though his mighty spirit,
 Being heavy, did not so well bear it.
 The bear was in a greater fight,
 Beat down and worsted by the Knight.
 He roar'd, and rag'd, and flung about, 880
 To shake off bondage from his snout.
 His wrath inflam'd, boil'd o'er, and from
 His jaws of death he threw the foam:
 In fury in stranger postures threw him,
 And more than herald ever drew him. 885
 He tore the oath which he had sav'd
 From squelch of Knight, and storm'd and rav'd,
 And vex'd the more, because the harms
 He felt were 'gainst the law of arms.
 For men he always took to be 890
 His friends, and dogs the enemy;
 Who never so much hurt had done him,
 As his own side did falling on him.
 It griev'd him to the guts, that they
 For whom he had fought so many a fray, 895
 And serv'd with loss of blood so long,
 Shou'd offer such inhuman wrong;
 Wrong of unsoldier-like condition;
 For which he flung down his commission;
 And laid about him, till his nose 900
 From thrall of ring and cord broke loose.
 Soon as he felt himself enlarg'd,
 Through thickest of his foes he charg'd,
 And made way through th' amazed crew;
 Some he o'ererran, and some o'erthrew, 905
 But took none; for by hasty flight,
 He strove t' escape pursuit of Knight,

From whom he fled with as much haste
 And dread as he the rabble chas'd.
 In haste he fled, and so did they ; 910
 Each and his tear a several way.

CROWDERO only kept the field ;
 Not stirring from the place he held ;
 Though beaten down, and wounded fore,
 I' th' fiddle, and a leg that bore 915
 One side of him ; not that or bone,
 But much it's better, th' wooden one.
 He spying HUDIBRAS lie strow'd
 Upon the ground, like log of wood,
 With fright of fall, supposed wound, 920
 And loss of urine, in a swoond,
 In haste, he snatch'd the wooden limb,
 That hurt in th' ankle lay by him,
 And sitting it for sudden fight,
 Straight drew it up t' attack the Knight ; 925
 For getting up on stump and huckle,
 He with the foe began to buckle ;
 Vowing to be reveng'd for breach
 Of crowd and skin upon the wretch,
 Sole author of all detriment 930
 He and his fiddle underwent.

But RALPHO (who had now begun
 T' adventure resurrection
 From heavy squeelch, and had got up
 Upon his legs, with sprained crup) 935
 Looking about, beheld pernicious
 Approaching Knight from fell musician.
 He snatch'd his whinyard up, that fled
 When he was falling off his steed,
 (As rats do from a falling house,) 940
 To hide itself from rage of blows ;

And, wing'd with speed and fury, flew
 To rescue Knight from black and blew;
 Which, ere he cou'd atchieve, his sconce
 'The leg encounter'd twice and once; 945
 And now 'twas rais'd to smite agen,
 When RALPHO thrust himself between.
 He took the blow upon his arm,
 To shield the Knight from further harm;
 And, joining wrath with force, bestow'd 950
 On th' wooden member such a load,
 That down it fell, and with it bore
 CROWDERO, whom it propp'd before.
 To him the Squire right nimbly run,
 And setting conqu'ring foot upon 955
 His trunk, thus spoke: What desp'rate frenzy
 Made thee (thou whelp of Sin!) to fancy
 Thyself, and all that coward rabble,
 T' encounter us in battle able?
 How durst th', I say, oppose thy curship 960
 'Gainst arms, authority, and worship?
 And HUDIBRAS or me provoke,
 Though all thy limbs were heart of oke,
 And th' other half of thee as good
 To bear out blows, as that of wood? 965
 Cou'd not the whipping-post prevail
 With all its rhet'ric, nor the jail,
 To keep from faying scourge thy skin,
 And ankle free from iron gin?
 Which now thou shalt—But first our care 970
 Must see how HUDIBRAS doth fare.
 This said, he gently rais'd the Knight,
 And set him on his bum upright.
 To rouse him from lethargic dump,
 He tweak'd his nose, & with gentle thump 975

Knock'd on his breast, as if't had been
 To raise the spirits lodg'd within.
 They, waken'd with the noise, did fly
 From inward room to window eve,
 And gently op'ning lid, the calcment, 980
 Look'd out, but yet with some amazement
 This gladd'd RAI PHO much to see,
 Who thus bespoke the Knight quoth he,
 Tweaking his nose, You are, great Sir,
 A self-denying conqueror; 985
 As high, victorious, and great,
 As e'er fought for the Churches yet,
 If you will give yourself but leave
 To make out what y' already have;
 That's victory. The foe, for dread 990
 Of your nine-worthiness, is fled;
 All, save CROWDERO, for whose sake
 You did th' espous'd Cause undertake;
 And he lies pris'ner at your feet,
 To be dispos'd as you think meet; 995
 Either for life, or death, or sale,
 The gallows, or perpetual jail.
 For one wink of your pow'rful eye
 Must sentence him to live or die.
 His fiddle is your proper purchase, 1000
 Won in the service of the Churches,
 And by your doom must be allow'd
 To be, or be no more, a crowd.
 For though success did not confer
 Just title on the conqueror; 1005
 Though dispensations were not strong
 Compulsions, whether right or wrong;
 Although out-goings did confirm,
 And owning were but a sheer term;

Yet as the wicked have no right 1010.
 To th' creature, though usurp'd by might,
 'The property is in the Saint,
 From whom th' injuriously detain 't;
 Of him they hold their luxuries, 1014
 Their dogs, their horses, whores and dice,
 Their riots, revels, masks, delights,
 Pimps, buffoons, fiddlers, parasites;
 All which the Saints have title to,
 And ought t' en'oy, if th' had their due.
 What we take from them is no more 1020
 Than what was our's by right before;
 For we are their true landlords still,
 And they our tenants but at will.
 At this the Knight began to rouse,
 And by degrees grow valorous. 1025
 He star'd about, and seeing none
 Of all his foes remain, but one,
 He snatch'd his weapon, that lay near him,
 And from the ground began to rear him;
 Vowing to make CROWDERO pay 1030
 For all the rest that ran away.
 But RALPHO now, in colder blood,
 His fury mildly thus withstood:
 Great Sir, quoth he, your mighty spirit
 Is rais'd too high: this slave does merit 1035
 'To be the hangman's business, sooner
 Than from your hand to have the honour
 Of his destruction. I, that am
 A nothingness in deed and name,
 Did scorn to hurt his forfeit carcase, 1040
 Or ill intreat his fiddle or case:
 Will you, great Sir, that glory blot
 In cold blood which you gain'd in hot?

Will you employ your conqu'ring sword
To break a fiddle and your word? 1045
For though I fought, and overcame,
And quarter gave, 'twas in your name.
For great commanders only own
What's prosperous by the soldier done.
To save, where you have pow'r to kill, 1050
Argues your pow'r above your will;
And that your will and pow'r have less
Than both might have of selfishness.
This pow'r which, now alive, with dread
He trembles at, if he were dead, 1055
Wou'd no more keep the slave in awe,
Than if you were a Knight of straw:
For death wou'd then be his conqueror,
Not you, and free him from that terror.
If danger from his life accrue, 1060
Or honour from his death, to you;
'Twere policy, and honour too,
To do as you resolv'd to do:
But, Sir, 'twou'd wrong your valour much,
To say it needs or fears a crutch. 1065
Great conquerors greater glory gain
By foes in triumph led, than slain:
The laurels that adorn their brows
Are pull'd from living, not dead boughs,
And living foes: the greatest fame 1070
Of cripple slain can be but lame.
One half of him's already slain,
The other is not worth your pain;
Th' honour can but on one side light, 1074
As worship did, when y'were dubb'd Knight.
Wherefore I think it better far
To keep him prisoner of war;

And let him fast in bonds abide,
 At court of Justice to be try'd;
 Where, if he appear so bold or crafty, 1080
 There may be danger in his safety.
 If any member there dislike
 His face, or to his beard have pique;
 Or if his death will save or yield,
 Revenge or fright, it is reveal'd. 1085
 Though he has quarter, ne'ertheless
 Y'have pow'r to hang him when you please.
 This has been often done by some
 Of our great conqu'rors, you know whom;
 And has by most of us been held 1090
 Wise Justice, and to some reveal'd.
 For words and promises, that yoke
 The conqueror, are quickly broke;
 Like SAMPSON'S cuffs, though by his own
 Direction and advice put on. 1095
 For if we should fight for the CAUSE
 By rules of military laws,
 And only do what they call just,
 The Cause would quickly fall to dust.
 This we among ourselves may speak; 1100
 But to the wicked, or the weak,
 We must be cautious to declare
 Perfection-truths, such as these are.
 This said, the high outrageous mettle
 Of Knight began to cool and settle. 1105
 He lik'd the Squire's advice, and soon
 Resolv'd to see the business done;
 And therefore charg'd him first to bind
 CROWDERO'S hands on rump behind,
 And to its former place and use, 1110
 The wooden member to reduce;

But force it take an oath before,
Ne'er to bear arms against him more.

RALPHO dispatch'd with speedy haste,
And having ty'd CROWDERO fast, 1115
He gave Sir Knight the end of cord,
To lead the captive of his sword.

In triumph, whilst the steeds he caught,
And then to further service brought.
The Squire in state rode on before, 1120

And on his nut-brown whinyard bore
The trophée-fiddle and the case,
Leaning on shoulder like a mace.

The Knight himself did after ride,
Leading CROWDERO by his side; 1125
And tow'd him, if he lagg'd behind,
Like boat against the tide and wind.

Thus grave and solemn they march on,
Until quite thro' the town th' had gone;
At further end of which there stands 1130

An ancient castle, that commands
Th' adjacent parts: in all the fabrick
You shall not see one stone, nor a brick;
But all of wood; by pow'rful spell
Of magic made impregnable. 1135

There's neither iron-bar nor gate,
Portcullis, chain, nor bolt, nor grate;
And yet men durance there abide,
In dungeon scarce three inches wide;

With roof so low, that under it 1140
They never stand, but lie or sit;
And yet so foul, that who so is in,
Is to the middle-leg in prison;

In circle magical confin'd,
With walls of subtle air and wind, 1145

Which none are able to break thorough,
Until they're freed by head of borough.
Thither arriv'd, th' advent'rous Knight
And bold Squire from their steeds alight
At th' outward wall, near which there stands
A bastile, built to imprison hands; 1151
By strange enchantment made to fetter
The lesser parts, and free the greater:
For though the body may creep through,
The hands in grate are fast enough: 1155
And when a circle 'bout the wrist
Is made by bridle exorcist,
The body feels the spur and switch,
As if 'twere ridden post by witch,
At twenty miles an hour pace, 1160
And yet ne'er stirs out of the place.
On top of this there is a spire,
On which Sir Knight first bids the Squire,
The fiddle and its spoils, the case,
In manner of a trophée place. 1165
'That done, they ope the trap-door-gate,
And let CROWDERO down thereat;
CROWDERO making doleful face,
Like hermit poor in pensive place.
To dungeon they the wretch commit, 1170
And the survivor of his feet:
But th' other, that had broke the peace
And head of Knighthood, they release;
Though a delinquent false and forged,
Yet b'ing a stranger, he's enlarged; 1175
While his comrade, that did no hurt,
Is clapp'd up fast in prison for't.
So Justice, while she winks at crimes,
Stumbles on innocence sometimes.

PART I. CANTO III.

THE ARGUMENT.

T'is scatter'd, but return and rally,
 Surround the place; the Knight does fall;
 And is made prisoner: Then they seize
 Th' enchanted fort by storm; release
Crowders, and put the Squire in's place;
 I should have first said Hudibras.

AY me! what perils do environ
 The man that meddles with cold iron!
 What plagny mischiefs and mishaps
 To dog him still with after-claps!
 For though dame Fortune seem to smile, 5
 And leer upon him for a while,
 She'll after shew him, in the nick
 Of all his glories, a dog-trick.
 This any man may sing or say,
 I th' ditty call'd, What if a Day? 10
 For HUDIBRAS, who thought h' had won
 The field as certain as a gun;
 And having routed the whole troop,
 With victory was cock-a-hoop;
 Thinking h' had done enough to purchase 15
 Thanksgiving-day among the Churches,
 Wherein his mettle, and brave worth,
 Might be explain'd by Holder-forth,
 And register'd by fame eternal,
 In deathless pages of diurnal; 20
 Found in few minutes, to his cost,
 He did but count without his host;

And that a turn-stile is more certain
Than, in events of war, dame Fortune.

For now the late faint-hearted rout, 25
O'erthrown and scatter'd round about,
Chac'd by the horror of their fear
From bloody fray of Knight and Bear,
(All but the dogs, who, in pursuit
Of the Knight's victory, stood to't, 30
And most ignobly fought to get
The honour of his blood and sweat,)
Seeing the coast was free and clear
O' th' conquer'd and the conqueror,
Took heart again, and fac'd about, 35
As if they meant to stand it out:
For by this time the routed Bear,
Attack'd by th' enemy i' th' rear,
Finding their number grew too great
For him to make a safe retreat, 40
Like a bold chieftain, fac'd about;
But wisely doubting to hold out,
Gave way to Fortune, and with haste
Fac'd the proud foe, and fled, and fac'd;
Retiring still, until he found 45
H' had got the advantage of the ground;
And then as valiantly made head
To check the foe, and forthwith fled;
Leaving no art untry'd, nor trick
Of warrior stout and politick, 50
Until, in spite of hot pursuit,
He gain'd a pass, to hold dispute
On better terms, and stop the course
Of the proud foe. With all his force
He bravely charg'd, and for a while 55
Forc'd their whole body to recoil;

But still their numbers so increas'd,
 He found himself at length oppress'd,
 And all evasions so uncertain,
 To save himself for better fortune, 60
 That he resolv'd, rather than yield,
 To die with honour in the field,
 And sell his hide and carcase at
 A price as high and desperate
 As e'er he could. This resolution 65
 He forthwith put in execution,
 And bravely threw himself among
 The enemy i' th' greatest throng,
 But what cou'd single valour do
 Against so numerous a foe? 70
 Yet much he did indeed, too much
 To be believ'd, where th' odds were such.
 But one against a multitude
 Is more than mortal can make good.
 For while one party he oppos'd, 75
 His rear was suddenly inclos'd;
 And no room left him for retreat,
 Or fight against a foe so great.
 For now the mastives, charging home,
 To blows and handy-gripes were come: 80
 While manfully himself he bore,
 And setting his right-foot before,
 He rais'd himself to shew how tall
 His person was above them all.
 This equal shame and envy stirr'd 85
 In th' enemy, that one should beard
 So many warriors, and so stout,
 As he had done, and stav'd it out,
 Disdaining to lay down his arms,
 And yield on honourable terms. 90

Furaged thus, some in the rear
 Attack'd him, and some ev'ry where,
 Till down he fell; yet falling fought,
 And, being down, still laid about;
 As WARRINGTON, in doleful dumps, 95
 Is said to fight upon his stumps.

But all, alas! had been in vain,
 And he inevitably slain,
 If TRULLA and CERDON, in the nick,
 To rescue him had not been quick: 100
 For TRULLA, who was light of foot
 As shafts which long-field Parthians shoot,
 (But not so light as to be born
 Upon the ears of standing corn,
 Or trip it o'er the water quicker 105
 Than witches, when their staves they liquor,
 As some report) was got among
 The foremost of the martial throng:
 There pitying the vanquish'd Bear,
 She call'd to CERDON, who stood near, 110
 Viewing the bloody fight; to whom,
 Shall we (quoeth she) stand still hum drum,
 And see stout Bruin all alone,
 By numbers basely overthrown?
 Such feats already h' has atchiev'd, 115
 In story not to be believ'd;
 And 'twould to us be shame enough,
 Not to attempt to fetch him off.
 I would (quoeth he) venture a limb
 To second thee, and rescue him: 120
 But then we must about it straight,
 Or else our aid will come too late.
 Quarter he scorns, he is so stout,
 And therefore cannot long hold out.

This said, they wav'd their weapons round 125
 About their heads, to clear the ground ;
 And joining forces, laid about
 So fiercely, that th' amazed rout
 Turn'd tail again, and straight begun,
 As if the Devil drove, to run. 130
 Mean while th' approach'd th' place where
 Was now engag'd to mortal ruin. [Bruin
 The conqu'ring foe they soon assail'd ;
 First TRULLA P stav'd, and CERDON tail'd,
 Until their mastives loos'd their hold : 135
 And yet, alas ! do what they could,
 The worsted Bear came off with store
 Of bloody wounds, but all before :
 For as ACHILLES, dipt in pond,
 Was ANABAPTIZ'D free from wound, 140
 Made proof against dead-doing steel
 All over, but the Pagan heel ;
 So did our champion's arms defend
 All of him, but the other end,
 His head and ears, which, in the martial 145
 Encounter, lost a leathern parcel :
 For as an Austrian Archduke once
 Had one ear (which in ducatoons
 Is half the coin) in battle par'd
 Close to his head, so Bruin far'd ; 150
 But tugg'd and pull'd on th' other side,
 Like scriv'ner newly crucify'd ;
 Or like the late corrected leathern
 Ears of the Circumcised Brethren.
 But gentle TRULLA, into th' ring 155
 He wore in's nose convey'd a string,
 With which she march'd before, and led
 The warrior to a grassy bed,

As authors write, in a cool shade,
 Which eglantine and rose made ; 160
 Close by a softly murm'ring stream,
 Where lovers us'd to loll and dream.
 There leaving him to his repose,
 Secured from pursuit of foes,
 And wanting nothing but a song, 165
 And a well-tun'd theorbo hung
 Upon a bough, to ease the pain
 His tugg'd ears suffer'd, with a strain
 They both drew up, to march in quest
 Of his great leader, and the rest. 170

For ORSIN (who was more renown'd
 For stout maintaining of his ground
 In standing fight, than for pursuit,
 As being not so quick of foot)
 Was not long able to keep pace 175
 With others that pursu'd the chace ;
 But found himself left far behind,
 Both out of heart and out of wind :
 Griev'd to behold his Bear pursu'd
 So basely by a multitude ; 180
 And like to fall, not by the prowess,
 But numbers, of his coward foes.
 He rag'd, and kept as heavy a coil as
 Stout HERCULES for loss of HYLAS ;
 Forcing the vallies to repeat 185
 The accents of his sad regret.
 He beat his breast, and tore his hair,
 For loss of his dear Crony Bear ;
 That Echo, from the hollow ground,
 His doleful wailings did resound 190
 More wistfully, by many times,
 Than in small poets play-foot rhimes,

'That makes her, in their ruthless stories,
 'To answer to int'rogatories,
 And most unconscionably depose 195
 To things of which she nothing knows;
 And when she has said all she can say,
 'Tis wrested to the lover's fancy.
 Quoth he, O whither, wicked Bruin!
 Art thou fled to my—Eccho, Ruin? 200
 I thought th' hadst scorn'd to budge a step,
 For fear. (Quoth Eccho) Marry guep.
 Am not I here to take thy part?
 'Then what has quail'd thy stubborn heart?
 Have these bones rattled, and this head 205
 So often in thy quarrel bled?
 Nor did I ever winch or grudge it,
 For thy dear sake. (Quoth she) Mum budget.
 'Think'st thou 'twill not be laid i' th' dish
 Thou turn'dst thy back? Quoth Eccho, Pish.
 To run from those th' hast overcome 211
 'Thus cowardly? Quoth Eccho, Mum.
 But what a vengeance makes thee fly
 From me too, as thine enemy?
 Or if thou hast no thought of me, 215
 Nor what I have endur'd for thee,
 Yet shame and honour might prevail
 To keep thee thus from turning tail:
 For who would grudge to spend his blood in
 His honour's cause? Quoth she, A puddin. 220
 This said, his grief to anger turn'd,
 Which in his manly stomach burn'd;
 Thirst of revenge, and wrath, in place
 Of sorrow, now began to blaze.
 He vow'd the authors of his woe 225
 Should equal vengeance undergoe;

And with their bones and flesh pay' dear
 For what he suffer'd, and his Bear.
 This b'ing resolv'd, with equal speed,
 And rage he hasted to proceed, 230
 To action straight, and giving o're
 To search for Bruin any more,
 He went in quest of HUDIBRAS,
 To find him out where-e'er he was;
 And, if he were above ground, vow'd 235
 He'd ferret him, lurk where he wou'd.

But scarce had he a furlong on
 This resolute adventure gone,
 When he encounter'd with that crew
 Whom HUDIBRAS did late subdue. 240
 Honour, revenge, contempt, and shame,
 Did equally their breasts inflame.
 'Mong these the fierce MAGNANO was,
 And TALGOL, foe to HUDIBRAS;
 CERDON and COLON, warriors stout, 245
 And resolute, as ever fought;
 Whom furious ORSIN thus bespoke:
 Shall we (quoth he) thus basely brook
 The vile affront that paultry ass,
 And feeble scoundrel, HUDIBRAS, 250
 With that more paultry ragamuffin,
 RALPHO, with vapouring and huffing,
 Have put upon us, like tame cattle,
 As if th' had routed us in battle?
 "For my part, it shall ne'er be said, 255
 I for the washing gave my head:
 Nor did I turn my back for fear
 O' th' rascals, but loss of my Bear,
 Which now I'm like to undergo;
 For whether these fell wounds, or no, 260

He has receiv'd in fight, are mortal,
 Is more than all my skill can foretel;
 Nor do I know what is become
 Of him, more than the Pope of Rome.
 But if I can but find them out 265
 That caus'd it (as I shall, no doubt,
 Where-e'er th' in hugger-mugger lurk)
 I'll make them rue their handy-work;
 And wish that they had rather dar'd
 To pull the Devil by the beard. 270

Quoth CERDON, Noble ORSIN, th' hast
 Great reason to do as thou say'st,
 And so has ev'ry body here,
 As well as thou hast, or thy Bear.
 Others may do as they see good; 275
 But if this twig be made of wood
 That will hold tack, I'll make the fur
 Fly 'bout the ears of that old cur;
 And th' other mungrel vermin, RALPH,
 That brav'd us all in his behalf. 280
 Thy Bear is safe, and out of peril,
 Though lugg'd indeed, and wounded very ill;
 Myself and TRULLA made a shift
 To help him out at a dead lift;
 And, having brought him bravely off, 285
 Have left him where he's safe enough;
 There let him rest; for if we stay,
 The slaves may hope to get away.

This said, they all engag'd to join
 Their forces in the same design; 290
 And forthwith put themselves in search
 Of HUDIBRAS upon their march.
 Where leave we them a while, to tell
 What the victorious Knight besel:

For such, CROWDERO being fast 295
 In dungeon shut, we left him last.
 Triumphant laurels seem'd to grow
 No where so green as on his brow:
 Laden with which, as well as tir'd
 With conquering toil, he now retir'd 300
 Unto a neighb'ring castle by,
 To rest his body, and apply
 Fit medicines to each glorious bruise
 He got in fight, reds, blacks, and blues,
 To mollify th' uneasy pang 305
 Of ev'ry honourable bang,
 Which b'ing by skillful midwife dress'd,
 He laid him down to take his rest.
 But all in vain. H' had got a hurt
 O' th' inside, of a deadlier sort, 310
 By CUPID made, who took his stand
 Upon a Widow's jointure land,
 (For he, in all his am'rous battels,
 No 'dvantage finds like goods and chattels,)
 Drew home his bow, and, aiming right, 315
 Let fly an arrow at the Knight:
 The shaft against a rib did glance,
 And gall'd him in the purtenance.
 But time had somewhat 'swag'd his pain,
 After he found his suit in vain. 320
 For that proud dame, for whom his soul
 Was burnt in's belly like a coal,
 (That belly that so oft did ache
 And suffer griping for her sake,
 Till purging comfits and ants-eggs 325
 Had almost brought him off his legs,)
 Us'd him so like a base rascallion,
 That 'old Pyg—(what'd' y' call him) malion,

That cut his mistress out of stone,
 Had not so hard a-hearted one. 330
 She had a thousand wadish tricks,
 Worse than a mule that flings and kicks;
 'Mong which one cross-grain'd freak she had,
 As insolent as strange and mad;
 She could love none, but only such 335
 As scorn'd and hated her as much.
 'Twas a strange riddle of a lady:
 Not love, if any lov'd her! Hey day!
 So cowards never use their might,
 But against such as will not fight; 340
 So some diseases have been found
 Only to seize upon the sound.
 He that gets her by heart, must say her
 The back way, like a witch's prayer.
 Mean while the Knight had no small task 345
 To compass what he durst not ask.
 He loves, but dares not make the motion;
 Her ignorance is his devotion:
 Like caitiff vile, that, for misdeed,
 Rides with his face to rump of steed, 350
 Or rowing scull, he's fain to love,
 Look one way, and another move;
 Or like a tumbler, that does play
 His game, and look another way,
 Until he seize upon the cony; 355
 Just so he does by matrimony:
 But all in vain; her subtle snout
 Did quickly wind his meaning out;
 Which she return'd with too much scorn
 To be by man of honour borne: 360
 Yet much he bore, until the distress
 He suffer'd from his spiteful mistress

Did stir his stomach; and the pain
 He had endur'd from her disdain,
 Turn'd to regret so resolute, 365
 That he resolv'd to wave his fury,
 And either to renounce her quite,
 Or for a while play least in fight.

This resolution b'ing put on,
 He kept some months, and more had done; 370
 But being brought so nigh by Fate,
 The victory he atchiev'd so late
 Did set his thoughts agog, and ope
 A door to discontinu'd hope,
 That seem'd to promise he might win 375
 His dame too, now his hand was in;
 And that his valour, and the honour
 H' had newly gain'd, might work upon her.
 These reasons made his mouth to water
 With am'rous longings to be at her. 380

Quoth he, unto himself, who knows,
 But this brave conquest o'er my foes
 May reach her heart, and make that stoop,
 As I but now have forc'd the troop?
 If nothing can oppugn love, 385
 And virtue invious ways can prove,
 What may not he confide to do
 That brings both love and virtue too?
 But thou bring'st valour too and wit;
 Two things that seldom fall to hit. 390
 Valour's a moule-trap, wit again,
 Which women oft are taken in.
 Then, HUDIBRAS, why should'st thou fear
 To be, that art, a conqueror?
 Fortune th' audacious doth jeuare, 395
 But lets the timidous miscarry.

Then while the honour thou hast got
 Is spick and span new, piping hot,
 Strike her up brave~~ly~~: thou hadst best,
 And ~~not thy~~ fortune with the rest. 400
 Such thoughts as these the Knight did keep,
 More than his bangs or fleas, from sleep.
 And as an owl, that in a barn
 Sees a mouse creeping in the corn,
 Sits still, and shuts his round blue eyes, 405
 As if he slept, until he spies
 The little beast within his reach,
 Then starts, and seizes on the wretch;
 So from his couch the Knight did start
 To seize upon the widow's heart; 410
 Crying with hasty tone, and hoarse,
 RALPHO, dispatch; To Horse, To Horse.
 And 'twas but time; for now the rout,
 We left engag'd to seek him out,
 By speedy marches, were advanc'd 415
 Up to the fort, where he esconc'd;
 And all th' avenues had possess'd
 About the place, from east to west.

That done, a while they made a halt,
 To view the ground, and where t' assault: 420
 Then call'd a council, which was best,
 By siege or onslaught, to invest
 The enemy; and 'twas agreed,
 By storm and onslaught to proceed.
 This b'ing resolv'd, in comely fort 425
 They now dress'd up t' attack the fort;
 When HUDIBRAS, about to enter
 Upon another gate's adventure,
 To RALPHO call'd aloud to arm,
 Not dreaming of approaching storm. 430

Whether Dame Fortune, or the care
 Of Angel bad, or tutelâr,
 Did arm, or thrust him in a danger
 To which he was an utter stranger,
 That foresight might, or might not, blot 435
 The glory he had newly got;
 Or to his shame it might be led,
 They took him napping in his bed;
 To them we leave it to expound,
 That deal in sciences profound. 440

His counter scarce he had bestrid,
 And RALPHO that on which he rid,
 When setting ope the postern gate,
 Which they thought best to fall at,
 The foe appear'd, drawn up and drill'd, 445
 Ready to charge them in the field.
 This somewhat startled the bold Knight,
 Surpris'd with th' unexpected sight.
 The bruises of his bones and flesh
 He thought began to smart afresh; 450
 Till recollecting wonted courage,
 His fear was soon converted to rage,
 And thus he spoke: The coward foe,
 " Whom we but now gave quarter to,
 Look, yonder's rally'd, and appears, 455
 As if they had out-run their fears.
 The glory we did lately get,
 The fates command us to repeat;
 And to their wills we must succumb,
Quocunque trahunt, 'tis our doom. 460
 This is the same numeric crew
 Which we so lately did subdue;
 The self-same individuals that
 Did run as mice do from a cat,

When we courageously did wield 465
 Our martial weapons in the field
 'To tug for victory; and when
 We shew'd our shining blades agen
 Brandish in terror o'er our hearts, 469
 They'll straight resume their wonted dreads.
 Fear is an ague, that forsakes
 And haunts by fits those whom it takes :
 And they'll opine they feel the pain
 And blows they felt to-day again.
 Then let us boldly charge them home, 475
 And make no doubt to overcome.

This said, his courage to inflame,
 He call'd upon his misthiefs' name.
 His pistol next he cock'd a-new,
 And out his nut-brown whinyard drew ; 480
 And, placing RALPHO in the front,
 Reserv'd himself to bear the brunt,
 As expert warriors use : then ply'd
 With iron heel his courser's side,
 Conveying sympathetic speed 485
 From heel of Knight to heel of Steed.

Mean while the foe, with equal rage
 And speed, advancing to engage,
 Both parties now were drawn so close,
 Almost to come to hand-to-blows ; 490
 When ORSIN first leapt a stone
 At RALPHO : not so huge a one
 As that which DRUMLED did maul
 ÆNEAS on the um withal ;
 Yet big enough, if rightly hurl'd, 495
 T' have sent him to another world,
 Whether above-ground, or below,
 Which Saints Twice Dipt are destin'd to.

The danger startled the bold Squire,
 And made him some few steps retire. 500.
 But HUDIBRAS advanc'd to's aid,
 And rous'd his spirits, half disinclay'd
 He wisely doubting lest the shot
 Of th' enemy, now growing hot,
 Might at a distance gall, press'd close, 505
 To come pell-mell to handy-blows,
 And, that he might their aim decline,
 Advanc'd still in an oblique line;
 But prudently forbore to fire,
 Till breast to breast he had got nigher; 510
 As expert warriors use to do,
 When hand to hand they charge their foe.
 This order the advent'rous Knight,
 Most soldier-like, observ'd in fight, 514
 When Fortune (as she's wont) turn'd fickle,
 And for the foe began to stickle.
 The more shame for her Goody-ship,
 To give so near a friend the slip.
 For COLON, chusing out a stone,
 Levell'd so right, it thump'd upon 520
 His manly paunch with such a force,
 As almost beat him off his horse.
 He loos'd his whinyard, and the rein;
 But, laying fast hold on the mane,
 Preserv'd his seat: And as a goose 525
 In death contracts his tail's close,
 So did the Knight, and with one claw
 The trigger of his pistol draw
 The gun went off: And, as it was,
 Still fatal to stout HUDIBRAS, 530
 In all his feats of arms, when least
 He dreamt of it, to prosper best;

So now he far'd: the shot, let fly
 At random 'mong the enemy,
 Pierc'd TALGOL's gaskiberdine, and grazing 535
 Upon his moulder, in the passing,
 Lodg'd in MAGNANO's brags habergeon,
 Who straight, A Surgeon, cry'd, A Surgeon.
 He tumbled down, and, as he fell,
 Did Murther, Murther, Murther, yell. 540
 This startled their whole body so,
 That if the Knight had not let go
 His arms, but been in wailike plight,
 H' had won (the second time) the fight;
 As, if the Squire had but fall'n on, 545
 He had inevitably done:
 But he, diverted with the care
 Of HUDIBRAS his hurt, forbore
 To press th' advantage of his fortune
 While danger did the rest dishearten: 550
 For he with CERDON b'ing engag'd
 In close encounter, they both wag'd
 The fight so well, 'twas hard to say
 Which side was like to get the day.
 And now the busy work of death 555
 Had tir'd them so, th' agreed to breath,
 Preparing to renew the fight,
 When the disaster of the Knight,
 And th' other party did divert
 Their fell intent, and forc'd them part. 560
 RALPHO press'd up to HUDIBRAS,
 And CERDON where MAGNANO was;
 Each striving, to confirm his party
 With stout encouragements, and hearty.
 Quoth RALPHO, Courage, valiant Sir, 565
 And let revenge and honour stir

Your spirits up: once more fall on,
 The shatter'd foe begins to run:
 For if but half so well you knew
 To use your victory as subdue, ' 570
 They durst not, after such a blow
 As you have given them, face us now;
 But from so formidable a soldier
 Had fled like crows when they smell powder.
 Thrice have they seen your sword aloft 575
 Wav'd o'er their heads, and fled as oft.
 But if you let them recollect
 Their spirits, now dismay'd and checkt,
 You'll have a harder game to play
 Than yet y' have had to get the day. 580
 Thus spoke the stout Squire; but was heard
 By HUDIBRAS with small regard.
 His thoughts were fuller of the bang
 He lately took than RALPH's harangue;
 To which he answer'd, Cruel Fate 585
 Tells me thy counsel comes too late.
 The knotted blood within my hose,
 That from my wounded body flows,
 With mortal crisis doth portend
 My days to appropinque an end. 590
 I am for action now unfit,
 Either of fortitude or wit;
 Fortune, my foe, begins to frown,
 Resolv'd to pull my stomach down.
 I am not apt, upon a wound, 595
 Or trivial basting, to despond;
 Yet I'd be loth my days to cur'sal:
 For if I thought my wounds mortal,
 Or that we'd time enough as yet,
 To make an honourable retreat, 600

'Twere the best course: but if they find
 We fly, and leave our arms behind
 For them to seize on the dishonour,
 And danger too, is such, I'll sooner
 Stand to it boldly, and take quarter, 605
 To let them see I am no starter.

In all the trade of war, no feat
 Is nobler than a brave retreat:
 For those that run away, and fly,
 Take place at least of th' enemy. 610

This said, the Squire, with active speed,
 Dismounted from his bonny steed,
 To seize the arms, which, by mischance,
 Fell from the bold Knight in a trance.
 These being found out, and restor'd 615

To HUDIBRAS, their natural lord,
 As a man may say, with might and main,
 He hasted to get up again.

Thrice he assay'd to mount aloft,
 But, by his weighty bum, as oft 620
 He was pull'd back, till having found

Th' advantage of the rising ground,
 Thither he led his warlike steed,
 And having plac'd him right, with speed
 Prepar'd again to scale the beast, 625

When ORSIN, who had newly dress'd
 The bloody scar upon the shoulder
 Of TALGOL with Promethean powder,
 And now was searching for the shot
 That laid MORNANO on the spot, 630
 Beheld the Squire afore said
 Preparing to climb up his horse-side.

He left his cure, and laying hold
 Upon his arms, with courage bold,

Cry'd out, 'Tis now no time to dally, 635
 The enemy begin to rally,
 Let us, that are unhurt and whole,
 Fall on, and happy man be's dole.
 This said, like to a thunderbolt,
 He flew with fury to th' assault, 640
 Striving th' enemy to attack
 Before he reach'd his horse's back.
 RALPHO was mounted now, and gotten
 O'erthwart his beast with active vau'ting,
 Wrigling his body to recover 645
 His seat, and cast his right leg over,
 When ORSIN, rushing in, bestow'd
 On horse and man so heavy a load,
 The beast was startled, and begun
 To kick and fling like mad, and run, 650
 Bearing the tough Squire like a sack,
 Or stout king RICHARD, on his back,
 'Till stumbling, he threw him down,
 Sore bruis'd, and cast into a swoon.
 Mean while the Knight began to rouse 655
 The sparkles of his wonted prowess.
 He thrust his hand into his hose,
 And found, both by his eyes and nose,
 'Twas only choler, and not blood,
 That from his wounded body flow'd. 660
 This, with the hazard of the Squire,
 Inflam'd him with despigh'ful ire.
 Courageously he fac'd about,
 And drew his other pistol out,
 And now had half way bent a sa'cock, 665
 When CERDON gave so fiery a shock,
 With sturdy truncheon, thwart his arm,
 That down it fell, and did no harm :

Then stoutly pressing on with speed,
 Assay'd to pull him off his steed. 670
 The Knight his sword had only left,
 With which he CERDON's head had cleft,
 Or at the least cropt off a limb,
 But ORSIN came, and rescu'd him.
 He, with his lance, attack'd the Knight 675
 Upon his quarters opposite.
 But as a barque, that, in foul weather,
 Toss'd by two adverse winds together,
 Is bruise'd, and beaten to and fro,
 And knows not which to turn him to ; 680
 So far'd the Knight between two foes,
 And knew not which of them to oppose ;
 Till ORSIN, charging with his lance
 At HUDIBRAS, by spiteful chance,
 Hit CERDON such a bang, as stunn'd, 685
 And laid him flat upon the ground.
 At this the Knight began to cheer up,
 And, raising up himself on stirrup,
 Cry'd out, Victoria ! Lie thou there,
 And I shall straight dispatch another, 690
 To bear thee company in death :
 But first I'll halt a while, and breath :
 As well he might ; for ORSIN, griev'd
 At th' wound that CERDON had receiv'd,
 Ran to relieve him with his lore, 695
 And cure the hurt he gave before.
 Mean while the Knight had wheel'd about,
 To breathe himself, and next find out
 Th' advantage of the ground, where best
 He might th' invincible foe infect. 700
 This being resolv'd, he spur'd his steed,
 To run at ORSIN with full speed,

While he was busy in the care
 Of CERDON'S wound, and unaware :
 But he was quick, and had already 705
 Unto the part apply'd remedy ;
 And, seeing th' enemy prepar'd,
 Drew up, and stood upon his guard.
 Then, like a warrior right expert
 And skilful in the martial art, 710
 The subtle Knight straight made a halt,
 And judg'd it best to stay th' assault,
 Until he had reliev'd the Squire,
 And then in order to retire ;
 Or, as occasion should invite, 715
 With forces join'd renew the fight.
 RALPHO, by this time disentranc'd,
 Upon his bum himself advanc'd,
 Though sorely bruise'd ; his limbs all o'er
 With ruthless bangs were stiff and sore. 720
 Right fain he would have got upon
 His feet again, to get him gone ;
 When HUDIBRAS to aid him came :
 Quoth he, (and call'd him by his name,)
 Courage ! the day at length is our's ; 725
 And we once more, as conquerors,
 Have both the field and honour won :
 The foe is profligate, and run.
 I mean all such as can ; for some
 This hand has sent to their long home ; 730
 And some lie sprawling on the ground,
 With many a gash and bloody wound.
 CÆSAR himself could never say
 He got two victories in a day,
 As I have done, that can say, Twice I 735
 In one day, Veni, Vidi, Vici.

The foe's so numerous, that we Cannot so often vincere
 As they perire, and yet know
 Be left to strike an after-blow ; 740
 Then, lest they rally, and once more
 Put us to fight the bus'ness o'er,
 Get up, and mount thy steed: Dispatch,
 And let us both their motions watch.

Quoth RALPH, I should not, if I were 745
 In case for action, now be here ;
 Nor have I turn'd my back, or hang'd
 An arse, for fear of being bang'd.
 It was for you I got these harms,
 Advent'ring to fetch off your arms. 750
 The blows and drubs I have receiv'd
 Have bruis'd my body, and bereav'd
 My limbs of strength. Unless you stoop,
 And reach your hand to pull me up,
 I shall lie here, and be a prey 755
 To those who are now run away.

That thou shalt not, (quoth HUDIBRAS.)
 We read, the ancients held it was
 More honourable far, servare
Civem, than slay an adversary : 760
 The one we oft to-day have done,
 The other shall dispatch anon :
 And though th' art of a diff'rent Church,
 I will not leave thee in the lurch.
 This said, he jogg'd his good steed nigher, 765
 And steer'd him gently toward the Squire ;
 Then bowing down his body, stretch'd
 His hand out, and at RALPHO reach'd ;
 When TEULLA, whom he did not mind,
 Charg'd him like lightening behind. 770

She had been long in search about
 MAGNANO's wound, to find it out;
 But could find none, nor where the shot,
 That had so startled him, was got.
 But having found the worst was past, 775
 She fell to her own work at last,
 The pillage of the prisoners,
 Which in all feats of arms was her's;
 And now to plunder RALPH she flew,
 When HUDIBRAS his hard fate drew 780
 To succour him; for, as he bow'd
 To help him up, she laid a load
 Of blows so heavy, and plac'd so well,
 On t' other side, that down he fell.
 Yield, scoundrel base, (quoth she,) or die : 785
 Thy life is mine, and liberty;
 But if thou think'st I took thee tardy,
 And dar'st presume to be so hardy,
 To try thy fortune o'er a-fresh,
 I'll wave my title to thy flesh, 790
 Thy arms and baggage, now my right;
 And if thou hast the heart to try't,
 I'll lend thee back thyself a while,
 And once more, for that carcass vile,
 Fight upon tick—Quoth HUDIBRAS, 795
 Thou offer'st nobly, valiant lass,
 And I shall take thee at thy word.
 First let me rise, and take my sword.
 That sword which has so oft this day
 Through squadrons of my foes made way, 800
 And some to other worlds dispatch'd,
 Now with a feeble spinster hatch'd,
 Will blush with blood ignoble stain'd,
 By which no honour's to be gain'd.

Yet if thou'lt take m' advice in this, 805
 Consider whilst thou may'st, what 'tis
 To interrupt a victor's course,
 B' opposing such a trivial force :
 For it with conquest I come off,
 (And that I shall do sure enough,) 810
 Quarter thou can'st not have, nor grace
 By law of arms in such a case ;
 Both which I now do offer freely.
 I scorn (quoth she) thou coxcomb silly,
 (Clapping her hand upon her breech, 815
 To shew how much she priz'd his speech,)
 Quarter or counsel from a foe :
 If thou can'st force me to it, do.
 But lest it should again be said,
 When I have once more won thy head, 820
 I took thee napping, unprepar'd,
 Arm, and betake thee to thy guard.
 This said, she to her tackle fell,
 And on thee Knight let fall a peal
 Of blows so fierce, and press'd so home, 825
 That he retir'd, and follow'd 's bum.
 Stand to't (quoth she) or yield to mercy :
 It is not fighting Arsie-versie
 Shall serve thy turn.---This irrit'd his spleen
 More than the danger he was in, 830
 The blows he felt, or was to feel,
 Although th' already made him reel.
 Honour, despight, revenge, and shame,
 At once into his stomach came,
 Which fir'd it so, he rais'd his arm 835
 Above his head, and rain'd a storm
 Of blows so terrible and thick,
 As if he meant to hash her quick.

But she upon her truncheon took them,
 And by oblique diversions broke them, 840
 Waiting an opportunity
 To pay all back with usury;
 Which long she fail'd not of; for now
 The Knight with one dead-doing blow
 Resolving to decide the fight, 845
 And she, with quick and cunning sight,
 Avoiding it, the force and weight
 He charg'd upon it was so great,
 As almost sway'd him to the ground.
 No sooner she th' advantage found, 850
 But in she flew; and seconding
 With home-made thrust the heavy swing,
 She laid him flat upon his side;
 And mounting on his trunk a-stride,
 Quoth she, I told thee what would come 855
 Of all thy vapouring, base scum.
 Say, will the law of arms allow
 I may have grace and quarter now?
 Or wilt thou rather break thy word,
 And stain thine honour than thy sword? 860
 A man of war to damn his soul,
 In basely breaking his parole!
 And when, before the fight, th' had'st vow'd
 To give no quarter in cold blood:
 Now thou hast got me for a Tartar, 865
 To make m' against my will take quarter;
 Why dost not put me to the sword,
 But cowardly fly from thy word?

Quoth HUDIBRAS, The day's thine own:
 Thou and thy Stars have cast me down: 870
 My laurels are transplanted now,
 And flourish on thy conqu'ring brow:

My loss of honour's great enough,
 Thou need'st not brand it with a scoff:
 Sarcasms may eclipse thine own,
 But cannot blur my lost renown. 875

I am not now in Fortune's power;
 He that is down can fall no lower.
 The ancient heroes were illustrious
 For being benign, and not blustrous 880
 Against a vanquish'd foe: their swords
 Were sharp and trenchant, not their words;
 And did in fight but cut work out
 T' employ their courtesies about.

Quoth she, Although thou hast deserv'd, 885
 Base slubberdegullion, to be serv'd
 As thou did'st vow to deal with me,
 If thou had'st got the victory;
 Yet I shall rather act a part
 That suits my fame than thy desert. 890
 Thy arms, thy liberty, beside
 All that's on th' outside of thy hide,
 Are mine by military law,
 Of which I will not bate one straw:
 The rest, thy life and limbs, once more, 895
 Though doubly forfeit, I restore.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, It's too late
 For me to treat, or stipulate:
 What thou command'st I must obey:
 Yet those whom I expugn'd to-day, 900
 Of thine own party, I let go,
 And gave them life and freedom too;
 Both dogs and bear, upon their parol,
 Whom I took pris'ners in this quarrel.
 Quoth TRULLA, Whether thou or they 905
 Let one another run away,

Concerns not me; but was't not thou
 That gave CROWDERO quarter too?
 CROWDERO, whom, iron's bound,
 Thou basely threw'st into LOB's Pound, ' 910
 Where still he lies, and with regret
 His gen'rous bowels rage and fret.

But now thy carcass shall redeem,
 And serve to be exchange'd for him. 914

This said, the Knight did straight submit,
 And laid his weapons at her feet.

Next he disrob'd his gaberdine,
 And with it did himself resign.
 She took it, and forthwith divesting
 The mantle that she wore, said jesting, 920
 Take that, and wear it for my sake;
 Then threw it o'er his sturdy back.

And as ' the FRENCH, we conquer'd once,
 Now give us laws for pantaloons,
 The length of breeches, and the gathers, 925
 Port-cannons, perriwigs, and feathers;
 Just so the proud insulting lass
 Array'd and dighted HUDIBRAS.

Mean while the other champions, yerst
 In hurry of the fight disperst, 930

Arriv'd, when TRULLA won the day,
 To share in th' honour and the prey,
 And out of HUDIBRAS his hide
 With vengeance to be satisfy'd;

Which now they were about to pour 935
 Upon him in a wooden show'r;

But TRULLA thrust herself between,
 And striding o'er his back again,
 She brandish'd o'er her head his sword,
 And vow'd they should not break her word: 940

~~She~~ had giv'n him quarter, and her blood
 Or theirs should make that quarter good;
 For she was bound by law of arms
 To see him safe from further harms.
 In dungeon deep CROWDERO, cast 945
 By HUDIBRAS, as yet lay fast;
 Where, to the hard and ruthless stones,
 His great heart made perpetual moans:
 Him she resolv'd that HUDIBRAS
 Should ransom, and supply his place. 950
 This stopt their fury, and the halting
 Which toward HUDIBRAS was halting.
 They thought it was but just and right,
 That what she had achiev'd in fight,
 She should dispose of how she pleas'd. 955
 CROWDERO ought to be releas'd;
 Nor could that any way be done
 So well as this she pitch'd upon:
 For who a better could imagine?
 This therefore they resolv'd t'engage in. 960
 The Knight and Squire first they made
 Rise from the ground, where they were laid;
 Then mounting both upon their horses,
 But with their faces to the arses,
 ORSIN led HUDIBRAS' beast, 965
 And TALGOL that which RALPHO prest,
 Whom stout MAGNANO, valiant CERDON,
 And COLON waited as a guard on;
 All ush'ring TRULLA in the rear,
 With th' arms of either prisoner. 970
 In this proud order and array
 They put themselves upon their way,
 Striving to reach th' enchanted castle,
 Where stout CROWDERO in durance lay still.

Thither with greater speed than shows, 975
 And triumph over conquer'd foes
 Do use t' allow, or than she bears
 Or pageants borne before Lord-Mayors
 Are wont to use, they soon arriv'd
 In order, soldier-like contriv'd ; 980
 Still marching in a warlike posture,
 As fit for battle as for muster.
 The Knight and Squire they first unhorse,
 And bending 'gainst the fort their force,
 They all advanc'd, and round about 985
 Begirt the magical redoubt.
 MAGNAN led up in this adventure,
 And made way for the rest to enter ;
 For he was skilful in black art,
 No less than he that built the fort ; 990
 And with an iron mace laid flat
 A breach, which straight all enter'd at,
 And in the wooden dungeon found
 CROWDERO laid upon the ground.
 Him they release from durance base, 995
 Restor'd t' his fiddle and his case,
 And liberty his thirsty rage
 With luscious vengeance to assuage :
 For he no sooner was at large, 999
 But TRULLA straight brought on the charge,
 And in the self-same limbo put
 The Knight and Squire where he was shut ;
 Where leaving them in Hockley i' th' Hole,
 Their bangs and durance to condole,
 Confin'd and conjur'd into narrow 1005
 Enchanted mansion to know sorrow,
 In the same order and array
 Which they advanc'd, they march'd away.

But HUDIBRAS, who scorn'd to stoop
 To Fortune, or be said to droop, 1010
 Chear'd up himself with ends of verse,
 And sayings of philosophers.

Quoth he, Th' one half of man, his mind,
 Is, sui juris, unconfin'd,
 And cannot be laid by the heels, 1015
 Whate'er the other moiety feels.

'Tis not restraint or liberty
 That makes men prisoners or free;
 But perturbations that possess
 The mind, or æquanimities. 1020

The whole world was not half so wide
 To ALEXANDER, when he cry'd,
 Because he had but one to subdue,
 As was a paultry narrow tub to
 DIOGENES; who is not said 1025

(For aught that ever I could read)
 'To whine, put finger i' th' eye, and sob,
 Because h' had ne'er another tub.

The ancients make two sev'ral kinds
 Of prowess in heroic minds; 1030

The active, and the passive valiant;
 Both which are pari libra gallant:
 For both to give blows, and to carry,
 In fights are equi necessary:

But in defeats, the passive stout 1035

Are always found to stand it out

Most desprately, and to out-doe

The active 'gainst a conqu'ring foe.

Tho' we with blacks and blues are fuggill'd,

Or, as the vulgar say, are cudgell'd; 1040

He that is valiant, and dares fight,

Though drubb'd, can lose no honour by't.

Honour's a lease for lives to come,
 And cannot be extended from
 The legal tenant: 'tis a chattel 1045
 Not to be forfeited in battel.
 If he that in the field is slain,
 Be in the bed of honour lain,
 He that is beaten, may be sed
 To lie in Honour's truckle-bed. 1050
 For as we see th' eclipsed sun
 By mortals is more gaz'd upon,
 Than when, adorn'd with all his light,
 He shines in serene sky most bright;
 So valour, in a low estate, 1055
 Is most admir'd and wonder'd at.

Quoth RALPH, How great I do not know
 We may by being beaten grow;
 But none, that see how here we sit,
 Will judge us overgrown with wit. 1060
 As gifted brethren, preaching by
 A carnal hour-glass, do imply,
 Illumination can convey
 Into them what they have to say,
 But not how much; so well enough 1065
 Know you to charge, but not draw off:
 For who, without a cap and hauble,
 Having subdu'd a bear and rabble,
 And might with honour have come off,
 Would put it to a second proof? 1070
 A politic exploit, right fit
 For Presbyterian zeal and wit.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, That cuckow's tone,
 RALPHO, thou always harp'st upon.
 When thou at any thing would'st rail, 1075
 Thou mak'st Presbytery thy scale

To take the height on't, and explain
~~To what~~ degree it is prophane:
 Whats'ever will not with (thy what d'ye call)
 Thy light jump right; thou call'st synodical;
 As if Presbytery were a standard 1081
 To size what's ever's to be slander'd.
 Dost not remember how this day,
 Thou to my beard wast bold to say,
 That thou could'st prove bear-baiting equal
 With synods orthodox and legal? 1086
 Do, if thou can'st; for I deny't,
 And dare thee to 't with all thy light.

Quoth RALPHO, Truly that, is no
 Hard matter for a man to do, 1090
 That has but any guts in 's brains,
 And cou'd believe it worth his pains;
 But since you dare and urge me to it,
 You'll find I've light enough to do it.
 Synods are mystical bear-gardens, 1095
 Where elders, deputies, church-wardens,
 And other members of the court,
 Manage the Babylonish sport;
 For prolocutor, scribe, and bear-ward,
 Do differ only in a meer word. 1100
 Both are but sev'ral synagogues
 Of carnal men, and bears and dogs:
 Both antichristian assemblies,
 To mischief bent, as far's in them lies:
 Both slave and tail with fierce contests; 1105
 The one with men, the other beasts.
 The difference is, the one fights with
 The tongue, the other with the teeth;
 And that they bait but bears in this,
 In th' other, souls and consciences; 1110

Where Saints themselves are brought to flake
 For gospel-light, and conscience sake;
 Expos'd to Scribes and Presbyters,
 Instead of massive dogs and curs, .
 Than whom th' have less humanity, 1115
 For these at souls of men will fly.
 This to the prophet did appear,
 Who in a vision saw a bear,
 Picturing the beastly rage
 Of Church-rule in this latter age, 1120
 As is demonstrated at full
 By him that baited the ' Pope's Bull.
 Bears naturally are beasts of prey,
 That live by rapine; so do they.
 What are their orders, constitutions, 1125
 Church-censures, curses, absolutions,
 But sev'ral mystick chains they make,
 To tie poor Christians to the stake,
 And then set heathen officers,
 Instead of dogs, about their ears? 1130
 For to prohibit and dispense;
 To find out or to make offence;
 Of Hell and Heaven to dispose;
 To play with souls at fast and loose;
 To set what characters they please, 1135
 And mulcts on sin or godliness;
 Reduce the Church to gospel-order,
 By rapine, sacrilege, and murder;
 To make Presbytery supreme,
 And Kings themselves submit to them; 1140
 And force all people, though against
 Their consciences, to turn Saints;
 Must prove a pretty thriving trade,
 When Saints monopolists are made,

When pious frauds, and holy shifts, 1145
 Are dispensations and gifts,
 Their godliness becomes mere ware,
 And ev'ry Synod but a fair.
 Synods are whelps of th' Inquisition,
 A mungrel breed of like pernicion, 1150
 And growing up, become the fires
 Of scribes, commissioners, and triers;
 Whose bus'ness is, by cunning flight,
 To cast a figure for mens' light;
 To find, in lines of beard and face, 1155
 The physiognomy of grace;
 And by the sound and twang of nose,
 If all be found within disclose;
 Free from a crack or flaw of sinning,
 As men try pipkins by the ringing; 1160
 By black caps underlaid with white,
 Give certain guesses at inward light,
 Which serjeants at the gospel wear,
 To make the spiritual calling clear;
 The handkerchief about the neck 1165
 (Canonical cravat of ^u SNECK,
 From whom the institution came,
 When Church and State they set on flame,
 And worn by them as badges then
 Of spiritual warfaring men) 1170
 Judge rightly if regeneration
 Be of the newest cut in fashion.
 Sure 'tis an orthodox opinion,
 That grace is fourfold in dominion.
 Great piety consists in pride; 1175
 To rule is to be sanctified:
 To domineer, and to controul,
 To set the body and the soul,

Is the most perfect discipline
 Of Church-rule, and by right-divine. 1180
 Bell and the Dragon's ch-plains were
 More moderate than these by far:
 For they (poor knaves) were glad to cheat,
 'To get their wives and children meat;
 But these will not be fobb'd off so; 1185
 'They must have wealth and power too,
 Or else with blood and desolation
 'They'll tear it out o' th' heart o' th' nation.

Sure these themselves from primitive
 And Heathen Priesthood do derive, 1190
 When butchers were the only Clerks,
 Elders and Presbyters of Kirks;
 Whose directory was to kill;
 And some believe it to still.
 Th' only difference is, that then 1195
 'They slaughter'd only beasts, now men.
 For then to sacrifice a bullock,
 Or now and then a child to Moloch,
 'They count a vile abomination,
 But not to slaughter a whole nation. 1200
 Presbytery does but translate
 'The Papacy to a free state;
 A common-wealth of Popery,
 Where ev'ry village is a See
 As well as Rome, and must maintain 1205
 A Tithe-pig Metropolitan;
 Where ev'ry Presbyter and Deacon
 Commands the keys for sheep and bacon;
 And ev'ry hamlet's govern'd
 By's Holiness, the Church's Head; 1210
 More haughty and severe in's place,
 'Than GREGORY and BONIFACE.

Such Church must (surely) be a monster
 With many heads : for if we conſider
 What in th' Apocalypſe we find, 1215
 According to th' Apoſtle's mind,
 'Tis that the Whore of Babylon
 With many heads did ride upon ;
 Which heads denote the ſinful tribe
 Of Deacon, Prieſt, Lay-Elder, Scribe. 1220
 Lay-Elder, SIMEON to LEVI,
 Whoſe little finger is as heavy
 As loins of patriarchs, prince, prelate,
 And biſhop-ſecular. This zealot
 Is of a mungrel, diverſe kind ; 1225
 Cleric before, and lay behind ;
 A lawleſs linſie-woolſie brother,
 Half of one order, half another ;
 A creature of amphibious nature ;
 On land a beaſt, a fiſh in water ; 1230
 That always preys on grace or ſin ;
 A ſheep without, a wolf within.
 This fierce inquiſitor has chief
 Dominion over mens' belief
 And manners : can pronounce a Saint 1235
 Idolatrous or ignorant,
 When ſuperciliously he ſifts
 Through coarſeſt boulder others' gifts ;
 For all men live and judge amiſs,
 Whoſe talents jump not juſt with his. 1240
 He'll lay on gifts with hands, and place
 On duſtleſt noddle Right and Grace,
 The manufacture of the Kirk.
 Thoſe paſtors are but th' handy-work
 Of his mechanic paws, inſtilling 1245
 Divinity in them by feeling ;

From whence they start up Chosen Vessels,
Made by contact, as men get meazles.

* So Cardinals, they say, do grope
At th' other end the new-made Pope. 1250

Hold, hold, quoth HUDIBRAS; soft fire,
They say, does make sweet Malt. Good
Festina lente, not too fast; [Squire,
For haste (the proverb says) makes waste.

The quirks and cavils thou dost make 1255
Are false, and built upon mistake:

And I shall bring you, with your pack
Of fallacies, t' elenchi back;

And put your arguments in mood

And figure to be understood. 1260

I'll force you, by right ratiocination,

To leave your v vitiligation,

And make you keep to th' question close,

And argue dialecticos.

The question then, to state it first, 1265

Is, Which is better, or which worst,

Synods or Bears? Bears I avow

To be the worst, and Synods thou.

But, to make good th' assertion,

Thou say'st th' are really all one.. 1270

If so, not worst; for if th' are idem,

Why then, tantundem dat tantidem.

For if they are the same, by course,

Neither is better, neither worse.'

But I deny they are same,

More than a maggot and Am. 1275

That both are animalia

I grant, but not rationalia:

For though they do agree in kind,

Specific difference we find; 1280

And can no more make bears of these,
 Than prove my horse is SOCRATES.
 That Synods are bear-gardens too,
 Thou dost affirm; but I say no:
 And thus I prove it in a word; 1285
 Whats'ever assembly's not impow'r'd
 To censure, curse, absolve, and ordain,
 Can be no Synod: and bear-garden
 Has no such pow'r; ergo, 'tis none;
 And so thy sophistry's o'erthrown. 1290

But yet we are beside the question
 Which thou didst raise the first contest on;
 For that was, Whether Bears are better
 Than Synod-men? I say, negatur.
 That bears are beasts, and synods men, 1295
 Is held by all: they're better then:
 For bears and dogs on four legs go,
 As beasts, but Synod-men on two.
 'Tis true, they all have teeth and nails;
 But prove that Synod-men have tails; 1300
 Or that a rugged, shaggy fur
 Grows o'er the hide of Presbyter;
 Or that his snout and spacious ears
 Do hold proportion with a bear's.
 A bear's a savage beast, of all 1305
 Most ugly and unnatural;
 Whelp'd without form, until the dam
 Has lick'd it into shape and frame:
 But all thy light can ne'er evict,
 That ever Synod-man was lick'd, 1310
 Or brought to any other fashion,
 Than his own will and inclination.

But thou dost further yet in this
 Oppugn thyself and senic; that is,

I thou would'st have Presbyters to go 1315
 For bears and dogs, and bearwards too:
 A strange chimera of beasts and men,
 Made up of pieces heterogene;
 Such as in nature never met
 In codem subjecto yet. 1320

Thy other arguments are all
 Supposures, hypothetical,
 That do but beg, and we may chuse
 Either to grant them, or refuse. 1324
 Much thou hast said, which I know when
 And where thou stol'st from other men,
 Whereby 'tis plain thy Light and Gifts
 Are all but plagiarary shifts;
 And is the same that Ranter said,
 Who, arguing with me, broke my head, 1330
 And tore a handful of my beard.
 The self-same cavils then I heard,
 When, b'ing in hot dispute about
 This controversy, we fell out;
 And what thou know'st I answer'd then, 1335
 Will serve to answer thee agen.

Quoth RALPHO, Nothing but th' abuse
 Of human learning you produce;
 Learning, that cobweb of the brain,
 Profane, erroneous, and vain; 1340
 A trade of knowledge, as replete
 As others are with fraud and cheat;
 An art t'incumber gifts and wit,
 And render both for nothing fit;
 Makes Light unactive, dull, and troubled,
 Like little DAVID in SAUL's doublet; 1346
 A cheat that scholars put upon
 Other mens' reason and their own;

A sort of error, to ensconce
 Absurdity and ignorance, 1350
 That renders all the avenues
 To truth impervious and abstruse,
 By making plain things, in debate,
 By art, perplex'd, and intricate :
 For nothing goes for sense or light 1355
 That will not with old rules jump right :
 As if rules were not in the schools
 Deriv'd from truth, but truth from rules.
 This pagan, heathenish invention
 Is good for nothing but contention. 1360
 For as, in sword-and-buckler fight,
 All blows do on the target light ;
 So, when men argue, the great'st part
 O' th' contest falls on terms of art,
 Until the sustian stuff be spent, 1365
 And then they fall to th' argument.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, Friend RALPH, thou
 Out-run the constable at last ? [hast
 For thou art fallen on a new
 Dispute, as senseless as untrue, 1370
 But to the former opposite
 And contrary as black to white ;
 * Mere disparata, that concerning
 Presbytery, this human learning ;
 Two things I averse, they never yet 1375
 Put in thy rambling fancy met.
 But I shall take a fit occasion
 To evince thee by perlocination,
 Some other time in place more proper
 Than this we're in ; therefore let's sit p here,
 And rest our weary'd bones a-while,
 Already tir'd with other toil.

NOTES TO PART I. CANTO I.

1 WHEN civil ^a dudgeon, &c.] Dudgeon. Who made the alterations in the last Edition of this Poem I know not, but they are certainly sometimes for the worse; and I cannot believe the Author would have changed a word so proper in that place as dudgeon is, for that of fury, as it is in the last Edition. To take in dudgeon, is inwardly to resent some injury or affront; a sort of grumbling in the gizzard, and what is previous to actual fury.

24 ^b That could as well, &c.] Bind over to the Sessions, as being a Justice of the Peace in his Country, as well as Colonel of a Regiment of Foot in the Parliament's Army, and a Committee-Man.

38 ^c As MONTAIGNE, &c.] Montaigne, in his Essays, supposes his cat thought him a fool, for losing his time in playing with her.

62 ^d To make some, &c.] Here again is an alteration without any amendment; for the following lines,

*And truly, so he was, perhaps,
Not as a Profelyte, but for Claps,*

Are thus changed,

*And truly so, perhaps, he was;
'Tis many a pious Christian's case.*

The Heathens had an odd opinion, and have a strange reason why Moses imposed the law of circumcision on the Jews, which, how untrue soever, I will give the learned reader an account of without translation, as I find it in the annotations upon Horace, wrote by my worthy and learned friend Mr. William Baxter, the great restorer of the ancient and promoter of modern learning.

Hor. Sat. 9. Sermon Lib. I.

Curtis; quia pellicula imminuti sunt; quia Moyses Rex Judæorum, cujus Legibus reguntur, negligentia Quædam, medicinaliter excelsus est, & ne solus esset notabilis, omnes circumcidi voluit. Vet. Schol. Vocem quædam qua incititia Librarii exciderat reposuimus ex conjectura, uti & medicinaliter excelsus pro medicinalis effectus quæ nihil erant. Quis miretur ejusmodi convicia homini Epicureo atque Pagano excidisse? Jure igitur Hemico Marcano Diaboli Organum videtur. Etiam Satyra Quinta hæc habet: Constat omnia miracula certa ratione fieri, de quibus Epicurei prudentissime disputant.

66 ¹ Profoundly skill'd, &c.] Analytic is a part of logic, that teaches to decline and construe reason, as grammar does words.

93 ¹ A Babelish, &c.] A confusion of languages, such as some of our modern Virtuosi used to express themselves in.

103 ² Or CERBERUS himself, &c.] Cerberus; a name which poets give a dog with three heads, which they feigned door-keeper of Hell, that caressed the unfortunate souls sent thither, and devoured them that would get out again; yet Hercules tied him up, and made him follow. This dog with three heads denotes the past, the present, and the time to come; which receive, and, as it were, devour all things. Hercules got the better of him, which shows that heroic actions are always victorious over time, because they are present in the memory of posterity.

115 ¹ That had the, &c.] Demosthenes, who is said to have had a defect in his pronunciation, which he cured by using to speak with little stones in his mouth.

120 ¹ Than Tycho Brahe, &c.] Tycho Brahe was an eminent Danish mathematician. Quer. in Collier's Dictionary, or elsewhere.

121 ¹ Whatever Sceptick, &c.] Sceptick. Pyrrho was the chief of the Sceptick Philosophers, and was at first first, as Apollodorus saith, a painter, then became the hearer of Driso, and at last the disciple of Athaxagoras, whom he followed into India, to see the Gymnosophists. He pretended that men did nothing but by custom; that there was neither honesty nor dishonesty, justice nor injustice, good nor evil. He was very solitary, lived to be ninety years old, was highly esteemed in his country, and created chief-priest. He lived in the time of Epicurus and Theophrastus, about the 120th Olympiad. His followers were called Pyrrhonians; besides which, they were named the Ephecticks and Aphoreticks, but more generally Scepticks. This sect made their chiefest good to consist in a sedateness of mind, exempt from all passions; in regulating their opinions, and moderating their passions, which they called Ataxia and Metriopatia; and in suspending their judgment in regard of good and evil, truth or falsehood, which they called Epecebi. Sextus Empiricus, who lived in the second century, under the emperor Antoninus Pius, writ ten books against the mathematicians or astrologers, and three of the Pyrrhonian opinion. The word is derived from the Greek εἰρησίζω, quod est, considerare, speculari.

143 ¹ He cou'd reduce, &c.] The old philosophers thought to extract notions out of natural things, as Chymists do spirits and essences; and, when they had refined them into the nicest subtilties, gave them as insignificant names as those operators do their extractions: But (as Seneca says) the subtiler things are rendered, they are but the nearer to nothing. So are all their definitions of things by acts the nearer to nonsense.

147 ^m Where Truth, &c.] Some authors have mistaken truth for a real thing, when it is nothing but a right method of putting those notions or images of things (in the understanding of man) into the same state and order that their originals hold in nature; and therefore Aristotle says Unumquodque sicut se habet secundum esse, ita se habet secundum veritatem. Met. l. ii.

148 ⁿ Like words congeal'd, &c] Some report that in Nova Zembla, and Greenland, mens' words are wont to be frozen in the air, and at the thaw may be heard.

151 *In School-Divinity as at li,
As o be that Hight, irresistible, &c*]

Here again is another alteration of three or four lines, as, I think, for the worse.

Some specific epithets were added to the title of some famous doctors, as Angelicus, Inestimabilis, Subtilis, &c. Vide Vossii Etymolog. Baulet Jugemens de Bayazans, & Possevin's Apparatus.

153 ^p *A Second THOMAS, or at once,
To name them all, another DUNCAN.*

Thomas Aquinas, a Dominican friar, was born in 1224, and studied at Cologne and Paris. He new modelled the school-divinity, and was therefore called the Angelical Doctor, and Eagle of Divines. The most illustrious persons of his time were ambitious of his friendship, and put a high value on his merits, so that they offered him bishopricks, which he refused with as much ardor as others seek after them. He died in the fiftieth year of his age, and was canonized by Pope John XII. We have his works in eighteen volumes, several times printed.

Johannes Duns Scotus was a very learned man, who lived about the end of the thirteenth and beginning of the fourteenth century. The English and Scotch strive which of them shall have the honour of his birth. The English say, he was born in Northumberland; the Scots alledge he was born at Duns, in the Mers, the neighbouring county to Northumberland, land, and hence was called Dunscotus. Moreri, Buchanan, and other Scotch historians, are of this opinion, and for proof cite his epitaph:

Scotia me genuit, Anglia suscepit, Gallia edocuit, Germania tenet.

He died at Cologne, Novem. 8th 1308. In the supplement to Dr. Cave's Historia Literaria, he is said to be extraordinary learned in physicks, metaphysicks, mathematics, and astronomy; that his fame was so great when at Oxford, that 30,000 scholars came thither to hear his lectures: that when at Paris, his arguments and authority carried it for the immaculate conception of the Blessed Virgin; so that they appointed a festival on that account, and would admit no scholars to degrees but such as were of this mind. He was a great opposer of Thomas Aquinas's doctrine; and, for being a very acute logician, was called Doctor Subtilis; which was the reason also, that an old punster always called him the Latby Doctor.

158 ⁴ As taught us, &c.] Sorbon was the first and most considerable college of the university of Paris, founded in the reign of St. Lewis, by Robert Sorbon, which name is sometimes given to the whole University of Paris, which was founded, about the year 1241, by Charlemaigne, at the persuasion of the learned Alcuinus, who was one of the first professors there, since which time it has been very famous: This college has been rebuilt with an extraordinary magnificence, at the charge of Cardinal Richlieu, and contains lodgings for thirty-six doctors, who are called the Society of Sorbon. Those which are received among them, before they have received their doctor's degree, are only said to be of the Hospitality of Sorbon. Claud. Hemeraus de Acad. Paris. Spöndan. in Annal.

173 ¹ He knew, &c.] There is nothing more ridiculous than the various opinions of authors about the

the seat of Paradise. Sir Walter Raleigh has taken a great deal of pains to collect them, in the beginning of his History of the World; where those, who are unsatisfied, may be fully informed.

180 ^b By a High-dutch, &c.] Goropius Becanus endeavours to prove that High-Dutch was the language that Adam and Eve spoke in Paradise.

181 ^c If either of, &c.] Adam and Eve being made, and not conceived and formed in the womb, had no navels; as some learned men have supposed, because they had no need of them.

182 ^d Who first made, &c.] Musick is said to be invented by Pythagoras, who first found out the proportion of notes from the sounds of hammers upon an anvil.

232 ^e Like MAHOMET's, &c.] Mahomet had a tame dove, that used to pick seeds out of his ear, that it might be thought to whisper and inspire him. His ass was so intimate with him, that the Mahometans believed it carried him to heaven, and stays there with him to bring him back again.

257 ^f *It was Monastick, and did grow
In holy Orders by strict Vow.*

He made a vow never to cut his beard until the Parliament had subdued the King; of which order of phanattick votaries there were many in those times.

281 ^g So learned TALIAHOTIUS, &c.] Taliacotius was an Italian surgeon, that found out a way to repair lost and decayed noses.

This Taliacotius was chief surgeon to the Great Duke of Tuscany, and wrote a treatise, De Curtis Membris, which he dedicates to his great master; wherein he not only declares the models of his wonderful operations in restoring of lost members, but gives you cuts of the very instruments and ligatures he made use of therein; from hence our author (cum poetica licentia) has taken his simile.

289 ² For as ÆNEAS, &c.] Æneas was the son of Anchises and Venus; a Trojan, who, after long travels, came into Italy, and, after the death of his father-in-law, Latinus, was made king of Latium, and reigned three years. His story is too long to insert here, and therefore I refer you to Virgil's Æneids. Troy being laid in ashes, he took his aged father Anchises upon his back, and rescued him from his enemies. But being too solicitous for his son and household gods, he lost his wife Creusa; which Mr. Dryden, in his excellent translation, thus expresseth:

*Haste, my dear father, 'tis no time to wait,
And load my shoulders with a willing freight.
Whate'er befalls, your life shall be my care;
One death, or one deliverance, we will share.
My hand shall lead our little son, and you,
My faithful comfort, shall our steps pursue.*

337 ^a — For ARTHUR, &c.] Who this Arthur was, and whether any ever reigned in Britain, has been doubted heretofore, and is by some to this very day. However, the history of him, which makes him one of the nine worthies of the world, is a subject sufficient for the poet to be pleasant upon.

359 ^b — Toledo trusty, &c.] The capital city of New Castile, in Spain, with an archbishopric and primacy. It was very famous, amongst other things, for tempering the best metal for swords, as Damascus was, and perhaps may be still.

389 ^c *But lest the Trade, as many more
Have lately done, &c.*

Oliver Cromwell and Colonel Pride had been both brewers.

433 ^d *That CÆSAR'S Horse, who, as Fame goes,
Had Corns upon his Feet and Toes.*

*Julius Cæsar had a horse with feet like a man's.
Utebatur equo insigni; pedibus prope humanis, & in modum digitorum ungulis fissis. Suet. in Jul. Cap. 61.*

467 ^e *The mighty Tyrian Queen, that gain'd
With subtle Shreds a Tract of Land.*

Dido, queen of Carthage, who bought as much land as she could compass with an ox's hide, which she cut into small thongs, and cheated the owner of so much ground as served her to build Carthage upon.

476 ^f As the bird, &c.] Aeneas, whom Virgil reports to use a golden bough for a pass to hell; and taylor's call that place hell where they put all they steal.

526 ^g As three, &c.] Read the great Geographical Dictionary, under that word.

530 ^h In Magick, &c.] Talisman is a device to destroy any sort of vermin, by casting their images in metal, in a precise minute, when the stars are perfectly inclined to do them all the mischief they can. This has been experienced by some modern Virtuosi upon rats, mice, and fleas, and found as (they affirm) to produce the effect with admirable success.

Raymund Lully interprets cabal, out of the Arabic, to signify Scientia superabundans; which his commentator, Cornelius Agrippa, by over-magnifying, has rendered a very superfluous foppery.

532 ⁱ As far as, &c.] The author of Magia Adamica endeavours to prove the learning of the ancient Magi to be derived from that knowledge which God himself taught Adam in Paradise before the fall.

535 *And much of Terra Incognita,
The intelligible World cou'd say.*

The intelligible world is a kind of Terra del Fuoco, or Psittacorum Regio, &c. discovered only by the philosophers; of which they talk, like parrots, what they do not understand.

538 ^k As learned, &c.] No nation in the world is more addicted to this occult philosophy than the Wild-Irish are, as appears by the whole practice of their lives; of which see Camden in his Description of Ireland.

539 ^l Or Sir AGRIPPA, &c.] They who would know more of Sir Cornelius Agrippa, here meant, may consult the Great Dictionary.

541 ^m He ANTHROPOSOPHUS and FLOUD,
And JACOB BEHMEN understood.

Antroposophus is only a compound Greek word, which signifies a man that is wise in the knowledge of men, and is used by some anonymous author to conceal his true name.

Dr. Floud was a sort of an English Rosy-crucian, whose works are extant, and as intelligible as those of Jacob Behmen.

545 ⁿ In ROSY-CRUCIAN Love as learned,
As he that Vere Adeptus earned.

The fraternity of the Rosy-crucians is very like the sect of the ancient Gnostici, who called themselves so from the excellent learning they pretended to, although they were really the most ridiculous sots of mankind.

Vere Adeptus is one that has commenced in their phanatick extravagance.

646 Thou that with Ale, & wiler Liquors,
Distill'st WITHERS, PRYN, and VICARS.

This Vicars was a man of as great interest and authority in the late reformation as Pryn or WITHERS, and as able a poet. He translated Purcell's Alcids into as horrible Tragedy, in earnest, as the French Scarcen did in bullique, and was only outdone in his way, by the politic author of Oceana.

714 ^P It's that are, &c] This speech is set down as it was delivered by the Knight, in his own words. But since it is below the gravity of heroic poetry to admit of humour, but all men are obliged to speak wisely alike, and too much of so extravagant & folly would become tedious and impertinent, the rest of his language have only his sense expressed in other words, unless in some few places, where his own words could not be so well avoided.

753 ^q In bloody, &c] Cynae Romanely signifies nothing in the world but a fight between dogs and hounds, though both the learned and ignorant agree that in such words very great knowledge is contained. And our Knight, as one, or both, of those, was of the same opinion.

758 ^r Of Force, &c] Another of the same kind, which, though it appear ever so learned and profound, means nothing else but the weeding of corn,

777 ^s *The Indians fought for the Tooth
Of th' Elephant and Monkey's Tooth*

The History of the White Elephant and the Monkey's Tooth, which the Indians adored, is written by Monsi le Blanc. This monkey's tooth was taken by the Portuguese from those that worshipped it; and though they offered a vast ransom for it, yet the Christians were persuaded by their priests rather to burn it. But as soon as the fire was kindled, all the people present were not able to endure the horrible stink that came from it, as if the fire had been made of the same ingredients with which seamen use to compose that kind of gunpowder which they call stinkards.

786 [The Rage, &c] Bout-feus is a French word, and therefore it were uncivil to suppose any English person (especially of Quality) ignorant of it, or so ill-bred as to need an exposition.

903 [Tis sung, &c] Mamaluks is the name of the militia of the Sultans of Egypt. It signified a servant or soldier. They were commonly captives taken from amongst the Christians, and instructed in military discipline, and did not marry. Their power was great; for, besides that the Sultans were chosen out of their body, they disposed of the most important offices of the kingdom. They were formidable about 200 years; till at last Selim, Sultan of the Turks, routed them, and killed their Sultan, near Aleppo, 1516, and so put an end to the empire of the Mamalukes, which had lasted 267 years. Paulus Joarius, &c.

No question but the rhyme to Mamaluke was meant Sin Samuel I. the, of whom in the preface.

913 [Honour is like, &c.] Our English proverbs are not impertinent to this purpose?

He that woos a Maid, must seldom come in her Sight :
But he that woos a Widow, must woo her Day and Night.
He that woos a Maid, must feign, lye, and flatter :
But he that woos Widow, must down with his Breecches and at her.

This proverb being somewhat immodest, Mr. Ray says he would not have inserted it in his collection, but that he met with it in a little book, intitled, the Quakers' Spiritual Court proclaimed; written by Nathaniel Smith, Student in Physic; wherein the author mentions it as counsel given him by Hilkiab Bedford, an eminent Quaker in London, who would have had him to have married a rich widow, in whose house he lodged. In case he could get her, this Nathaniel Smith had promised Hilkiab a chamber gratis. The whole narrative is worth the reading.

NOTES TO PART I. CANTO II.

47 * *That is to say, whether Tollutation,
as they do term't, or Succussion.*

Tollutation and Succussion are only Latin words for ambling and trotting; though I believe both were natural amongst the old Romans; since I never read they made use of the tramel, or any other art, to pace their horses.

60 * As Indian Britons, &c.] The American Indians call a great bird they have, with a white head, a penguin, which signifies the same thing in the British tongue; from whence (with other words of the same kind) some authors have endeavoured to prove, that the Americans are originally deived from the Britons.

65 * The dire, &c.] Pharfalia is a city of Thessaly, famous for the battle won by Julius Cæsar against Pompey the Great, in the neighbouring plains, in the 607th year of Rome, of which read Lucan's Pharfalia.

129 * Chiron, the, &c.] Chiron, a Centaur, son to Saturn and Phillyris, living in the mountains, where, being much given to hunting, he became very knowing in the virtues of plants, and one of the most famous physicians of his time. He imparted his skill to Æsculapius, and was afterwards Apollo's governor, until being wounded by Hercules, and desiring to die, Jupiter placed him in heaven, where he forms the sign of Sagittarius, or the Archer.

231 Though by, &c.] Promethean fire. Prometheus was the son of Iapetus, and brother of Atlas, concerning whom the poets have feigned, that having first formed men of the earth and water, he stole fire from heaven to put life into them; and that having thereby displeased Jupiter, he commanded Vulcan to tie him to mount Caucasus with iron chains, and that a vulture should prey upon his liver continually: but the truth of the story is, that Prometheus was an astrologer, and constant in observing the stars upon that mountain; and that, among other things, he found the art of making fire, either by the means of a flint, or by contracting the sun-beams in a glass. Bochart will have Magog, in the Scripture, to be the Prometheus of the Pagans.

He here and before sarcastically decides those who were great admirers of the sympathetic powder and weapon salve, which were in great repute in those days, and much promoted by the great Sir Kenelm Digby, who wrote a treatise ex professo on that subject; and, I believe, thought what he wrote to be true, which since has been almost exploded out of the world.

267 And 'mong, &c.] Cossacks are a people that live near Poland. This name was given them for their extraordinary nimbleness; for cosa, or loza, in the Polish tongue, signifies a goat. He that would know more of them, may read Le Laboureur and Tbuldenus.

The Story in Le Blau, of a bear that married a king's daughter, is no more strange than many others, in most travellers, that pity with allowance, for if they should write nothing but what is possible, or probable, they might appear to have lost their labour, and observed nothing but what they might have done as well at home.

383 ⁱ If you wou'd not suffer the stoutest Dame,
 To swear by HERCULES's Name)

The old Romans had particular oaths for men and women to swear by; and therefore Macrobius saith, Viri per Castorem non jurabant antiquitus, nec Mulieres per Herculem; Atque adeo juramentum erat tum mulieribus, quam viris commune, &c.

393 ^e As stout, &c.] Two formidable women at arms, in romances, that were cygelled into love by their gallants.

394 ^f Of GUNDIBERT, &c.] Gundibert is a feigned name, made use of by Sir William d'Avenant in his poem, the poem, &c.; wherein you may find also that of his mistress. This poem was designed by the author to be an imitation of the English Drama; it being divided into five books, as the other is into five acts; the Cantos to be parallel of the scenes, with this difference, that this is delivered narratively, the other dialoguewise. It was ushered into the world by a large preface, written by Mr. Hobbes, and by the pens of two of our best poets, viz. Mr. Waller and Mr. Cowley, which one would have thought might have proved a sufficient defence and protection against snarling critics. Notwithstanding which, four eminent wits of that age (two of which were Sir John Denham and Mr. Donne) published several copies of verses to Sir William's discredit, under this title, Certain Verses written by several of the Author's Friends, to be reprinted with the second Edition of Gundibert, in 8vo. Lond. 1653. These verses were as wittily answered by the author, under this title, The Incomparable Poem of Gundibert vindicated from the Wit Combat of four Esquiers, Clinias, Demetrius, Sancho, and Jack-Pudding; printed in 8vo. Lond. 1665. Vid. Langbain's Account of Dramatic Poets.

496 ¹ What OEsstrum, &c.] OEsstrum is not only a Greek word for madness, but signifies also a gad-bee or horse-fly, that torments cattle in the summer, and makes them run about as if they were mad.

Six Members Quarrel to espouse.*¹

The six Members were the Lord Kimbolton, Mr. P^r m. Mr. Hollis, Mr. Hampden, Sir Arthur Haslewig, and Mr. Stroud, whom the King ordered to be apprehended, and their papers seized; charging them of plotting with the Scots, and favouring the late tumults; but the House voted against the arrest of their persons or papers; whereupon the King having preferred articles against those Members, he went with his guard to the House to demand them; but they, having notice, withdrew.

The Convocation, in one of the short Parliaments, that ushered in the long one, (as dwarfs are wont to do knight-errants,) made an oath to be taken by the clergy for observing canonical obedience; in which they enjoined their brethren, out of the abundance of their consciences, to swear to articles with, &c.

652^o *Or the French League, in which Men vow'd
To fight to the last Drop of Blood.*

The Holy League in France, designed and made for the extirpation of the Protestant Religion, was the original, out of which the Solemn League and Covenant here was (with the difference only of circumstances) most faithfully transcribed. Nor did the success of both differ more than the intent and purpose; for after the destruction of vast numbers of people of all sorts, both ended with the murder of two Kings, whom they had both sworn to defend; and as our Covenanters swore every man, to run one before another in the way of Reformation, so did the French, in the Holy League, to fight to the last drop of blood.

She married Sichæus, who was the king's uncle, and very rich; wherefore he put him to death; and Dido soon after departed the kingdom. Poets say, Pygmalion was punished for the hatred he bore to women with the love he had to a statue.

THOMAS MOORE,

Gallus is a river in Phrygia, rising out of the mountains of Celene, and discharging itself into the river Sanger, the water of which is of that admirable quality, that being moderately drunk, it purges the brain, and cures madness, but largely drunk, it makes men frantick Pliny, Horatius

1123 ^c A learned divine, in King James's time, wrote a polemick work against the Pope, and gave it that unlucky nick name of The Pope's Bull bat!

1166 ^u Cornel Cravat, &c] Smectymnus was a club of five parliamentary holders forth, the characters of whose names and talents were by themselves expressed in that senseless and insignificant word. They wore handkerchiefs about their necks for a note of distinction (as the Officers of the Parliament-Army then did) which afterwards degenerated into carnal cravats. About the beginning of the Long Parliament, in the year 1641, these five wrote a book against Episcopacy and the Common Prayer, to which they all subscribed their names, being Stephen Marshall, Edmund Calamy, Thomas Tox, Matthew Newcomen, and William Spurston, and from thence they and their followers were called Smectymnians. They are remarkable for another pious book, which they wrote some time after that, intitled, The King's Cabinet unlocked, wherein all the chaste and endearing expressions, in the letters that passed betwixt his Majesty King Charles I and his Royal Consort, are by these painful labourers in the Devil's vineyard turned into burlesque and ridicule. Their books were answered with as much calmness, and genteelness of expression, and as much learning and honesty, by the Reverend Mr. Simonds, then a deprived clergyman, as there was stuff with malice, spleen, and sallying irreverencies.

1249 * *So Cardinal they say do gripe
At t'other End the new-made Pope.*

This relates to the story of Pope Joan, who was called John VIII Platina saith she wa of English extraction, but born at Mentz; who, having disguised herself like a man, travelled with her paramour to Athens, where she made such progress in learning, that coming to Rome, she met with few that could equal her, so that, on the death of Pope Leo IV she was chosen to succeed him, but being got with child by one of her domesticks, her travail came upon her between the Colossian Theatre and St Clement's, as she was going to the Lateran Church, and died upon the place, having sat two years, one month, and four days, and was buried there without any pomp. He owns that, for the shame of this, the Popes decline going through the street to the Lateran, and that, to avoid the like error, when any Pope is placed in the Porphyry Chair, his genitals are felt by the youngest deacon, through a hole made for that purpose, but he supposes the reason of that to be, to put him in mind that he is a man, and obnoxious to the necessities of nature; whence he will have that seat to be called, Sedes Stercoraria.

1262 To lead ye you & Vitiligation, &c.

Vitiligation is a word the Knight was passionately in love with, and never failed to use it upon all occasions; and therefore to omit it, when it fell in the way, had argued too great a neglect of his learning and parts; though it means no more than a perverse humour of wrangling.

1373 * More Disparata, &c.] Disparata are things separate and unlike, from the Latin word Dispara.

HUDIBRAS.

PART II.

CANTO I.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Knight, by damnable Magician,
Being cast illegally in Prison,
Lose brings his Action on the Case,
And lays it upon Hudibras
How he receives the Lady's Visit,
And cunningly solicits his Suite,
Which she defers, yet on Parole
Redeems him from th' enchanted Hole.

BUT now, t'observe a romantick method,
Let bloody steel a while be sheathed,
And all those harsh and rugged sounds
Of bastinadoes, cuts, and wounds,
Exchang'd to Love's more gentle stile, 5
To let our reader breathe a while ;
In which, that we may be as brief as
Is possible, by way of preface, .
It's not enough to make one strange, 9
That some men's fancies should ne'er change,
But make all people do and say
The same things all the self-same way ?

Some writers make all ladies purloin'd,
 And knights pursuing like a whirlwind :
 Others make all their knights, in fits 15
 Of jealousy, to lose their wits ;
 Till drawing blood o' th' dames, like witches,
 Th' are forthwith cur'd of their caprices.
 Some always thrive in their amours,
 By pulling plaisters off their sores ; 20
 As cripples do to get an alms,
 Just so do they, and win their dames.
 Some force whole regions, in despite
 O' geography, to change their site ;
 Make former times shake hands with latter, 25
 And that which was before come after.
 But those that write in rhyme, still make
 The one verse for the other's sake ;
 For, one for sense, and one for rhyme,
 I think's sufficient at one time, 30
 But we forget in what sad plight
 We whilom left the captiv'd Knight
 And pensive Squire, both bruise'd in body,
 And conjur'd into safe custody.
 Tir'd with dispute and speaking Latin, 35
 As well as basting, and bear-baiting,
 And desperate of any course,
 To free himself by wit or force,
 His only solace was, that now
 His dog-bolt fortune was so low, 40
 That either it must quickly end,
 Or turn about again, and mend ;
 In which he found th' event, no less
 Than other times, beside his guests.
 There is a tall long-sided dame, 45
 (But wond'rous light) ycleped Fame,

That, like a thin camelion, boards
 Herself on air, and eats her words :
 Upon her shoulders wings she wears 49
 Like hanging sleeves, lin'd through with ears,
 And eyes, and tongues, as poets list,
 Made good by deep mythologist.
 With these she through the welkin flies,
 And sometimes carries truth, oft lies ;
 With letters hung like eastern pigeons, 55
 And Mercuries of furthest regions ;
 Diurnals writ for regulation
 Of lying, to inform the nation ;
 And by their public use to bring down
 The rate of whetstones in the kingdom. 60
 About her neck a paquet-male,
 Fraught with advice, some fresh, some stale,
 Of men that walk'd when they were dead,
 And cows of monsters brought to bed ;
 Of hail-stones big as pullets eggs, 65
 And puppies whelp'd with twice two legs ;
 A blazing-star seen in the west,
 By six or seven men at least.
 Two trumpets she does sound at once,
 But both of clean contrary tones ; 70
 But whether both with the same wind,
 On one before, and one behind,
 We know not ; only this can tell,
 The one sounds vilely, th' other well ;
 And therefore vulgar authors name 75
 Th' one Good, the other Evil, Fame.
 This tattling gossip knew too well
 What mischief HUDIBRAS befell,
 And straight the spiteful tidings bears
 Of all to th' unkind widow's ears, 80

DEMOCRITUS ne'er laugh'd so loud
 To see bands carted through the crowd,
 Or funerals with stately pomp
 March slowly on in solemn dump,
 As she laugh'd out, until her back, 85
 As well as sides, was like to crack.
 She vow'd she would go see the fight,
 And visit the distressed Knight;
 To do the office of a neighbour,
 And be a gossip at his labour; 90
 And from his wooden jail, the stocks,
 To set at large his fetter-locks;
 And, by exchange, parole, or ransom,
 To free him from th' enchanted mansion.
 This b'ing resolv'd, she call'd for hood 95
 And usher, implements abroad
 Which ladies wear, beside a slender
 Young waiting damsel to attend her;
 All which appearing, on she went,
 To find the Knight in limbo pent, 100
 And 'twas not long before she found
 Him, and his stout Squire, in the pound;
 Both coupled in enchanted tether,
 By further leg behind together:
 For as he sat upon his rump, 105
 His head, like one in doleful dump,
 Between his knees, his hands apply'd
 Unto his ears on either side:
 And, by him, in another hole,
 Afflicted RALPHO, cheek by jowl. 110
 She came upon him in his wooden
 Magician's circle on the sudden,
 As Spirits do t' a conjurer,
 When in their dreadful shapes th' appear.

No sooner did the Knight perceive her, 115
 But straight he fell into a fever,
 Inflam'd all over with disgrace,
 To be seen by her in such a place ;
 Which made him hang his head, and scowl,
 And wink, and goggle, like an owl. 120

He felt his brains begin to swim,
 When thus the dame accosted him :
 This place (quoth she) they say's enchanted,
 And with delinquent spirits haunted,
 That here are ty'd in chains, and scourg'd, 125
 Until their guilty crimes be purg'd.

Look, there are two of them appear,
 Like persons I have seen somewhere.
 Some have mistaken blocks and posts
 For spectres, apparitions, ghosts, 130
 With saucer-eyes, and horns ; and some
 Have heard the Devil beat a drum :
 But if our eyes are not false glasses,
 That give a wrong account of faces,
 That beard and I should be acquainted, 135
 Before 'twas conjur'd and enchanted ;
 For though it be disfigur'd somewhat,
 As if 't had lately been in combat,
 It did belong to a worthy Knight,
 Howe'er this goblin is come by't. 140

When HUDIBRAS the Lady heard,
 Discourfing thus upon his beard,
 And fpeak with fuch refpect and honour,
 Both of the beard, and the beard's owner,
 He thought it beft to fet as good 145
 A face upon it as he could,
 And thus he fpoke : Lady, your bright
 And radiant eyes are in the right :

The beard's th' identic beard you knew,
 The same numerically true : 150
 Nor is it worn by fiend or elf,
 But its proprietor himself.

O, heavens! quoth she, can that be true?
 I do begin to fear 'tis you :
 Not by your individual whiskers, 155
 But by your dialect and discourse,
 That never spoke to man or beast
 In notions vulgarly express'd.

But what malignant star, alas!
 Has brought you both to this sad pass? 160

Quoth he, The fortune of the war,
 Which I am less afflicted for,
 Than to be seen with beard and face
 By you in such a homely case.

Quoth she, Those need not be ashamed 165
 For being honourably maim'd ;
 If he that is in battle conquer'd,
 Have any title to his own beard,
 Though yours be sorely lugg'd and torn, 169
 It does your visage more adorn [der'd,
 Than if 'twere prun'd, and starch'd, and lan-
 And cut square by the Russian standard.

A torn beard's like a tatter'd ensign,
 That's bravest which there are most rents in.
 That petticoat about your shoulders 175
 Does not so well become a souldier's ;
 And I'm afraid they are worse handled,
 Although i' th' rear; your beard the van led ;
 And those uneasy bruises make
 My heart for company to ake, 180
 To see so worshipful a friend
 I' th' pillory set, at the wrong end.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, This thing call'd pain
 Is (as the learned Sticks maintain)
 Not bad simpliciter, nor good, 185
 But merely as'tis understood.
 Sense is deceitful, and may feign,
 As well in counterfeiting pain
 As other gross phænomenas,
 In which it oft mistakes the case. 190
 But since th' immortal intellect
 (That's free from error and defect,
 Whose objects still persist the same)
 Is free from outward bruise or maim,
 Which nought external can expose 195
 To gross material bangs or blows,
 It follows, we can ne'er be sure,
 Whether we pain or not endure ;
 And just so far are sore and griev'd,
 As by the fancy is believ'd. 200
 Some have been wounded with conceit,
 And dy'd of meer opinion straight ;
 Others, though wounded sore in reason,
 Felt no contusion, nor discretion.
 A Saxon ^b Duke did grow so fat, 205
 That mice (as histories relate)
 Eat grots and labyrinths to dwell in
 His postick parts without his feeling :
 Then how is't possible a kick
 Should e'er reach that way to the quick ? 210
 Quoth she, I grant it is in vain
 For one that's basted to feel pain,
 Because the pangs his bones endure
 Contribute nothing to the cure :
 Yet honour hurt is wont to rage 215
 With pain no med'cine can assuage.

Quoth he, That honour's very squeamish
 That takes a basting for a blemish;
 For what's more honourable than scars,
 Or skin to tatters rent in wars? 220
 Some have been beaten till they know
 What wood a cudgel's of by th' blow;
 Some kick'd until they can feel whether
 A shoe be Spanish or neat's leather;
 And yet have met, after long running, 225
 With some whom they have taught that cunning.
 The furthest way about, t' o'ercome, [ning.
 In th' end does prove the nearest home.
 By laws of learned duellists,
 They that are bruised with wood or fists, 230
 And think one beating may for once
 Suffice, are cowards and pultrons:
 But if they dare engage t' a second,
 They're stout and gallant fellows reckon'd.

Th' old Romans freedom did bestow, 235
 Our princes worship, with a blow.
 King PYRRHUS cur'd his splenetick
 And testy courtiers with a kick.
 The NEGUS, when some mighty lord
 Or potentate's to be restor'd, 240
 And pardon'd for some great offence,
 With which he's willing to dispence,
 First has him laid upon his belly,
 Then beaten back and side t' a jelly;
 That done, he rises, humbly bows, 245
 And gives thanks for the princely blows;
 Departs not meanly proud, and boasting
 Of his magnificent rib-roasting.
 The beaten soldier proves most manful,
 That, like his sword, endures the anvil, 250

And justly's held more formidable,
 The more his valour's malleable :
 But he that fears a bastinado
 Will run away from his own shadow :
 And though I'm now in durance fast, 255
 By our own party basely cast,
 Ransom, exchange, parole refus'd,
 And worse than by the enemy us'd ;
 In close ^d catasta shut, past hope
 Of wit or valour to elope ; 260
 As beards the nearer that they tend
 To th' earth still grow more reverend ;
 And cannons shoot the higher pitches,
 The lower we let down their breeches ;
 I'll make this low dejected fate 265
 Advance me to a greater height.

Quoth she, Y'have almost made me in love
 With that which did my pity move.
 Great wits and valours, like great states, 269
 Do sometimes sink with their own weights :
 Th' extreams of glory and of shame,
 Like East and West, become the same ;
 No Indian Prince has to his palace
 More foll'wers than a thief to th' gallows.
 But if a beating seem so brave, 275
 What glories must a whipping have ?
 Such great atchievements cannot fail
 To cast salt on a woman's tail :
 For if I thought your nat'ral talent
 Of passive courage were so gallant, 280
 As you strain hard to have it thought,
 I could grow amorous, and dote.
 When HUDIBRAS this language heard,
 He prick'd up's ears, and strok'd his beard :

PART II. CANTO I.

133

Thought he, this is the lucky hour; 285
 Wines work when vines are in the flow'r;
 This crisis then I'll set my rest on,
 And put her boldly to the question.

Madam, what you wou'd seem to doubt,
 Shall be to all the world made out, 290
 How I've been drubb'd, and with what spirit
 And magnanimity I bear it;
 And if you doubt it to be true,
 I'll stake myself down against you:
 And if I fail in love or troth, 295
 Be you the winner, and take both.

Quoth she, I've heard old cunning flagers
 Say, fools for arguments use wagers;
 And though I prais'd your valour, yet
 I did not mean to baulk your wit; 300
 Which, if you have, you must needs know
 What I have told you before now,
 And you b' experiment have prov'd,
 cannot love where I'm belov'd.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, 'tis a caprich 305
 Beyond th' infliction of a witch;
 So cheats to play with those still aim
 That do not understand the game.
 Love in your heart as idly burns
 As fire in antique Roman urns, 310
 To warm the dead, and vainly light
 Those only that see nothing by't.
 Have you not power to entertain,
 And render love for love again;
 As no man can draw in his breath 315
 At once, and force out air beneath?
 Or do you love yourself so much,
 To bear all rivals else a grutch?

What fate can lay a greater curse
 Than you upon yourself would force ? 320
 For wedlock without love, some say,
 Is but a lock without a key.

It is a kind of rape to marry
 One that neglects, or cares not for ye :
 For what does make it ravishment, 325
 But b'ing against the mind's consent ?
 A rape that is the more inhuman
 For being acted by a woman.

Why are you fair, but to entice us
 To love you, that you may despise us ? 330
 But though you cannot love, you say,
 Out of your own fanatick way,
 Why should you not at least allow
 Those that love you to do so too ?
 For, as you fly me, and pursue 335
 Love more averse, so I do you ;
 And am by your own doctrine taught
 To practise what you call a fau't.

Quoth she, If what you say is true,
 You must fly me as I do you ; 340
 But 'tis not what we do, but say,
 In love and preaching, that must sway.

Quoth he, To bid me not to love,
 Is to forbid my pulse to move,
 My beard to grow, my ears to prick up, 345
 Or (when I'm in a fit) to hickup :
 Command me to piss out the moon,
 And 'twill as easily be done.

Love's power's too great to be withstood
 By feeble human flesh and blood. 350

'Twas he that brought upon his knees
 The hec't'ring, kill-cow HERCULES ;

Transform'd his leager-lion's skin ,
 T' a petticoat, and made him spin;
 Seiz'd on his club, and made it dwindle 355
 T' a feeble distaff, and a spindle.
 'Twas he that made emperors gallants
 To their own sisters and their aunts;
 Set popes and cardinals agog,
 To play with pages at leap-frog. 360
 'Twas he that gave our Senate purges,
 And flux'd the House of many a Bungefs;
 Made those that represent the nation
 Submit, and suffer amputation;
 And all the Grandees o' the Cabal 365
 Adjourn to tubs at Spring and Fall.
 He mounted Synod-Men, and rode 'em
 To Duty-Lane and Little Sodom;
 Made 'em curvet like Spanish jennets,
 And take the ring at Madam— 370
 'Twas he that made ' Saint FRANCIS do
 More than the Devil could tempt him to,
 In cold and frosty weather, grow
 Enamour'd of a wife of snow;
 And though she were of rigid temper, 375
 With melting flames accost and tempt her;
 Which after in enjoyment quenching,
 He hung a garland on his engine.
 Quoth she, If Love have these effects,
 Why is it not forbid our sex? 380
 Why is't not damn'd and interdicted,
 For diabolical and wicked?
 And sung, as out of tune, against,
 As Turk and Pope are by the Saints;
 I find I've greater reason for it, 385
 Than I believ'd before t' abhor it.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, These sad effects
 Spring from your Heathenish neglects
 Of Love's great pow'r, which he returns
 Upon yourselves with equal scorns; 390
 And those who worthy lovers slight,
 Plagues with prepos't'rous appetite.
 This made the beauteous ^f Queen of Crete
 To take a town-bull for her sweet,
 And from her greatness stoop so low, 395
 'To be the rival of a cow :
 Others to prostitute their great hearts,
 To be baboons and monkeys' sweet-hearts;
 Some with the Dev'l himself in league grow
 His representative a Negro. 400
 'Twas this made vestal-maids love-sick,
 And venture to be bury'd quick :
 Some by their fathers, and their brothers,
 To be made mistresses and mothers,
 'Tis this that proudest dames enamours 405
 On lackquies and valets des chambres ;
 Their haughty stomachs overcomes,
 And makes 'em stoop to dirty grooms ;
 To slight the world, and to disparage
 Claps, issue, infamy, and marriage. 410
 Quoth she, These judgments are severe,
 Yet such as I should rather bear,
 Than trust men with their oaths, or prove
 Their faith and secrecy in love.
 Says he, There is as weighty reason , 415
 For secrecy in love as treason.
 Love is a burglarer, a felon,
 That at the windore-eye does steal in
 To rob the heart, and with his prey
 Steals out again a closer way, 420

Which whosoever can discover,
 He's sure (as he deserves) to suffer.
 Love is a fire, that burns and sparkles
 In men as nat'rally as in charcoals,
 Which footy chymists stop in holes 425
 When out of wood they extract coles :
 So lovers should their passions choak,
 That, tho' they burn, they may not smok.
 'Tis like that sturdy thief that stile
 And dragg'd beast, backwards into's hole. 430
 So love does lovers, and us men
 Draws by the tails into his den,
 That no impression may discover,
 And trace t' his cave, the wary lo
 But if you doubt I should reveal 435
 What you entrust me under seal,
 I'll prove myself as close and virtuous
 As your own secretary & ALBERTUS.

Quoth she, I grant you may be close
 In hiding what your aims propose. 440
 Love-passions are like parables,
 By which men still mean something else.
 Though love be all the world's pretence,
 Money's the mythologick sence ;
 The real substance of the shadow, 445
 Which all address and courtship's made to.

I thought he, I understand your play,
 And how to quit you your own way :
 He that will win his dame, must do
 As love does when he bonds his bow ; 450
 With one hand thrust the lady from,
 And with the other pull her home.
 I grant, quoth he, wealth is a great
 Provocative to am'rous heat.

It is all philters, and high diet, 455
 'That makes love rampant, and to fly out:
 'Tis beauty always in the flower,
 That buds and blossoms at fourscore:
 'Tis that by which the sun and moon
 At their own weapons are out-done: 460
 That makes Knights Errant fall in trances,
 And lay about 'em in romances:
 'Tis virtue, wit, and worth, and all
 That men divine and sacred call:
 For what is worth in any thing, 465
 But so much money as 'twill bring?
 Or what, but riches, is there known,
 Which man can solely call his own;
 In which no creature goes his half,
 Unless it be to ^b squint and laugh? 470
 I do confess, with goods and land,
 I'd have a wife at second hand;
 And such you are. Nor is 't your person
 My stomach's fet so sharp and fierce on;
 But 'tis (your better part) your riches, 475
 That my enamour'd heart bewitches.
 Let me your fortune but possess,
 And settle your person how you please;
 Or make it o'er in trust to th^e Devil;
 You'll find me reasonable and civil. 480
 Quoth she, I like this plainness better
 Than false mock-passion, speech, or letter;
 Or any feat of quack or fawning,
 But hanging of yourself, or drowning.
 Your only way with me to break 485
 Your mind, is breaking of your neck:
 For as when merchants break, o'erthtown
 Like nine-pins, they strike others down,

So that would break my heart, which done,
My tempting fortune is ~~your~~ own. 490

These are but trifles: ev'ry lover
Will damn himself over and over,
And greater matters undertake
For a less worthy mistress sake:
Yet th' are the only ways to prove 495
Th' unfeign'd realities of love:
For he that hangs, or beats out's brains,
The Devil in him it he seigns.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, 'This way's too rough
For meer experiment and proof: 500

It is no juggling, trivial matter,
To swing i' th' air, or dounce in water,
And, like a water-witch, try love;
That's to destroy, and not to prove;
As if a man should be dissected 505
To find what part is disaffected.

Your better way is to make over,
In-trust, your fortune to your lover.
Trust is a trial; if it break,
'Tis not so desp'rate as a neck. 510

Beside, th' experiment's more certain;
Men venture necks to gain a fortune:
The soldier does it ev'ry day
(Eight to the week) for six-pence pay:
Your pettifoggers damn their souls, 515

To share with knaves in cheating fools:
And merchants, vent'ring through the main,
Slight pirates, rocks, and horns, for gain.
This is the way I advise you to:
Trust me, and see what I will do. 520

Quoth she, I should be loth to run
Myself all th' hazard, and you none;

Which must be done, unless some deed
 Of your's aforefaid, do preceed.
 Give but yourself one gentle swing 525
 For trial, and I'll cut the string :
 Or give that rev'rend head a maul,
 Or two, or three, against a wall,
 To shew you are a man of mettle,
 And I'll engage myself to settle. 530

Quoth he, My head's not made of brass,
 As Friar ⁱ BACON's noddle was ;
 Nor (like the ^k Indian's skull) so tough
 That, authors say, 'twas musket-proof,
 As yet on any new adventure, 535
 As it had need to be, to enter.
 You see what bangs it has endur'd,
 That would, before new feats, be cur'd.
 But if that's all you stand upon,
 Here, strike me luck, it shall be done. 540

Quoth she, The matter's not so far gone
 As you suppose : Two words t' a bargain :
 That may be done, and time enough,
 When you have given downright proof :
 And yet 'tis no fantastic pique 545
 I have to love, nor coy dislike :
 'Tis no implicit, nice aversion
 T' your conversation, mein, or person,
 But a just fear, lest you should prove
 False and perfidious in love : 550
 For if I thought you could be true,
 I could love twice as much as you.

Quoth he, My faith as adamantine,
 As chains of destiny, I'll maintain ;
 True as ^A POLLO ever spoke, 555
 Or^l oracle from heart of oak ;

And if you'll give my flame but vent,
 Now in close hugger-mugger pent,
 And shine upon me but benignly,
 With that one, and that other pigfney, 560
 The sun and day shall sooner part,
 Than love or you shake off my heart;
 The Sun, that shall no more dispence
 His own but your bright influence.
 I'll carve your name on barks of trees, 565
 With true-loves-knots and flourishes,
 That shall infuse eternal spring,
 And everlasting flourishing:
 Drink ev'ry letter on't in stunn,
 And make it brisk champaign become: 570
 Where-e'er you tread, your foot shall set
 The primrose and the violet:
 All spices, perfumes, and sweet powders,
 Shall borrow from your breath their odors:
 Nature her charter shall renew, 575
 And take all lives of things from you;
 The world depend upon your eye,
 And when you frown upon it, die:
 Only our loves shall still survive,
 New worlds and natures to out-live; 580
 And, like to heralds' moons, remain
 All crescents, without change or wane.
 Hold, hold, quoth she; no more of this,
 Sir Knight; you take your aim amiss:
 For you will find it a hard chapture 585
 To catch me with poetic rapture,
 In which your mastery of art
 Doth shew itself, and not your heart:
 Nor will you raise in mine combustion
 By dint of high heroic fustion. 590

She that with poetry is won,
 Is but a desk to write upon;
 And what men say of her, they mean
 No more than on the thing they lean.
 Some with Arabian spices strive 595
 'T' embalm her cruelly alive;
 Or season her, as French cooks use
 'Their haut-gouffs, bouillies, or ragouffs:
 Use her so barbarously ill,
 To grind her lips upon a mill, 600
 Until the facet doublet doth
 Fit their rhimes rather than her mouth:
 Her mouth compar'd to an oyster's, with
 A row of pearl in't—stead of teeth.
 Others make posies of her cheeks, 605
 Where red and whitest colours mix;
 In which the lilly, and the rose,
 For Indian lake and cerule goes.
 The sun and moon, by her bright eyes
 Eclips'd, and darken'd in the skies, 610
 Are but black patches, that she wears,
 Cut into suns, and moons, and stars:
 By which astrologers as well,
 As those in Heav'n above, can tell
 What strange events they do foreshow 615
 Unto her under-world below.
 Her voice, the music of the spheres,
 So loud, it deafens mortals ears;
 As wise philosophers have thought;
 And that's the cause we hear it not. 620
 This has been done by some, who those
 Th' ador'd in rhyme, would kick in prose;
 And in those ribbons would have hung
 — which melodiously they sung;

That have the hard fate to write best 625
 Of those still that deſeige it leaſt ;
 It matters not how falſe, or forc'd,
 So the beſt things be ſaid o' th' worſt :
 It goes for nothing when 'tis ſaid ;
 Only the arrow's drawn to th' head, 630
 Whether it be a ſwan or gooſe
 They level at : So ſhepherds uſe
 To ſet the ſame mark on the hip
 Both of their ſound and rotten ſheep :
 For wits, that carry low or wide, 635
 Muſt be aim'd higher, or beſide
 The mark, which elſe they ne'er come nigh
 But when they take their aim awry.
 But I do wonder you ſhould chuſe
 This way t' attack me with your Muſe, 640
 As one cut out to paſs your tricks on,
 With fulhams of poetic fiction :
 I rather hop'd I ſhould no more
 Hear from you o' th' gallanting ſcore :
 For hard dry-baſtings us'd to prove 645
 The readieſt remedies of love,
 Next a dry-diet : but if thoſe fail,
 Yet this uneaſy-loop-hold jail,
 In which ye are hamper'd by the fetlock,
 Cannot but put y' in mind of wedlock ; 650
 Wedlock, that's worſe than any hole here,
 If that may ſerve you for a cooler,
 T' allay your mettle, all agog
 Upon a wife, the heavi'r clog :
 Nor rather thank your gentler fate, 655
 That, for a bruiſ'd or broken pate,
 Has freed you from thoſe knobs that grow
 Much harder on the marry'd brow :

But if no dread can cool your courage,
 From vent'ring on that dragon, marriage, 660
 Yet give me quarter, and advance
 To nobler aims your puissance :
 Level at beauty and at wit ;
 The fairest mark is easiest hit.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, I'm beforehand 665
 In that already, with your command ;
 For where does beauty and high wit
 But in your constellation meet ?

Quoth she, What does a match imply,
 But likeness and equality ? 670
 I know you cannot think me fit
 To be th' yoke-fellow of your wit ;
 Nor take one of so mean deserts,
 To be the partner of your parts ;
 A grace, which, if I cou'd believe, 675
 I've not the conscience to receive.

That conscience, quoth HUDIBRAS,
 Is mis-inform'd : I'll state the case :
 A man may be a legal doner
 Of any thing whereof he's owner, 680
 And may confer it where he lists,
 I' th' judgment of all casuists :
 Then wit, and parts, and valour may
 Be ali'nated, and made away,
 By those that are proprietors, 685
 As I may give or sell my horse.

Quoth she, I grant the case is true
 And proper 'twixt your horse and you ;
 But whether I may take as well
 As you may give away or sell ? 690
 Buyers you know are bid beware ;
 And worse than thieves receivers are.

How shall I answer hue and cry,
 For a roan-gelding, twelve hands high,
 All spurr'd and switch'd, a lock on's hoof, 695
 A sorrel mane? Can I bring proof
 Where, when, by whom, and what y'were sold
 And in the open market toll'd for? [for,
 Or should I take you for a stray,
 You must be kept a year and day 700
 (Ere I can own you) here i' the pound,
 Where, if y' are sought, you may be found :
 And in the mean time I must pay
 For all your provender and hay.

Quoth he, It stands me much upon 705
 I' enervate this objection,
 And prove myself, by topic clear,
 No gelding, as you would infer.
 Loss of virility's averr'd
 To be the cause of loss of beard, 710
 That does (like embryo in the womb)
 Abortive on the chin become.
 This first a woman did invent,
 In envy of man's ornament;
 SEMIRAMIS, of Babylon, 715
 Who first of all cut men o' th' stone,
 To mar their beards, and laid foundation
 Of sow-geldering operation.
 Look on this beard, and tell me whether
 Eunuchs wear such, or geldings either? 720
 Next it appears I am no horse;
 That I can argue and discourse;
 Have but two legs, and ne'er a tail.
 Quoth she, That nothing will avail;
 For some philosophers, of late here, 725
 Write, men have four legs by nature,

And that 'tis custom makes them go
 Erroneously upon but two;
 As 'twas in Germany made good
 B' a boy that lost himself in a wood, 730
 And ° growing down t' a man, was wont
 With wolves upon all four to hunt.
 As for your reasons drawn from tails,
 We cannot say they're true or false,
 Till you explain yourself, and show 735
 B' experiment 'tis so or no.

Quoth he, If you'll join issue on't,
 I'll give you satisfactory account;
 So you will promise, if you lose,
 To settle all, and be my spouse. 740.

That never shall be done (quoth she)
 To one that wants a tail by me:
 For tails by nature sure were meant,
 As well as beards, for ornament: 744
 And though the vulgar count them homely,
 In men or beast they are so comely,
 So gentee, alamode, and handsome,
 I'll never marry man that wants one;
 And till you can demonstrate plain,
 You have one equal to your mane, 750
 I'll be torn piece-meal by a horse,
 Ere I'll take you for better or worse.
 The Prince of CAMBAY's daily food
 Is asp, and basilisk, and toad;
 Which makes him have so strong a breath, 755.
 Each night he stinks a queen to death;
 Yet I shall rather lie in's arms
 Than yours, on any other terms.

Quoth he, What nature can afford,
 I shall produce, upon my words. 760.

And if she ever gave that boon
 To man, I'll prove that I have one.
 I mean by postulate illation,
 When you shall offer just occasion:
 But since y' have yet deny'd to give 765
 My heart, your pris'ner, a reprieve,
 But made it sink down to my heel,
 Let that at least your pity feel;
 And, for the sufferings of your martyr,
 Give its poor entertainer quarter; 770
 And, by discharge or main-prize, grant
 Deliv'ry from this base restraint.
 Quoth she, I grieve to see your leg
 Stuck in a hole here like a peg;
 And if I knew which way to do't 775
 (Your honour safe) I'd let you out.
 That Dames by jail-delivery
 Of Errant-Knights have been set free,
 When by enchantment they have been,
 And sometimes for it too, laid in, 780
 Is that which Knights are bound to do
 By order, oath, and honour too:
 For what are they renown'd, and famous else,
 But aiding of distressed damosels?
 But for a Lady, no ways errant, 785
 To free a Knight, we have no warrant
 In any authenthical romance,
 Or classic author, yet of France;
 And I'd be loth to have you break
 An ancient custom for a freak, 790
 Or innovation introduce
 In place of things of antique use;
 To free your heels by any course,
 That might b' unwholesome to your spurs;

Which, if I should consent unto, 795
 It is not in my pow'r to do,
 For 'tis a service must be done ye
 With solemn previous ceremony,
 Which always has been us'd t' untie
 The charms of those who here do lie : 800
 For as the ancients heretofore
 To Honour's Temple had no doer,
 But that which thorough Virtue's lay,
 So from this dungeon there's no way
 To honour'd freedom, but by passing 805
 That other virtuous school of lashing,
 Where Knights are kept in narrow lists,
 With wooden lockets 'bout their wrists;
 In which they for a while are tenants,
 And for their Ladies suffer penance : 810
 Whipping, that's Virtue's governess,
 Tutress of arts and sciences;
 That mends the gross mistakes of Nature,
 And puts new life into dull matter;
 That lays foundation for renown, 815
 And all the honours of the gown.
 This suffer'd, they are set at large,
 And freed with honourable discharge.
 Then in their robes the penitentials
 Are straight presented with credentials, 820
 And in their way attended on
 By magistrates of ev'ry town;
 And, all respect and charges paid,
 They're to their ancient seats convey'd.
 Now if you'll venture, for my sake, 825
 To try the toughness of your back,
 And suffer (as the rest have done)
 The laying of a whipping on :

(And may you prosper in your suit,
 As you with equal vigour do't,) 830
 I here engage myself to loose ye,
 And free your heels from Caperdewie.
 But since our sex's modesty
 Will not allow I should be by,
 Bring me, on oath, a fair account, 835
 And honour too, when you have done't,
 And I'll admit you to the place
 You claim as due in my good grace.
 If matrimony and hanging go
 By dest'ny, why not whipping too? 840
 What med'cine else can cure the fits
 Of lovers when they lose their wits?
 Love is a boy by poets stil'd;
 Then spare the rod, and spoil the child.
 A Persian emp'ror whip'd his grannam 845
 The sea, his mother VENUS came on;
 And hence some rev'rend men approve
 Of rosemary in making love.
 As skilful coopers hoop their tubs
 With Lydian and with Phrygian dubs, 850
 Why may not whipping have as good
 A grace, perform'd in time and mood,
 With comely movement, and by art,
 Raise passion in a lady's heart?
 It is an easier way to make 855
 Love by, than that which many take.
 Who would not rather suffer whipping,
 Than swallow toasts of bits of ribbon?
 Make wicked verses, treats, and faces,
 And spell names over with beer-glasses? 860
 Be under vows to hang and die
 Love's sacrifice, and all a lie?

With china-oranges, and tarts,
 And whining plays, & fly baits for hearts,
 Bribe chamber muds with love and money,
 To break no roguish jests upon ye, 866
 For lilies linn'd on cheeks, and roses,
 With painted perfumes, hazard noses?
 Or, vent'ring to be brisk and wanton,
 To penance in a paper lanthorn? 870
 All this you may compound for now,
 By suffering what I offer you,
 Which is no more than has been done
 By Knights for Ladies long ago—
 Did not the great LA MANCHA do so 875
 For the INIANTA DEL LOBO?
 Did not th' illustrious Bissi make
 Himself a slave for Mistle's sake?
 And with bull's pizzle, for her love,
 Was taw'd as gentle as a glove? 880
 Was not young FIORIO sent (to cool
 His flame for BIANCAFIORIL) to school,
 Where pedant made his p'ithic bum
 For her sake suffer martyrdom?
 Did not a certain lady whip 885
 Of late her husband's own Lookship?
 And though a grandee of the House,
 Caw'd him with fundamental blows;
 Ty'd him stark naked to a bed-post, 889
 And fir'd his hide, as if th' had rid post,
 And after, in the sessions-court,
 Where whipping's judg'd, had honour for't
 This swear you will perform, and then
 I'll set you from th' enchanted den,
 And the magician's circle clear. 895
 Quoth he, I do profess and swear,

And will perform what you enjoin,
Or may I never see you mine.

Amen, (quoth she ;) then turn'd about,
And bid her squire let him out. 900
But ere an artist could be found

T' undo the charms another bound,
The sun grew low, and left the skies,
Put down (some write) by ladies eyes:
The moon pull'd off her veil of light, 905
That hides her face by day from sight,
(Mysterious veil, of brightness made,
That's both her lustre and her shade,)

And in the lanthorn of the night
With shining horns hung out her light; 910
For darkness is the proper sphere,

Where all false glories use t' appear,
The twinkling stars began to muster,
And glitter with their borrow'd lustre,
While sleep the weary'd world reliev'd, 915
By counterfeiting death reviv'd.

His whipping penance till the morn
Our vot'ry thought it best t' adjourn,
And not to carry on a work

Of such importance in the dark, 920
With erring haste, but rather stay,
And do't in th' open face of day;
And in the mean time go in quest
Of next retreat to take his rest,

PART II. CANTO II.

THE ARGUMENT

The Knight and Squire, in hot dispute,
Within an ace of falling out,
Are parted with a sudden fright
Of st a g alarm, and stranger sights
With wh ch adventuring to fickle,
They re sent away in noisy p eele.

'TIS strange how some men ' tempers suit
(Like bawd and brandy) with dispute,
That for their own opinions stand fast
Only to have them claw'd and canva't;
That keep their consciences in case, 5
As fiddlers do their crowds and bases,
Ne'er to be us'd, but when the'yre bent
To play a fit for argument;
Make true and false, unjust and just,
Of no use but to be discuss; 10
Dispute, and set a paradox
Like a strait boot upon the straws,
And stretch it more unmercifully [TULLY.
Than HELMONT, MONTAIGN, WHIFF, or
So th' ancient Stoicks, in their porch, 15
With fierce dispute maintain'd their church,
Beat out their brains in fight and study,
To prove that Virtue is a Body;
That ° Bonum is an Animal,
Made good with stout polemic brawl; 20
In which some hundreds on the place
Were slain outright, and many a face

Retrench'd of nose, and eyes, and beard,
 To maintain what their sect averr'd; 24
 All which the Knight and Squire, in wrath,
 Had like t' have suffer'd for their faith,
 Each striving to make good his own,
 As by the sequel shall be shown.

The Sun had long since, in the lap
 Of THETIS, taken out his nap, 35
 And, like a lobster boil'd, the morn
 From black to red began to turn,
 When HUDIBRAS, whom thoughts and aking,
 'Twixt sleeping kept all night and waking,
 Began to rub his drowsy eyes, 35
 And from his couch prepar'd to rise,
 Resolving to dispatch the deed
 He vow'd to do with trusty speed.
 But first, with knocking loud, and bawling,
 He rous'd the Squire, in truckle lolling; 40
 And, after many circumstances,
 Which vulgar authors, in romances,
 Do use to spend their time and wits on,
 To make impertinent description,
 They got (with much ado) to horse, 45
 And to the Castle bent their course,
 In which he to the Dame before
 To suffer whipping duly swore;
 Where now arriv'd, and half unharneft,
 To carry on the work in earnest, 50
 He stopp'd, and paus'd upon the sudden,
 And with a serious forehead plodding,
 Sprung a new scruple in his head,
 Which first he scratch'd, and after said—
 Whether it be direct infringing
 An oath, if I should wave this swinging, 55

And what I've sworn to bear, forbear,
 And so b' equivocation swear;
 Or whether 't be a lesser sin
 To be forsworn than act the thing, 60
 Are deep and subtle points, which must,
 T' inform my conscience, be discuss;
 In which to err a tittle may
 To errors infinite make way;
 And therefore I desire to know 65
 Thy judgment e're we further go.
 Quoth Ralpho, Since you do injoin 't,
 I shall enlarge upon the point;
 And, for my own part, do not doubt
 Th' affirmative may be made out. 70
 But first, to state the case aright,
 For best advantage of our light,
 And thus 'tis: Whether 't be a sin
 To claw and curry your own skin,
 Greater or less, than to forbear, 75
 And that you are forsworn, forswear.
 But first, o' th' first: The inward man,
 And outward, like a clan and clan,
 Have always been at daggers-drawing,
 And one another clapper-clawing. 80
 Not that they really cuff, or fence,
 But in a Spiritual Mystic Sense;
 Which to mistake, and make 'em squabble,
 In literal fray's abominable.
 'Tis heathenish, in frequent use 85
 With Pagans and apostate Jews,
 To offer sacrifice of bridewells,
 Like modern Indians to their idols;
 And ungril Christians of our times,
 That expiate less with greater crimes, 90

And call the foul abomination,
Contrition and mortification.
Is't not enough we're bruus'd and kicked
With sinful members of the wicked,
Our vessels, that are sanctify'd, 95
Prophan'd and curry'd back and side,
But we must claw ourselves with shameful
And heathen stripes, by their example;
Which (were there nothing to forbid it)
Is impious because they did it? 100
This, therefore, may be justly reckon'd
A heinous sin. Now to the second:
That Saints may claim a dispensation
To swear and forswear, on occasion,
I doubt not but it will appear 105
With pregnant light: the point is clear.
Oaths are but words, and words but wind;
Too feeble implements to bind;
And hold with deeds proportion so
As shadows to a substance do. 110
Then when they strive for place, 'tis fit
The weaker vessel should submit.
Although your Church be opposite
To ours as Black-Friars are to White,
In rule and order, yet I grant, 115
You are a Reformado Saint;
And what the Saints do claim as due,
You may pretend a title to:
But Saints whom oaths and vows oblige,
Know little of their privilege; 120
Further (I mean) than carrying on
Some self-advantage of their own:
For if the Dev'l, to serve his turn,
Can tell truth, why the Saints should scorn,

When it serves theirs, to swear and lye ; 125
 I think the's little reason why :
 Else h' has a greater pow'r than they,
 Which 't were impiety to say.
 W'are not commanded to forbear
 Indefinitely at all to swear ; 130
 But to swear idly, and in vain,
 Without self-interest or gain :
 For breaking of an oath, and lying,
 Is but a kind of self-denying ;
 A Saint-like virtue ; and from hence 135
 Some have broke oaths by Providence ;
 Some, to the glory of the Lord,
 Perjur'd themselves, and broke their word ;
 And this the constant rule and practice
 Of all our late Apostles acts is. 140
 Was not the Cause at first begun
 With perjury, and carried on ?
 Was there an oath the Godly took,
 But in due time and place they broke ?
 Did we not bring our oaths in first, 145
 Before our plate, to have them burst,
 And cast in fitter models for
 The present use of Church and War ?
 Did not our Worthies of the House,
 Before they broke the peace, break vows ? 150
 For having freed us first from both
 Th' Allegiance and Supremacy Oath,
 Did they not next compel the Nation
 To take and break the Protestation ?
 To swear, and after to recant 155
 Th' solemn League and Covenant ?
 To take th' Engagement, and disclaim it,
 Enforc'd by those who first did frame it ?

Did they not swear, at first, to fight
 For the KING's Safety and his Right, 160
 And after march'd to find him out,
 And charg'd him home with horse and foot;
 But yet still had the confidence
 To swear it was in his defence?
 Did they not swear to live and die 165
 With ESSEX, and straight laid him by?
 If that were all, for some have swore
 As false as they, if th' did no more.
 Did they not swear to maintain Law,
 In which that swearing made a flaw? 170
 For Protestant Religion vow,
 That did that vowing disallow?
 For Privilege of Parliament,
 In which that swearing made a rent?
 And since, of all the three, not one 175
 Is left in being, 'tis well known.
 Did they not swear, in express words,
 To prop and back the House of Lords,
 And after turn'd out the whole House-full
 Of Peers, as dang'rous and unusefull? 180
 So CROMWELL, with deep oaths and vows,
 Swore all the Commons out o' th' House;
 Vow'd that the red-coats would disband,
 Ay, marry wou'd they, at their command;
 And troll'd them on, and swore, and swore,
 Till th' army turn'd them out of door. 186
 This tells us plainly what they thought,
 That oaths and swearing go for nought;
 And that by them th' were only meant
 To serve for an expedient. 193
 What was the Public Faith found out for,
 But to slur men of what they fought for?

The Public Faith, which ev'ry one
 Is bound t' observe, yet kept by none;
 And if that go for nothing, why 195
 Should Private Faith have such a tye?
 Oaths were not purpos'd, more than law,
 To keep the good and just in awe,
 But to confine the bad and sinful,
 Like moral cattle, in a pinfold. 200
 A Saint's of th' Heav'nly Realm a Peer;
 And as no Peer is bound to swear,
 But on the Gospel of his Honour,
 Of which he may dispose as owner,
 It follows, though the thing be forgery, 205
 And false th' affirm, it is no perjury,
 But a mere ceremony, and a breach
 Of nothing but a form of speech;
 And goes for no more when 'tis took,
 Than mere saluting of the book. 210
 Suppose the Scriptures are of force,
 They're but commissions of course,
 And Saints have freedom to digress,
 And vary from 'em, as they please;
 Or self-interpret them, by private 215
 Instructions, to all aims they drive at.
 Then why should we ourselves abridge
 And curtail our own priviledge?
 Quakers (that, like to lanthorns, bear
 Their light within 'em) will not swear: 220
 Their gospel is an accident,
 By which they construe conscience,
 And hold no sin so deeply red,
 As 't of breaking Priscian's head;
 (The head and founder of their order, 225
 That stirring Hat's held worse than murder.)

These thinking th' are oblig'd to troth
 In swearing, will not take an oath:
 Like mules, who, if th' have not their will
 To keep their own pace, stand stock-still: 230
 But they are weak, and little know
 What free-born consciences may do.

'Tis the temptation of the Devil
 That makes all human actions evil:
 For Saints may do the same things by 235
 The Spirit, in sincerity,

Which other men are tempted to,
 And at the Devil's instance do;
 And yet the actions be contrary,
 Just as the Saints and Wicked vary. 240

For as on land there is no beast,
 But in some fish at sea's express,
 So in the Wicked there's no vice,
 Of which the Saints have not a spice;
 And yet that thing that's pious in 245
 The one, in th' other is a sin.

Is't not ridiculous, and nonsense,
 A Saint should be a slave to conscience,
 That ought to be above such fancies,
 As far as above ordinances? 250

She's of the wicked, as I guess,
 B' her looks, her language, and her dress:
 And though, like constables, we search,
 For false wares one another's Church,
 Yet all of us hold this for true, 255
 No Faith is to the wicked due;
 For truth is precious and divine;
 Too rich a pearl for carnal swine.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, All this is true
 Yet 'tis not fit that all men knew 260

Those mysteries and revelations,
 And therefore topical evasions,
 Of subtle turns and shifts of sense,
 Serve best with th' wicked for pretence,
 Such as the learned Jesuits use, 265
 And Presbyterians for excuse
 Against the Protestants, when th' happen
 To find their Churches taken napping
 As thus. A breach of oath is duple,
 And either way admits a scruple, 270
 And may be, ex parte of the maker
 More criminal than th' injur'd taker,
 For he that swears too far a vow,
 Will break it, like an o'er-bent bow
 And he that made, and forc'd it, broke it, 275
 Not he that for convenience took it.
 A broken oath is, quatenus oath,
 As sound t' all purposes of troth,
 As broken laws are ne'er the worse;
 Nay, till th' are broken have no force. 280
 What's justice to a man, or laws,
 That never comes within their claws?
 They have no pow'r, but to admonish;
 Cannot controul, coerce, or punish,
 Until they're broken, and then touch 285
 Those only that do make 'em such.
 Beside, no engagement is allow'd
 By men in prison made for good;
 For when they're set at liberty,
 They're from th' engagement too set free 290
 The rabbins write, when any Jew
 Had made to God, or man, a vow,
 Which afterward he found untoward,
 And stubborn to be kept, or too hard,

Any three other Jews o' th' nation 295
 Might free him from th' obligation:
 And have not two Saints pow'r to use
 A greater privilege than three Jews?
 The court of conscience, which in man
 Should be supreme and sovereign, 300
 Is't fit should be subordinate
 To ev'ry petty count i' th' state,
 And have less power than the lesser,
 To deal with perjury at pleasure?
 Have its proceedings disallow'd, or 305
 Allow'd, at fancy of Pyc-Powder?
 Tell all it does, or does not know,
 For swearing ex officio?
 Be forc'd to impeach a broken hedge,
 And pigs unring'd at Vis. Franc. Pledge? 310
 Discover thieves, and bawds, recusants,
 Priests, witches, eves-droppers, and nuisance;
 Tell who did play at games unlawful,
 And who fill'd pots of ale but half-full;
 And have no pow'r at all, nor shift, 315
 To help itself at a dead list?
 Why should not conscience have vacation
 As well as other courts o' th' nation;
 Have equal pow'r to adjourn,
 Appoint appearance and return; 320
 And make as nice distinction serve
 To split a case, as those that carve,
 Invoking cuckolds' names, hit joints;
 Why should not tricks as slight do points?
 Is not th' High-Court of Justice sworn 325
 To judge that law that serves their turn,
 Make their own jealousies high-treason
 And fix 'm whomso'er they please on?

Cannot the learned counsel there
 Make laws in any shape appear? 330
 Mould 'em as witches do their clay,
 When they make pictures to destroy?
 And vox 'em into any form
 That fits their purpose to do harm?
 Rack 'em until they do confess, 335
 Impeach of treason whom they please,
 And most perfidiously condemn
 Those that engag'd their lives for them?
 And yet do nothing in their own sense,
 But what they ought by oath and conscience?
 Can they not juggle, and, with slight 340
 Conveyance, play with wrong and right;
 And sell their blasts of wind as dear
 As Lapland witches bottled air?
 Will not fear, favour, bribe and grudge, 345
 The same case sev'ral ways adjudge?
 As seamen, with the self-same gale,
 Will sev'ral different courses sail;
 As when the sea breaks o'er its bounds,
 And overflows the level grounds, 350
 Those banks and damms, that, like a screen,
 Did keep it out, now keep it in:
 So when tyrannical usurpation
 Invades the freedom of a nation,
 The laws o' th' land, that were intended 355
 To keep it out, are made defend it.
 Does not in chanc'ry ev'ry-man swear
 What makes best for him in his answer?
 Is not the winding up witnesses
 And nicking more than half the bus'ness? 360
 For witnesses, like watches, go
 Just as they're set, too fast or slow;

And where in conscience they're strait-lac'd,
 'Tis ten to one that side is cast.
 Do not your juries give their verdict 365
 As if they felt the cause, not heard it?
 And as they please, make matter of fact
 Run all on one side, as they're pack't?
 Nature has made man's breast no windores,
 To publish what he does within dores, 370
 Nor what dark secrets there inhabit,
 Unless his own rash folly blab it.
 If oaths can do a man no good
 In his own bus'ness, why they shou'd
 In other matters do him hurt, 375
 I think there's little reason for't.
 He that imposes an oath, makes it,
 Not he that for convenience takes it:
 Then how can any man be said
 To break an oath he never made? 380
 These reasons may, perhaps, look odly
 To th' Wicked, though they evince the Godly;
 But if they will not serve to clear
 My honour, I am ne'er the near.
 Honour is like that glassy bubble 385
 That finds philosophers such trouble,
 Whose least part crack'd, the whole does fly,
 And wits are crack'd to find out why.
 Quoth RALPHO, Honour's but a word
 To swear by only in a Lord: 390
 In other men 'tis but a huff,
 To vapour with instead of proof;
 That, like a wen, looks big and swells,
 Is senseless, and just nothing else.

Let it (quoth he) be what it will, 395
 It has the world's opinion still.

But as men are not wise that run
 The slightest hazard they may shun,
 There may a medium be found out
 To clear to all the world the doubt; 400
 And that is, if a man may do't,
 By proxy whipt, or substitute.

Though nice and dark the point appear,
 (Quoth RALPH) it may hold up and clear.
 That sinners may supply the place 405
 Of suff'ring Saints is a plain case.

Justice gives sentence many times
 On one man for another's crimes.
 Our brethren of NEW ENGLAND use
 Choice malefactors to excuse, 410

And hang the guiltless in their stead,
 Of whom the Churches have less need;
 As lately't happen'd : In a town
 There liv'd a r cobbler, and but one,
 That out of doctrine could cut use, 415
 And mend mens' lives as well as shoes.

This precious brother having slain,
 In times of peace, an Indian,
 (Not out of malice, but mere zeal,
 Because he was an Infidel,) 420

The mighty TOTTIPOTTIMOY
 Sent to our elders an envoy,
 Complaining sorely of the breach
 Of league held forth by brother Patch
 Against the articles in force 425

Between both Churches, his and ours;
 For which he crav'd the Saints to render
 Into his hands or hang th' offender :
 But they maturely having weigh'd,
 They had no more but him o' th' trade, 430

(A man that serv'd them in a double Capacity, to teach and colble,)
Resolv'd to spare him; yet, to do
The Indian Hoghgan Moghgan too
Impartial justice, in his stead did 435
Hang an old Weaver, that was Led-rid.
Then wherefore may not you be skip'd,
And in your room another whip'd?
For all Philosophers, but the Sceptick,
Hold whipping may be sympathetick. 440

It is enough, quoth HUDIBRAS,
Thou hast resolv'd and clear'd the case;
And canst, in conscience, not refuse
From thy own doctrine to raise use.
I know thou wilt not (for my sake) 445
Be tender-conscienc'd of thy back.
Then strip thee of thy carnal jerking,
And give thy outward-fellow a jerking;
For when thy vessel is new hoop'd,
All leaks of sinning will be stop'd. 450

Quoth RALPHO, You mistake the matter;
For in all scruples of this nature,
No man includes himself, nor turns
The point upon his own concerns.
As no man of his own self catches 455
The itch, or amorous French aches;
So no man does himself convince,
By his own doctrine, of his sins:
And though all cry down self, none means
His ownself in a literal sense. 460
Beside, it is not only foppish,
But vile, idolatrous and Popish,
For one man, out of his own skin,
To frisk and whip another's sin;

As pedants out of school-boys' breeches 465
Do claw and curry their own itches.

But in this case it's prophane,
And sinful too, because in vain:
For we must take our oaths upon it,
You did the deed, when I have done it. 470

Quoth HUDIBRAS, That's answer'd soon:
Give us the whip, we'll lay it on.

Quoth RALPHO, That we may swear true,
'Twere properer that I whip'd you:
For when with your consent 'tis done, 475
The act is really your own.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, It is in vain
(I see) to argue 'gainst the grain;
Or, like the stars, incline men to
What they're averse themselves to do: 480
For when disputes are weary'd out,
'Tis interest still resolves the doubt:
But since no reason can confute ye,
I'll try to force you to your duty;
For so it is, how'er you mince it; 485
As e're we part, I shall evince it;
And curry (if you stand out) whether
You will or no, your stubborn leather.
Canst thou refuse to bear thy part
I' th' publick work, base as thou art? 490
To higgie thus for a few blows,
To gain thy Knight an opulent spouse;
Whose wealth his bowels yearn to purchase,
Merely for th' interest of the Churches;
And when he has it in his claws, 495
Will not be hide-bound to the Cause?
Shalt thou find him a Curmudgin,
If thou dispatch it without grudging.

If not, resolve, before we go,
 That you and I must pull a crow. 500
 Y' had best (quoth RALPHO) as the ancients
 Say wisely, Have a care o' th' main chance,
 And look before you ere you leap;
 For as you sow, y' are like to reap:
 And were y' as good as George a Green, 505
 I shall make bold to turn agen:
 Nor am I doubtful of the issue
 In a just quarrel, and mine is so.
 Is't fitting for a man of honour
 To whip the Saints, like Bishop Bonner? 510
 A Knight t' usurp the beadle's office,
 For which y' are like to raise brave trophies.
 But I advise you (not for fear,
 But for your own sake) to forbear;
 And for the Churches, which may chance,
 From hence, to spring a variance; 516
 And raise among themselves new scruples,
 Whom common danger hardly couples.
 Remember how, in arms and politicks,
 We still have worsted all your holy tricks; 520
 Trepann'd your party with intrigue,
 And took your grandees down a peg;
 New modell'd th' army, and cashier'd
 All that to legion SMEC adher'd;
 Made a meer utensil o' your Church, 525
 And after left it in the lurch;
 A scaffold to build up our own,
 And, when w' had done with't, pull'd it down;
 Capoch'd your Rabbins of the Synod, 529
 And snap'd their Canons with a why-not;
 (Grave Synod Men, that were rever'd
 For solid face and depth of beard;)

Their classic model prov'd a maggot,
 Their directory an Indian Pagod;
 And down'd their discipline like a kitten, 535
 On which they'd been so long a sitting;
 Decry'd it as a holy cheat,
 Grown out of date, and obsolete;
 And all the Saints of the first galls,
 As casting foles of Balaam's ass. 540

At this the Knight grew high in chafe,
 And staring furiously on RALPH;
 He trembled, and look pale with fire;
 Like ashes first, then red as fire.
 Have I (quoth he) been ta'n in fight, 545
 And for so many moons lain by't,
 And, when all other means did fail,
 Have been exchang'd for tubs of ale?
 Not but they thought me worth a ransom,
 Much more consid'able and handsome, 550
 But for their own sakes, and for fear
 They were not safe when I was there;
 Now to be baffled by a scoundrel,
 An upstart scél'ry, and a mungrel;
 Such as breed out of peccant humours, 555
 Of our own Church, like wens or tumours,
 And, like a maggot in a sore,
 Wou'd that which gave it life devour:
 It never shall be done or said:
 With that he seiz'd upon his blade: 560
 And RALPH too, as quick and bold,
 Upon his basket-hilt laid hold,
 With equal readiness prepar'd
 To draw, and stand upon his guard;
 When both were parted on the sudden, 565
 With hideous clamour, and a loud one,

As if all sorts of noise had been Contracted into one loud din;
 Or that some member to be chosen,
 Had got the odds above a thousand; 570
 And, by the greatness of its noise,
 Prov'd fittest for his country's choice.
 This strange surprisal put the Knight
 And wrathful Squire into a fright; 574
 And though they stood prepar'd, with fatal
 Impetuous rancour to join battel,
 Both thought it was the wisest course
 To wave the fight, and mount to horse,
 And to secure, by swift retreating,
 Themselves from danger of worse beating. 580
 Yet neither of them would disparage,
 By utt'ring of his mind, his courage,
 Which made 'em stoutly keep their ground,
 With horror and disdain wind-bound.
 And now the cause of all their fear 585
 By slow degrees approach'd so near,
 They might distinguish diff'rent noise
 Of horns, and pans, and dogs, and boys,
 And kettle-drums, whose sullen dub
 Sounds like the hooping of a tub. 590
 But when the sight appear'd in view,
 They found it was an antique show;
 A triumph, that, for pomp and state,
 Did proudest Romans emulate:
 For as the aldermen of Rome 595
 Their foes at training overcome,
 And not enlarging territory,
 (As some mistaken write in story,)
 Being mounted, in their best array,
 Upon a carr, and who but they! 600

And follow'd with a world of tall-lads,
 That nerry ditties toll'd, and ballads,
 Did ride with many a good-morrow,
 Crying, Hey for our Town! through the Bur-
 So when this triumph drew so nigh [ough;
 They might particulars descry, 606
 They never saw two things so pat,
 In all respects, as this and that.
 First, he that led the cavalcate
 Wore a sow-gelder's flagellate, 610
 On which he blew as strong a levet
 As well-fee'd lawyer on his breviate;
 When over one another's heads
 They charge (threeranks at once) like Swedes.
 Next pans and kettles of all keys, 615
 From trebles down to double base.
 And after them, upon a nag,
 That might pass for a forehead stag,
 A cornet rode, and on his staff
 A smock display'd did proudly wave. 620
 Then bagpipes of the loudest drones,
 With snuffling broken-winded tones,
 Whose blasts of air, in pockets shut,
 Sound filthier than from the gut,
 And make a viler noise than swine 625
 In windy weather, when they whine.
 Next one upon a pair of panniers, [ners
 Full fraught with that, which for good man-
 Shall here be nameless, mixt with grains,
 Which he dispens'd among the swains, 630
 And busily upon the crowd
 At random round about bestow'd.
 Then,* mounted on a horned horse,
 One bore a gauntlet and gilt spurs,

Ty'd to the pummel of a long sword 635
 He held reverſt, the point turn'd downward.
 Next after, on a raw-bon'd ſteed,
 The conqueror's ſtandard-bearer rid,
 And bore aloft before the champion
 A petticoat diſplay'd, and rampant : 640
 Near whom the Amazon triumphant
 Beſtrid her beaſt, and on the rump on't
 Sate face to tail, and bum to bum,
 The warrior whilom overcome ;
 Arm'd with a ſpindle and a diſtaff, 645
 Which, as he rode, ſhe made him twiſt off ;
 And when he loiter'd, o'er her ſhoulder
 Chaffis'd the reformado ſoldier.
 Before the dame, and round about,
 March'd whiſflers and ſtaffiers on foot, 650
 With lackies, grooms, valets, and pages,
 In fit and proper equipages ;
 Of whom ſome torches bore, ſome links,
 Before the proud virago minx,
 That was both Madam and a Don, 655
 Like NERO'S SPORUS, or POPE JOAN :
 And at fit periods the whole rout
 Set up their throats with clamorous ſhout.
 The Knight, tranſported, and the Squire,
 Put up their weapons, and their ire ; 660
 And HUDIBRAS, who us'd to ponder
 On ſuch ſights with judicious wonder,
 Could hold no longer to impart
 His animadverſions, for his heart.
 Quoth he, In all my life, till now, 665
 I ne'er ſaw ſo prophane a ſhow.
 It is a Paganish invention,
 Which heathen writers often mention :

And he who made it had read GOODWIN,
 Or ROSS, or CÆSIUS RHODOGINE, 670
 With all the Grecian SPEEDS and STOWS,
 That best describe those ancient shows;
 And has observ'd all fit decorums
 We find describ'd by old historians:
 For as the Roman conqueror, 675
 That put an end to foreign war,
 Ent'ring the town in triumph for it,
 ' Bore a slave with him, in his chariot;
 So this insulting female brave,
 Carries behind her here a slave: 680
 And as the ancients long ago,
 When they in field defy'd the foe,
 ' Hung out their mantles della guerre,
 So her proud standard-bearer here
 Waves on his spear, in dreadful manner, 685
 A Tyrian-petticoat for banner:
 ' Next links and torches, heretofore
 Still borne before the emperor.
 And as, in antique triumphs, eggs
 Were borne for mystical intrigues, 690
 There's one in truncheon, like a ladle,
 That carries eggs too, fresh or addle;
 And still at random, as he goes,
 Among the rabble-rout bestows. 694
 Quoth RALPHO, You mistake the matter;
 For all th' antiquity you smatter,
 Is but a riding, us'd of course
 When the grey mare's the better horse;
 When o'er the breeches greedy women
 Fight to extend their vast dominion; 700
 And in the cause impatient Grizel
 Has drubb'd her Husband with bull's pizzle,

And brought him under Covert-Baron,
 To turn her vassal with a murrain.
 When wives their sexes shift, like hares, 705
 And ride their husbands like night-mares,
 And they, in mortal battle vanquish'd,
 Are of their charter disenfranchis'd,
 And by the right of war, like gills,
 Condemn'd to distaff, horns, and wheels: 710
 For when men by their wives are cow'd,
 Their horns of course are understood.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, thou still giv'st sentence
 Impertinently, and against sense.
 'Tis not the least disparagement 715
 To be defeated by th' event,
 Nor to be beaten by main force;
 That does not make a man the worse,
 Although his shoulders with battoon
 Be claw'd and cudgel'd to some tune. 720
 A taylor's 'prentice has no hard
 Measure that's bang'd with a true yard:
 But to turn tail, or run away,
 And without blows give up the day,
 Or to surrender ere th' assault, 725
 That's no man's fortune, but his fault,
 And renders men of honour less
 Than all th' adversity of success;
 And only unto such this shew
 Of horns and petticoats is due. 730
 There is a lesser profanation,
 Like that the Romans call'd ovation:
 For as ovation was allow'd
 For conquest purchas'd without blood,
 So men decree these lesser shows 735
 For victory gotten without blows;

By dint of sharp hard words, which some
 Give battle with, and overcome:
 These mounted in a chair-curule,
 Which moderns call a cucking-stool, 740
 March proudly to the river's side,
 And o'er the waves in triumph ride;
 Like Dukes of VENICE, who are said
 The Adriatick Sea to wed;
 And have a gentler wife than those 745
 For whom the state decrees those shows.
 But both are heathenish, and come
 From th' whores of Babylon and Rome;
 And by the Saints should be withstood,
 As Antichristian and lewd; 750
 And we, as such, should now contribute
 Our utmost strugglings to prohibit.

This said, they both advanc'd, and rode
 A dog-trot through the bawling crowd,
 T'attack the leader, and still prest, 755
 Till they approach'd him breast to breast:
 Then HUDIBRAS, with face and hand,
 Made signs for silence; which obtain'd,
 What means (quoth he) this Devil's procession
 With men of orthodox profession? 760
 'Tis ethnic and idolatrous,
 From heathenism deriv'd to us.
 Does not the Whore of Babylon ride
 Upon her horned beast astride
 Like this proud dame, who either is 765
 A type of her, or she of this?
 Are things of superstitious function
 Fit to be us'd in Gospel Sun-shine?
 It is an Antichristian opera,
 Much us'd in midnight times of Popery, 770

Of running after self-inventions
 Of wicked and profane intentions;
 To scandalize that sex for scolding,
 To whom the Saints are so beholding.
 Women, who were our first Apostles, 775
 Without whose aid we had been lost else;
 Women, that left no stone unturn'd
 In which the Cause might be concern'd;
 Brought in their childrens' spoons and whistles,
 To purchase swords, carbines and pistols; 780
 Their husbands, cullies, and sweet-hearts,
 To take the Saints and Churches' parts;
 Drew several gifted Brethren in,
 That for the Bishops would have been,
 And fix'd 'em constant to the party, 785
 With motives powerful and hearty;
 Their husbands rob'd, and made hard shifts
 T' administer unto their gifts
 All they cou'd rap, and rend, and pilfer,
 To scraps and ends of gold and silver; 790
 Rub'd down the Teachers, tir'd and spent
 With holding forth for Parliament;
 Pamper'd and edify'd their zeal
 With marrow puddings many a meal;
 Enabled them, with store of meat, 795
 On controverted points to eat;
 And cram'd 'em, till their guts did ache,
 With cawdle, custard, and plum-cake:
 What have they done, or what left undone,
 That might advance the Cause at London? 800
 March'd rank and file, with drum and ensign,
 T' intrench the city for defence in;
 Rais'd rampiers with their own soft hands,
 To put the enemy to stands;

From ladies down to oyster-wenches, 805
 Labour'd like pioneers in trenches;
 Fain to then pick axes, and tools,
 And help'd the men to dig like moles;
 Have not the handmaids of the city
 Chose of their members a committee, 810
 For raising of a common purse
 Out of their wages to raise horse?
 And do they not as triers sit,
 To judge what officers are fit?
 Have they ——? At that an egg let fly, 815
 Hit him directly o'er the eye,
 And running down his cheek, besmear'd,
 With orange tawny slime, his beard;
 But beard and slime being of one hue,
 The wound the less appear'd in view. 820
 Then he that on the pannier rode,
 Let fly on th' other side a load,
 And, quickly chang'd again, gave fully
 In RALPHO's face another volley.
 The Knight was startled with the smell,
 And for his sword began to feel;
 And RALPHO, smother'd with the stink,
 Grasped his; when one, that bore a link,
 O' th' sudden clapp'd his flaming cudgel,
 Like linstock, to the horse's touch-hole; 830
 And straight another, with his flambeaux,
 Gave RALPHO's o'er the eye a damn'd blow.
 The beasts began to kick and fling,
 And forc'd the route to make a ring; 834
 Through which they quickly broke their way,
 And brought them off from further fray:
 And though disorder'd in retreat,
 Each of them stoutly kept his seat:

For quitting both their swords and reins,
 They grasp'd with all their strength the manes;
 And to avoid the foe's pursuit, 841
 With spurring put their cattle 't it;
 And till all four were out of wind,
 And danger too, ne'er look'd behind.
 After th' had paus'd a while, supplying 845
 Their spirits, spent with fight and flying,
 And HUDIBRAS recruited force
 Of lungs, to action, or discourse,

Quoth he, 'That man is sure to lose
 That fouls his hands with dirty foes: 850
 For where no honour's to be gain'd,
 'Tis thrown away in being maintain'd.
 'Twas ill for us we had to do
 With so dishonourable a foe:
 For though the law of arms doth bar 855
 The use of venom'd shot in war,
 Yet, by the nauseous smell, and noisom,
 Their case-shot savour strong of poison;
 And doubtless have been chew'd with teeth
 Of some that had a stinking breath; 860
 Else, when we put it to the push,
 'They had not giv'n us such a brush.
 But as those pultrons, that sling dirt,
 Do but defile, but cannot hurt,
 So all the honour they have won, 865
 Or we have lost, is much at one.
 'Twas well we made so resolute
 A brave retreat without pursuit;
 For if we had not, we had sped
 Much worse, to be in triumph led; 870
 Than which the ancients held no state
 Of man's life more unfortunate.

But if this bold adventure e'er
 Do chance to reach the widow's ear,
 It may, being destin'd to assert
 Her sex's honour, reach her heart. 875
 And as such homely treats (they say)
 Portend good fortune, so this may.
 " VESPASIAN being daub'd with dirt,
 Was destin'd to the empire for't; 880
 And from a Scavenger did come
 To be a mighty Prince in Rome:
 And why may not this foul address
 Prestage in love the same success? 884
 Then let us streight, to cleanse our wounds,
 Advance in quest of nearest ponds;
 And after (as we first design'd)
 Swear I've perform'd what she enjoin'd.

PART II. CANTO III.

THE ARGUMENT.

Th Knig/t, with various Doubts possest,
 To win the Lady goes in quest
 Of Sibyls, the Risy-Crucian,
 To know the Deat'nus' Resolu'tion;
 With whom b'ing met, they both chop Logick
 About the science Astrologick,
 Till falling from Dispute to Fight,
 The Conjurer's worsted by the Knig/t.

DOUBTLESS the pleasure is as great
 Of being cheated as to cheat;
 As lookers-on feel most delight,
 That least perceive a jugler's sight;
 And still the less they understand, 5
 The more th' admire his slight of hand.
 Some with a noise, and greasy light,
 Are snapt, as men catch larks by night;
 Ensnar'd and hamper'd by the soul,
 As nooses by the legs catch fowl. 10
 Some with a med'cine, and receipt,
 Are drawn to nibble at the bait;
 And tho' it be a two-foot stout,
 'Tis with a single halt pull'd out.
 Others believe no voice t' an organ 15
 So sweet as lawyer's in his bawd's gown,
 Until with subtle cobweb-cheats
 Th' are catch'd in knotted law, like nets,
 In which, when once they are imbrangled,
 The more they stir, the more they're tangled;
 And while their purses can dispute, 20
 There's no end of th' immortal suit.

Others still gape t' anticipate
 The cabint-designs of fate ;
 Apply to wizards, to foresee 25
 What shall and what shall never be ;
 And, as those vultures do forebode,
 Believe events prove bad or good :
 A flam more senseless than the roguery
 Of old aruspicy and aug'ry, 30
 That out of garbages of cattle
 Presag'd th' events of truce or battle ;
 From flight of birds, or chickens pecking,
 Success of great'st attempts would reckon :
 Though cheats, yet more intelligible 35
 Than those that with the stars do fribble.
 This HUDIBRAS by proof found true,
 As in due time and place we'll shew :
 For he, with beard and face made clean,
 Being mounted on his steed agen, 40
 (And RALPHO got a cock-horse too
 Upon his beast, with much ado)
 Advanc'd on for the Widow's house,
 To acquit himself, and pay his vows ;
 When various thoughts began to bustle, 45
 And with his inward man to juggle.
 He thought what danger might accrue,
 If she should find he swore untrue ;
 Or if his Squire or he should fail,
 And not be punctual in their tale : 50
 It might at once the ruin prove
 Both of his honour, faith, and love.
 But if he should forbear to go,
 She might conclude h' had broke his vow ;
 And that he durst not now for shame 55
 Appear in court to try his claim.

This was the pen'worth of his thought,
To pass time and uneasy trot.

Quoth he, In all my past adventures

I ne'er was set so on the tenter; 60

Or taken tardy with dilemma,

'That ev'ry way I turn does hem me,

And with inextricable doubt

Bets my puzzled wits about :

For tho' the dame has been my bail, 65

To free me from enchanted jail,

Yet as a dog, committed close

I or some offence, by chance breaks loose,

And quits his clog, but all in vain,

He still draws after him his chain; 70

So, though my ankle she has quitted,

My heart continues still committed ;

And like a bail'd and main-priz'd lover,

Altho' at large, I am bound over ;

And when I shall appear in court, 75

To plead my cause, and answer for't,

Unless the judge do partial prove,

What will become of me and love ?

For if in our account we vary,

Or but in circumstance miscarry ; 80

Or if she put me to strict proof,

And make me pull my doublet off,

To shew, by evident record

Writ on my skin, I've kept my word ;

How can I e'er expect to have her, 85

Having demurr'd unto her favour ?

But faith, and love, and honour lost,

Shall be reduc'd t' a Knight o' th' Post.

Beside, that stripping may prevent

What I'm to prove by argument, 90

And justify I have a tail;
 And that way, too, my proof may fail.
 Oh! that I cou'd enucleate,
 And solve the problems of my fate;
 Or find, by necromantick art, 95
 How far the destinies take my part!
 For if I were not more than certain
 To win and wear her, and her fortune,
 I'd go no farther in this courtship,
 To hazard soul, estate, and worship: 100
 For though an oath obliges not
 Where any thing is to be got,
 (As thou hast prov'd) yet 'tis profane,
 And sinful, when men swear in vain. 104

Quoth RALPH, Not far from hence doth
 A cunning man, hight SIDROPHEL, [dwell
 That deals in destiny's dark counsels,
 And sage opinions of the Moon sells;
 To whom all people, far and near,
 On deep importances repair; 110
 When brass and pewter hap to stray,
 And linen flinks out of the way;
 When geese and pullen are seduc'd,
 And sows of sucking pigs are chows'd;
 When cattle feel indisposition, 115
 And need th' opinion of physician;
 When murrain reigns in hogs or sheep,
 And chickens languish of the pip;
 When yeast and outward means do fail,
 And have no pow'r to work on ale; 120
 When butter does refuse to come,
 And love proves cross and humourfome:
 To him with questions, and with urine,
 They, for discov'ry flock, or curing.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, This SIDROPHEL 125
 I've heard of, and shou'd like it well,
 If thou canst prove the Saints have freedom
 To go to Sorc'ers when they need 'em.

Says RALPHO, There's no doubt of that :
 Those principles I quoted late, 130
 Prove that the Godly may alledge
 For any thing their priviledge ;
 And to the Dev'l himself may go,
 If they have motives thereunto.

For, as there is a war between 135
 The Dev'l and them, it is no sin,
 If they by subtle stratagem
 Make use of him, as he does them.

Has not this present Parliament
 A w Ledger to the Devil sent, 140
 Fully impower'd to treat about
 Finding revolted witches out ?

And has not he, within a year,
 Hang'd threescore of 'em in one shire ?
 Some only for not being drown'd, 145

And some for sitting above ground,
 Whole days and nights, upon their breeches,
 And feeling pain, were hang'd for witches.

And some for putting knavish tricks
 Upon green geese and turky efficks, 150
 Or pigs, that suddenly deceast

Of griefs unnat'ral, as he guest ;
 Who after prov'd himself a witch,
 And made a rod for h s own breech.

Did not the Devil appear to MARTIN 155
 LUTHER in Germany, for certain ;
 And wou'd have gull'd him with a trick,
 But MARTIN was too polittick ?

Did he not help the * Dutch to purge
 At ANTWERP their Cathedral Church? 160
 Sing catches to the Saints at MASCON,
 And tell them all they came to ask him?
 * Appear'd in divers shapes to KELLY,
 And speak i' th' Nun of LOUDON's belly?
 * Meet with the Parliament's Committee 165
 At WOODSTOCK on a pers'nal treaty?
 * At SARUM take a cavalier
 I' th' Cause's service prisoner?
 As WITHERS, in immortal rhyme,
 Has register'd to after-time? 170
 Do not our great Reformers use
 This SINDROPHEL to forebode news?
 To write of victories next year,
 And castles taken yet i' th' air?
 Of battles fought at sea, and ships 175
 Sunk two years hence, the last eclipse?
 A total overthrow giv'n the King
 In Cornwall, horse and foot, next Spring?
 And has not he point-blank foretold
 Whats'e'r the close Committee would? 180
 Made Mars and Saturn for the Cause?
 The Moon for fundamental Laws?
 The Ram, the Bull, and Goat declare
 Against the Book of Common Pray'r?
 The Scorpion take the Protestation, 185
 And Bear engage for Reformation?
 Made all the Royal Stars recant,
 Compound and take the Covenant?
 Quoth HUDIBRAS, The case is clear,
 * The Saints may 'mploy a Conjurer, 190
 As thou hast prov'd it by their practice;
 No argument like matter of fact is;

And we are best of all led to
Men's principles by what they do.
Then let us straight advance in quest 195
Of this profound Gymnosophist.
And to the Jates and he advise,
Pursue or wave this enterprize.

'Tis said, he turn'd about his steed,
And citsoons on th' advent'rous rid, 200
Where leave we him and RAMPH a while,
And to the Conjurer turn our stile,
To let our reader understand
What's useful of him before-hand. 204

He had been long t'wards mathematicks,
Opticks, philosophy, and staticks,
Magick, horoscopy, astrology,
And was old dog at physiology:
But as a dog that turns the spit
Bestirs himself and plies his feet 210
To climb the wheel, but all in vain,
His own weight brings him down again,
And still he's in the self-same place
Where at his setting out he was;
So in the circle of the arts 215
Did he advance his nat'ral parts,
Till falling back still, for retreat,
He fell to juggle, cant, and cheat:
For as those fowls that live in water
Are never wet, he did but smatter: 220
Whate'er he labour'd to appear,
His understanding still was clear;
Yet none a deeper knowledge boasted,
Since old HONG BACON and BOB GREGSTED.
Th' Intelligible World he knew, 225
And all men dream on't to be true;

That in this world there's not a wart
 That has not there a counterpart ;
 Nor can there on the face of ground
 An individual beard be found, 230
 That has not, in that foreign nation,
 A fellow of the self-same fashion ;
 So cut, so colour'd, and so curl'd,
 As those are in th' Inferior World.
 If had read DEE's Prefaces before, 235
 The DEV'L, and EUCLID, o're and o're ;
 And all the intrigues 'twixt him and KELLY,
 LESCUS and th' EMPEROR wou'd tell ye :
 But with the Moon was more familiar
 Than e'er was almanack well-willer ; 240
 Her secrets understood so clear,
 That some believ'd he had been there ;
 Knew when she was in the fittest mood
 For cutting corns, or letting blood ;
 When for anointing scabs or itches, 245
 Or to the bum applying leeches ;
 When sows and bitches may be spay'd,
 And in what sign best cyder's made ;
 Whether the wane be, or increase,
 Best to set garlick, or sow pease : 250
 Who first found out the Man i' th' Moon,
 That to the ancients was unknown ;
 How many dukes, and earls, and peers,
 Are in the planetary spheres ;
 Their airy empire, and command, 255
 Their sev'ral strengths by sea and land ;
 What factions th' have, and what they drive at
 In public vogue, or what in private ;
 With what designs and interests
 Each party manages contests, 260

He made an instrument to know
 If the Moon shine at full or no;
 That wou'd, as soon as e'er she shone, straight
 Whether 'twere day or night demonstrate;
 Tell what her d'meter t' an inch is, 265
 And prove that she's not made of green-cheese.
 It wou'd demonstrate, that the Man in
 The Moon's a Sea Mediterranean;
 And that it is no dog nor bitch,
 That stands behind him at his breech, 270
 But a huge Caspian Sea, or lake,
 With arms, which men for legs mistake;
 How large a gulph his tail composes,
 And what a goodly bay his nose is;
 How many German leagues by th' scale 275
 Cape Snout's from Promontory Tail.
 He made a planetary gin,
 Which rats would run their own heads in,
 And come on purpose to be taken,
 Without th' expence of cheese or bacon. 280
 With lute-strings he would counterfeit
 Maggots that crawl on dish of meat:
 Quote moles and spots on any place
 O' th' body, by the index face:
 Detect lost maiden-heads by sneezing, 285
 Or breaking wind of dames, or pissing;
 Cure warts and corns with application
 Of med'cines to th' imagination;
 Fright agues into dogs, and scare
 With rhimes the tooth-ach and catarrh; 290
 Chace evil spirits away by dint
 Of cickle, horse-shoe, hollow-flint;
 Spit fire out of a walnut-shell,
 Which made the Roman slaves rebel;

- And fire a mine in China here 295
 • With sympathetic gunpowder.
 He knew what's ever's to be known,
 But much more than he knew would own;
 What medicine 'twas that PARACELSUS
 Could make a man with, as he tells us, 300
 What figure'd flutes are best to make
 On watry surface duck or drake,
 What bowling stones, in running race
 Upon a board, have swiftest pace,
 Whether a pulse beat in the black 305
 List of a dappled horse's back,
 If systole or diastole move
 Quickest when he's in wrath or love;
 When two of them do run a race,
 Whether they gallop, trot, or pace. 310
 How many floors a flea will jump,
 Of his own length, from head to rump;
 Which ^d SOCRATES and CHÆREPHON,
 In vain, assay'd so long ago;
 Whether his snout a perfect nose is, 315
 And not an elephant's proboscis;
 How many diff'rent specieses
 Of maggots breed in rotten cheese;
 And which are next of kin to those
 Engender'd in a chandler's nose; 320
 Or those not seen, but understood,
 That live in vinegar and wood.
 A poultry wretch he had, half-starv'd,
 That him in place of Zany serv'd, 324
 Hight WHACHUM, bred to dash and draw,
 Not wine, but more unwholesome law,
 To make 'twixt words and lines huge gaps,
 Wide as meridians in maps;

To squander paper, and spare ink,
 Or cheat men of their words, some think. 330
 From this, by merited degree,
 He'd to more high advancement rise;
 To be an under-conjurer,
 Or journeyman astrologer.
 His business was to pump and wheedle, 335
 And men with their own keys unriddle;
 To make them to themselves give answers,
 For which they pay the necromancers;
 To fetch and carry intelligence,
 Of whom, and what, and where, and whence,
 And all discoveries disperse 341
 Among th' whole pack of conjurers:
 What cut-purses have left with them
 For the right owners to redeem;
 And what they dare not vent find out, 345
 To gain themselves and th' art repute;
 Draw figures, schemes, and horoscopes,
 Of newgate, bridewell, brokers' shops,
 Of thieves ascendant in the cart;
 And find out all by rules of art: 350
 Which way a serving-man, that's run
 With cloaths or money away, is gone:
 Who pick'd a fob at holding-forth;
 And where a watch, for half the worth,
 May be redeem'd; or stolen plate 355
 Restor'd at conscienceable rate.
 Beside all this, he serv'd his master
 In quality of poetaster;
 And rhimes appropriate could make
 To ev'ry month i' th' almanack: 360
 When terms begin and end could tell,
 With their returns in doggerel;

When the exchequer opes and shuts,
 And fowgelder with safety cuts,
 When men may eat and drink their fill, 365
 And when be temp'rate, if they will,
 When use and when abstain from vice,
 Figs, grapes, phlebotomy, and spice.
 And as in prison mean rogues beat
 Hemp for the service of the great, 370
 So WHACHUM beats his duty brains,
 In advance his master's fame and guns,
 And, like the devil's oracles,
 Put into dogg'rel rhimes his spells,
 Which, over ev'ry month's blank page 375
 I' th' almanack, strange bilks presage.
 He would an elegy compose
 On maggots squeez'd out of his nose;
 In lyrick numbers write an ode on
 His mistress, eating a black-pudden: 380
 And when imprison'd air escap'd her,
 It putt him with poetic rapture.
 His sonnets charm'd th' attentive crow'd,
 By wide-mouth'd mortal troll'd aloud,
 That, circl'd with his long-ear'd guests, 385
 Like OAPHEUS look'd among the beasts.
 A carman's horse could not pass by,
 But stood ty'd up to poetry.
 No porter's burthen pass'd along,
 But serv'd for burthen to his song: 390
 Each window like a pill'ry appears,
 With heads thrust through, nail'd by the ears:
 All trades run in as to the sight
 Of monsters, or their dear delight
 The gallow tree, when cutting purle 395
 Bred bus'ness for heroic verse.

Which none does hear, but would have hang-
T' have been the theme of such a song.

Those two together long had liv'd,
In mansion prudently contriv'd; 400
Where neither tree nor house could bar
The free detection of a star;

And nigh an ancient obelisk
Was rais'd by him, found out by First,
On which was writt'n, not in words, 405

But hieroglyphic mute of birds,
Many rare pithy saws concerning
The worth of astrologic learning.
From top of this there hung a rope,
To which he fasten'd telescope; 410
The spectacles with which the stars
He reads in smallest characters.

It happen'd as a boy, one night,
Did fly his tarsel of a kite,
The strangest long-wing'd hawk that flies, 415

That, like a bird of paradise,
Or herald's martlet, has no legs,
Nor hatches young ones, nor lays eggs;
His train was six yards long, milk-white,
At th' end of which there hung a light, 420

Inclos'd in lanthorn, made of paper,
That far off like a star did appear.

This SIDROPHEL by chance esp'y'd,
And with amazement staring wide,

Bless us! quoth he, what dread'st thou?
Is that appears in Heaven yonder?

A comet, and without a beard,
Or star that ne'er before appear'd?

I'm certain 'tis not in the serowl
Of all those beasts, and fish, and fowl, 425

With which, like Indian plantations,
 The learned stock the constellations;
 Nor those that draw for signs have bin
 To th' houses where the planets inn.
 It must be supernatural, 435

• Unless it be that cannon-ball
 That, shot i' th' air point-blank upright,
 Was borne to that prodigious height,
 That learn'd philosophers maintain,
 It never came backwards down again; 440

But in the airy region yet
 Hangs like the body of MAHOMET:
 For if it be above the shade
 That by the earth's round bulk is made,
 'Tis probable it may from far 445
 Appear no bullet, but a star.

This said, he to his engine flew,
 Plac'd near at hand, in open view,
 And rais'd it 'till it levell'd right
 Against the glow-worm tail of kite. 450.
 Then peeping thro', Bless us! (quoth he)

It is a planet now I see;
 And, if I err not, by his proper
 It should be Saturn. Yes, 'tis clear 455
 'Tis Saturn; but what makes him there?

He's got between the Dragon's Tail
 And farther Leg behind o' the Whale.
 Pray heav'n divert the fatal collision,
 For 'tis a prodigy not common; 460
 And can no less than the world's end,

Or Nature's funeral, portend.
 With that he fell again to pry
 Thro' perspective more wilfully,

When by mischance the fatal string, 468
 That kept the tow'ring fowl on wing,
 Breaking, down fell the star. Well shot,
 Quoth WHACHUM, who right wisely thought
 H' had levell'd at a star, and hit it.
 But SIDROPHEL, more subtil-witted, 470
 Cry'd out, What horrible and fearful
 Portent is this, to see a star fall?
 It threatens nature, and the doom
 Will not be long before it come!
 When stars do fall, 'tis plain enough, 472
 The day of judgment's not far off,
 ' As lately 'twas reveal'd to SNOWICK,
 And some of us find out by magick.
 Then since the time we have to live
 In this world's shorten'd, let us strive 474
 To make our best advantage of it,
 And pay our losses with our profit.

This feat tell out not long before
 The Knight, upon the forenam'd score,
 In quest of SIDROPHEL advancing, 475
 Was now in prospect of the mansion;
 Whom he discov'ring, turn'd his glass,
 And found far off, 'twas HUDRANAS.

WHACHUM, (quoth he, look yonder, come
 To try our art, our art are come, 476
 The one's the learned Knight, look out,
 And pump 'em what they come about.
 WHACHUM, 'twas said, with all subtilty
 To'p'pos't 'em, how much more their bow
 Than a fowl, while the Knight 477
 With his hand the bridle,
 And the dark Squire to transmit

He gave him first the time o' th' day,
 And welcom'd him, as he might say: 500
 He ask'd him whence he came, and whither
 Their bus'ness lay? Quoth RALPHO, Hither.
 Did you not lose?—Quoth RALPHO, Nay.
 Quoth WHACHUM, Sir, I meant your way!
 Your Knight—Quoth RALPHO, Is a lover,
 And pains intolerable doth suffer: 506
 For lovers hearts are not their own hearts,
 Nor lights, nor lungs, and so forth downwards.
 What time?—Quoth RALPHO, Sir, too long;
 Three years it off and on has hung— 510
 Quoth he, I meant what time o' the day 'tis.
 Quoth RALPHO, Between seven and eight 'tis.
 Why then (quoth WHACHUM) my small art
 Tells me, the dame has a hard heart,
 Of great estate—Quoth RALPHO, A jointer, 515
 Which makes him have so hot a mind t' her.
 Mean while the Knight was making water,
 Before he fell upon the matter;
 Which having done, the Wizard steps in,
 To give him suitable reception; 520
 But kept his bus'ness at a bay
 Till WHACHUM put him in the way;
 Who having now, by RALPHO's light,
 Expounded th' errand of the Knight,
 And what he came to know, drew near, 525
 To whisper in the Conjuror's ear,
 Which he prevented thus: What was't,
 Quoth he, that I was saying last,
 Before these gentlemen arriv'd?
 Quoth WHACHUM, Venus you retriev'd. 530
 In opposition with Mars,
 And no benigne friendly part

T' allay the effect.—Quoth Wizard, So!
 In Virgo? Hi!—Quoth WHACHUM, No.
 Has Saturn nothing to do in it? 535
 One tenth of's circle to a minute.

'Tis well, quoth he—Sir, you'll excuse
 This rudeness I am forc'd to use
 It is a scheme and face of Heaven,
 As the aspects are dispos'd this even, 540
 I was contemplating upon,
 When you arriv'd, but now I've done.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, If I appear
 Unreasonable in coming here
 At such a time, to interrupt 545
 Your speculations, which I hop'd
 Assistance from, and come to use,
 'Tis fit that I ask your excuse

By no means, Sir, quoth SIDROPHEL;
 The stars your coming did foretell: 550
 I did expect you here, and knew,
 Before you spake, your business too.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, Make that appear,
 And I shall credit whatsoe'er
 You tell me after on your word, 555
 How'er unlikely, or absurd.

You are in love, Sir, with a widow,
 Quoth he, that does not greatly heed you,
 And for three years has rid your wit
 And passion without drawing bit: 560
 And now your business is to know
 If you shall carry her no.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, You're in the right;
 But how the Devil you came by't
 I can't imagine; for the Stars, 565
 I'm sure, can tell no more than a horse;

Nor can their aspects (though you pore
 Your eyes out on 'em) tell you more
 Than th' oracle of sieve and sheers,
 That turns as certain as the spheres : 570
 But if the Devil's of your counsel,
 Much may be done my noble Donzel ;
 And 'tis on his account I come,
 To know from you my fatal doom.

Quoth SIDROCHEL, If you suppose, 575
 Sir Knight, that I am one of thole,
 I might suspect, and take the alarm,
 Your bus'ness is but to inform ;
 But if it be, 'tis ne'er the near ;
 You have a wrong sown by the ear ; 580
 For I assure you, for my part,
 I only deal by rules of art,
 Such as are lawful, and judge by
 Conclusions of Astrology :
 But for the Dev'l, know nothing by him ; 585
 But only this, that I defy him.

Quoth he, Whatever others deem ye,
 I understand your metonymy :
 Your words of second-hand intention,
 When things by wrongful names you mention ;
 The mystick sense of all your terms, 590
 That are, indeed, but magick charms
 To raise the Devil, and mean one thing,
 And that is down-right conjuring ;
 And in itself more warrantable, 595
 Than cheat, or canting to a rabble,
 Or putting tricks upon the Moon,
 Which by confed'racy are done.
 Your ancient conjurers were wont
 To make her from her sphere dismount, 600

And to their incantations stoop :
 They scorn'd to pore thro' telescope,
 Or idly play at bo-peep with' her,
 To find out cloudy or fair weather,
 Which ev'ry almanack can tell, 605
 Perhaps, as learnedly, and well
 As you yourself—Then, friend, I doubt
 You go the furthest way about :
 * Your modern Indian magician
 Makes but a hole in th' earth to piss in, 610
 And straight resolves all questions by't,
 And seldom fails to be i' th' right.
 The Rosy-Crucian way's more sure
 To bring the Devil to the lure ;
 Each of 'em has a sev'ral gin 615
 To catch intelligences in.
 Some by the nose with fumes trapan 'em,
 As DUNSTAN did the Devil's grannum ;
 Others, with characters and words,
 Catch 'em, as men in nets do birds ; 620
 And some with synibols, signs, and tricks,
 Engrav'd with planetary nicks,
 With their own influences will fetch 'em
 Down from their orbs, arrest, and catch 'em ;
 Make 'em depose and answer to 625
 All questions e're they let them go.
^b BUMBASTUS kept a Devil's bird
 Shut in the pommel of his sword,
 That taught him all the cunning pranks
 Of past and future mountebanks, 630
 KELLY did all his feats upon
 The Devil's looking-glass, a stone ;
 Where playing with him at bo-peep,
 He solv'd all problems ne'er so deep,

' AGRIPPA kept a Stygian pug, 635
 I' th' garb and habit of a dog,
 'T'hat was his tutor, and the cur
 Read to th' occult philosopher,
 And taught him subtilly to maintain
 All other sciences are vain 640

To this, quoth SIDROPHEUS, Sir,
 AGRIPPA was no conjurer,
 Nor PARACELIUS, no, nor BISHMEN,
 Nor was the dog a Cacodæmon,
 but a true dog, that would shew tricks 645
 For th' emperor, and leap o'er sticks,
 Would fetch and carry, was more civil
 Than other dogs, but yet no Devil,
 And whatsoever he's said to do,
 He went the self-same way we go 650
 As for the Rosy-Croix Philosophers,
 Whom you will have to be but forceiers,
 What they pretend to is no more
 Than TRISMEGISTUS did before,
 PYTHAGORAS, old ZOROASTER, 655
 And APOLLONIUS their master,
 To whom they do confess they owe
 All that they do, and all they know

Quoth HUDIBRAS, Alas! what is't t' us,
 Whether 'twas said by TRISMEGISTUS, 660
 If it be nonsense, false, or mystick,
 Or not intelligible, or sophistick?
 'Tis not antiquity, nor author, [daughter;
 That makes Truth Truth, altho' Iime's
 'Twas he that put her in the pit 665
 Before he pull'd her out of it,
 And as he eats his sons, just so
 He feeds upon his daughters too.

Nor does it follow, 'cause a herauld
 Can make a gentleman, scarce a year old, 670
 To be descended of a race
 Of ancient kings in a small space,
 That we should all opinions hold
 Authentic that we can make old.

Quoth SIDROPHEL, It is no part 675
 Of prudence to cry down an art,
 And what it may perform deny,
 Because you understand not why;
 (As ^k AVERRHois play'd but a mean trick
 To damn our whole art for eccentric:) 680
 For who knows all that knowledge contains?
 Men dwell not on the tops of mountains,
 But on their sides, or rising's feat;
 So 'tis with knowledge's vast height. 685
 Do not the hist'ries of all ages
 Relate miraculous presages,
 Of strange turns in the world's affairs,
 Foreseen b' Astrologers, Soothsayers,
 Chaldeans, learn'd Genethliacks,
 And some that have writ almanacks? 690
 ' The MEDIAN emp'ror dreamt his daughter
 Had pist all ASIA under water,
 And that a vine sprung from her haunches,
 O'erspread his empire with its branches;
 And did not soothsayers expound it, 695
 As after by th' event he found it?
 " When CÆSAR in the senate fell,
 Did not the sun eclips'd foretel,
 And, in resentment of his slaughter,
 Look'd pale for almost a year after? 700
 " AUGUSTUS having, b' oversight,
 Put on his left shoe 'fore his right,

Had like to have been slain that day
 By soldiers mutin'ing for pay.
 Are there not myriads of this sort, 705
 Which stories of all times report?
 Is it not ominous in all countries
 When crows and ravens croak upon trees?
 • The Roman senate, when within
 The city walls an owl was seen, 710
 Did cause their clergy, with lustrations,
 (Our Synod calls humiliations,)
 The round-fac'd prodigy t' avert
 From doing town or country hurt:
 And if an owl have so much pow'r, 715
 Why should not planets have much more,
 'That in a region far above
 Inferior fowls of the air move,
 And should see further, and foreknow
 More than their augury below? 720
 Though that once serv'd the polity
 Of mighty states to govern by;
 And this is what we take in hand
 By pow'rful art to understand;
 Which, how we have perform'd, all ages 725
 Can speak th' events of our prelages.
 Have we not lately, in the Moon,
 Found a New World, to the Old unknown?
 Discover'd sea and land, COLUMBUS
 And MAGELLAN cou'd never compass? 730
 Made mountains with our tubes appear,
 And cattle grazing on 'em there?
 Quoth HUDIBRAS, You lie so ope,
 That I, without a telescope,
 Can find your tricks out, and descry 735
 Where you tell truth, and where you lye:

For P ANAXAGORAS, long ago,
 Saw hills, as well as you, & th' Moon;
 And held the Sun was but a piece
 Of red-hot ir'n, as big as Greece; 740
 Believ'd the Heav'ns were made of stone,
 Because the Sun had voided one;
 And, rather than he would recant
 Th' opinion, suffer'd banishment.

But what, alas! is it to us, 745
 Whether i' th' Moon men thus or thus
 Do eat their porridge, cut their corns,
 Or whether they have tails or horns?
 What trade from thence can you advance,
 But what we nearer have from France? 750
 What can our travellers bring home,
 That is not to be learnt at Rome?
 What politicks, or strange opinions,
 That are not in our own dominions?
 What science can be brought from thence, 755
 In which we do not here commence?
 What revelations, or religions,
 That are not in our native regions?
 Are sweating lanthorns, or screen-fans,
 Made better there than th' are in France? 760
 Or do they teach to sing and play
 O'th' gittar there a newer way?
 Can they make plays there, that shall fit
 The publick humour, with less wit?
 Write witty dances, & quainter shows, 765
 Or fight with more ingenious blows?
 Or does the man i'th' Moon look big,
 And wear a huger perriwig,
 Shew in his gate or face more tricks
 Than our own native lunaticks? 770

And if w' out-do him here at home,
 What good of your design can come ?
 As wind i'th' hypochondriacs pent,
 Is but a blast if downward sent,
 But if it upward chance to fly, 775
 Becomes new Light and Prophecy,
 So when your speculations tend
 Above then just and useful end,
 Although they promise strange and great
 Discoveries of things far let, 780
 They are but idle dreams and fancies,
 And favour strongly ot the quacks
 Tell me but what's the natural cause,
 Why on a sign no painter draws
 The full-moon ever, but the half; 785
 Resolve that with your JACON'S staff,
 Or why wolves raise a hubbub at her,
 And dogs howl when she shines in water,
 And I shall freely give my vote,
 You may know something more remote 790
 At this deep SINDROPHEL look'd wile,
 And staring round with owl-like eyes,
 He put his face into a posture
 Of sapience, and began to bluster
 For having three times shook his head 795
 To stir his wit up, thus he said :
 Art has no mortal enemies
 Next ignorance, but owls and geese ;
 Those consecrated geese in orders,
 That to the Capitol were warders ; 800
 And being then upon patrol,
 With noise alone beat off the Gaul :
 Or those Athenian Sceptick owls,
 That will not credit their own souls ;

PART II. CANTO III.

203

Or any science understand, 805
 Beyond the reach of eye or hand ;
 But meas'ring all things by their own
 Knowledge, hold nothing's to be known :
 Those wholesale criticks, that in coffee-
 Houses cry down all philosophy, 810
 And will not know upon what ground
 In nature we our doctrine found,
 Altho' with pregnant evidence
 We can demonstrate it to sense,
 As I just now have done to you, 815
 Foretelling what you came to know.
 Were the stars only made to light
 Robbers and burglars by night ?
 To wait on drunkards, thieves, gold-finders,
 And lovers solacing behind doors, 820
 Or giving one another pledges
 Of matrimony under hedges ?
 Or witches simpling, and on gibbets
 Cutting from malefactors snippets ?
 Or from the pillory tips of ears 825
 Of Rebel-Saints and perjurers ?
 Only to stand by, and look on,
 But not know what is said or done ?
 Is there a constellation there,
 That was not born and bred up here ? 830
 And therefore cannot be to learn
 In any inferior concern.
 Were they not, during all their lives,
 Most of 'em pirates, whores and thieves ;
 And is it like they have not still 835
 In their old practices some skill ?
 Is there a planet that by birth
 Does not derive its house from earth ?

And therefore probably must know
 What is and hath been done below. 840
 Who made the Balance, or whence came
 The Bull, the Lion, and the Ram ?
 Did not we here the Argo rig,
 Make BRINICF's perwig ?
 Whose liv'ly does the Coachman wear ? 845
 Or who made Cassiopeia's chair ?
 And therefore, as they came from hence,
 With us may hold intelligence.
 PLATO deny'd the world can be
 Govern'd without geometree, 850
 (For money b'ing the common scale
 Of things by measure, weight, and tale,
 In all th' affairs of Church and State,
 'Tis both the balance and the weight,)
 Then much less can it be without 855
 Divine Astrology made out ;
 That puts the other down in worth,
 As far as Heav'n's above the Earth.
 These reasons (quoth the Knight) I grant
 Are something more significant 860
 Than any that the learned use
 Upon this subject to produce ;
 And yet th' are far from satisfactory,
 T' establish and keep up your factory.
 ' Th' Egyptians say, the Sun has twice 865
 Shifted his setting and his rise ;
 Twice has he risen in the west,
 As many times set in the east ;
 But whether that be true, or no,
 The Dev'l any of you know. 870
 ' Some hold the heavens like a top,
 And kept by circulation up ;

And, were't not for their wheeling round,
 They'd instantly fall to the ground :
 As sage EMPEDOCLES of old, 875
 And from him modern authors hold.
 ' PLATO believ'd the Sun and Moon
 Below all other Planets run.
 Some MERCURY, some VENUS seat
 Above the Sun himself in height. 880
 ' The learned SCALIGER complain'd
 'Gainst what COPERNICUS maintain'd,
 That, in twelve hundred years and odd,
 The Sun had left its ancient road,
 And nearer to the earth is come 885
 'Bove fifty thousand miles from home ;
 Swore 'twas a most notorious flam ;
 And he that had so little shame
 To vent such fopperies abroad,
 Deserv'd to have his rump well claw'd ; 890
 Which Monsieur BODIN hearing, swore
 That he deserv'd the rod much more,
 That durst upon a truth give doom,
 He knew less than the Pope of Rome.
 " CANDAN believ'd great states depend 895
 Upon the tip o' th' Bear's tail's end ;
 That, as she whisk'd it t'wards the Sun,
 Strow'd mighty empires up and down ;
 Which others say must needs be false,
 Because your true bears have no tails. 900
 Some say the Zodiack Constellations
 Have long since chang'd their antique stations
 Above a sign, and prove the same
 In Taurus now once in the Ram ;
 Affirm the trigons chop'd and chang'd, 905
 The watry with the fiery rang'd :

Then how can their effects still hold
 'To be the same they were of old ?
 This, though the art were true, would make
 Our modern soothsayers mistake : 910
 And in one cause they tell more lies,
 In figures and nativities,
 Than th' old ^w Chaldean conjurers
 In so many hundred thousand years ;
 Beside their nonsense in translating, 915
 For want of accident and Latin,
 Like Idus, and Calendæ, Englisht
 The quarter-days by skilful linguist ;
 And yet with canting, sleight and cheat,
 'Twill serve their turn to do the feat : 920
 Make fools believe in their foreseeing
 Of things before they are in being ;
 To swallow gudgeons ere th' are catch'd ;
 And count their chickens ere th' are hatch'd ;
 Make them the constellations prompt, 925
 And give 'em back their own account ;
 But still the best to him that gives
 The best price for't, or best believes.
 Some towns and cities, some, for brevity,
 Have cast the ^liversal world's nativity, 930
 And made the infant-stars confess,
 Like fools or children, what they please.
 Some calculate the hidden fates
 Of monkeys, puppy-dogs, and cats ;
 Some running-nags and fighting-cocks, 935
 Some love, trade, law-suits, and the pox ;
 Some take a measure of the lives
 Of fathers, mothers, husbands, wives ;
 Make opposition, trine, and quartile,
 Tell who is barren, and who fertile ; 940

As if the planet's first aspect
 The tender infant did instruct
 In soul and body, and instill
 All future good, and future ill;
 Which, in their dark fatalities lurking, 945
 At destin'd periods fall a working;
 And break out, like the hidden seeds
 Of long diseases, into deeds,
 In friendships, enmities, and strife,
 And all th' emergencies of life. 950
 No sooner does he peep into
 The world, but he has done his do;
 Catch'd all diseases, took all physick
 That cures or kills a man that is sick;
 Marry'd his punctual dose of wives; 955
 Is cuckolded, and breaks or thrives.
 There's but the twinkling of a star
 Between a man of peace and war;
 A thief and justice, fool and knave,
 A huffing officer and a slave; 960
 A crafty lawyer and a pick-pocket,
 A great philosopher and a blockhead;
 A formal preacher and a player,
 A learn'd physician and manlayer.
 As if men from the stars did suck 965
 Old age, diseases, and ill-luck,
 Wit, folly, honour, virtue, vice,
 Trade, travel, women, claps, and dice;
 And draw, with the first air they breathe,
 Battle and murder, sudden death. 970
 Are not these fine commodities
 To be imported from the skies,
 And vend'd here amongst the rabble,
 For staple goods and warrantable?

* Like money by the Druids borrow'd, 975
In th' other world to be restor'd?

Quoth SIDROPHYL, To let you know
You wrong the art, and artists too,
Since arguments are lost on those
That do our principles oppose, 980
I will (although I've done't before)
Demonstrate to your sense once more,
And draw a figure, that shall tell you
What you, perhaps, forget besel you,
By way of horary inspection, 985
Which some account our worst erection.
With that he circles draws, and squares,
With cyphers, astral characters;
Then looks 'em o'er, to understand 'em,
Although set down hab-nab, at random. 990

Quoth he, This scheme of th' heavens set,
Discovers how in fight you met
At Kingston with a may-pole idol,
And that y' were bang'd both back and side
And though you overcame the bear, [well;
The dogs beat you at Brentford fair; 996
Where sturdy butchers broke your noddle,
And handled you like a fop-doodle.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, I now perceive
You are no conj'rer, by your leave: 1000
That y' paultry story is untrue,
And forg'd to cheat such gulls as you.

Not true? quoth he; howe'er you vapour,
I can what I affirm make appear.
WHACHUM shall justify't t' your face, 1005
And prove he was upon the place.
He play'd the Salinbancho's part,
Transform'd t' a Frenchman by my art:

He stole your cloak, and pick'd your pocket,
 Chew'd and caldes'd ye like a blockhead
 And what you lost I can produce, 1011
 If you deny it, here i' th' house

Quoth HUDIBRAS, I do believe
 That argument's demonstrative
 RALPHO, bear witness, and so fetch us 1015
 A constable to seize the wretches
 For though th' are both false knives and
 Imposters, jugglers, counterfeiters, [cheats,
 I'll make them serve for perpendiculars
 As true as e'er were us'd by bricklayers 1020
 They're guilty, by their own confessions,
 Of felony, and at the sessions,
 Upon the bench, I will so handle 'em,
 That the vibration of this pendulum
 Shall make all taylor's yards of one 1025
 Unanimous opinion,
 A thing he long has vapour'd of,
 But now shall make it out by proof.

Quoth SIDROPHEL, I do not doubt
 To find friends that will bear me out. 1030
 Nor have I hazarded my art,
 And neck, so long on the state's part,
 To be expos'd i' th' end to suffer
 By such a blaggadocio huffer.

Huffer! quoth HUDIBRAS: this sword 1035
 Shall down thy false throat cram that word.
 RALPHO, make haste, and call an officer,
 To apprehend this Stygian sophister.
 Me in while I'll hold 'em at a bay,
 Lest he and WHACHUM run away. 1040

BUT SIDROPHEL, who, from the aspect
 'Of HUDIBRAS, did now elect

A figure worse portending fu
 Than that of a malignant star,
 Believ'd it now the fittest moment 1045
 To shun the danger that might come on't,
 While HUDIBRAS was all alone,
 And he and WHACHUM, two to one.
 This being resolv'd, he spy'd, by chance,
 Behind the door, an iron lance, 1050
 That many a sturdy limb had gor'd,
 And leg, and loins, and shoulders bor'd.
 He snitch'd it up, and made a pass,
 To make his way through HUDIBRAS.
 WHACHUM had got a fire-fork, 1055
 With which he vow'd to do his work.
 But HUDIBRAS was well prepar'd,
 And stoutly stood upon his guard.
 He put by SIDROPHILO's thrust,
 And in right manfully he rusht, 1060
 The weapon from his gripe he wrung,
 And laid him on the earth along.
 WHACHUM his sea-coal prong threw by,
 And basely turn'd his back to fly:
 But HUDIBRAS gave him a twitch 1065
 As quick as light'ning in the breech,
 Just in the place where honour's lodg'd,
 As wise philosophers have judg'd;
 Because a kick in that place more
 Hurts honour than deep wounds before. 1070
 Quoth HUDIBRAS, The stars determine
 You are my prisoners, base vermine!
 Could they not tell you so as well
 As what I came to know foretell?
 By this what cheats you are we find, 1075
~~That~~ in your own conceits are blind.

Your lives are now at my dispose,
 To be redeem'd by fine or blows
 But who his honour wou'd defile,
 To take or sell two lives so vile? 1080
 I'll give you quarter, but your pillage,
 The conqu'ring warrior's crop and tillage,
 Which with his sword he reaps and plows,
 That's mine, the law of arms allows
 This said, in haste, in haste he fell 1085
 To rummaging of SIDROPHEL.
 First, he expounded both his pockets,
 And found a watch, with rings and lockets,
 Which had been left with him t'erecēt
 A figure tor, and so detect; 1090
 A copper-plate, with almanacks
 Engrav'd upon't, with other knacks,
 Of BOOKER'S, LILLY'S, SARAH JIMMERS,
 And blink-schemes to discover nimmers,
 A moon dial, with Napier's bones, 1095
 And sev'ral constellation stones,
 Engrav'd in planetary hours,
 That over mortals had strange powers
 To make 'em thrive in law or trade,
 And stab or poison to evade, 1100
 In wit or wisdom to improve,
 And be victorious in love.
 WHACHUM had neither cross nor pile;
 His plunder was not worth the while;
 All which the conqu'ror did discompt, 1105
 To pay for curing of his-rump.
 But SIDROPHEL, as full of tricks
 As Rota-men of politicks,
 Streight cast about to over-reach
 Th' unwary conqu'ror with a fetch, 1110

And make him glad (at least) to quit
 His victory, and fly the pit,
 * Before the Secular Prince of Darkness
 Arriv'd to seize upon his carcass?
 And as a fox, with hot pursuit 1115
 Chac'd thro' a warren, casts about
 To save his credit, and among
 Dead vermin on a gallows hung,
 And while the dogs run underneath,
 Escap'd (by counterfeiting death) 1120
 Not out of cunning, but a train
 Of atoms jussling in his brain,
 As learn'd philosophers give out,
 So SIDROPIELLO cast about,
 And fell to's wonted trade again, 1125
 To feign himself in earnest slain:
 First stretch'd out one leg, then another,
 And seeming in his breath to smother
 A broken sigh; quoth he, Where am I,
 Alive or dead? or which way came I 1130
 Through so immense a space so soon?
 But now I thought myself in th' Moon;
 And that a monster, with huge whiskers,
 More formidable than a Switzer's, 1134
 My body through and through had drill'd,
 And WHACHUM by my side had kill'd:
 Had cross-examin'd both our hose,
 And plunder'd all we had to lose.
 Look, there he is; I see him now,
 And feel the place I am run through: 1140

Shut both his eyes, and stop'd his breath,
And to the life out-acted death ; 1146
That HUDIBRAS, to all appearing,
Believ'd him to be dead as herring.
He held it now longer safe
To tarry the return of RAPH, 1150
But rather leave him in the lurch :
Thought he, he has abus'd our Church,
Refus'd to give himself one firke
To carry on the publick work ;
Despis'd our Synod-Men like dirt, 1155
And made their discipline his sport ;
Divulg'd the secrets of their classes,
And their conventions prov'd high places ;
Disparag'd their tythe-pigs as Pagan,
And set at nought their cheese and bacon ;
Rail'd at their Covenant, and jeer'd 1161
Their rev'rend parsons, to my beard :
For all which scandals, to be quit
At once, this juncture falls out fit.
I'll make him henceforth to beware, 1165
And tempt my fury, if he dare.
He must at least hold up his hand,
By twelve freeholders to be scann'd ;
Who, by their skill in palmistry,
Will quickly read his destiny ; 1170
And make him glad to read his lesson,
Or take a turn for it at the session ;
Unless his Light and Gifts prove truer
Than ever yet they did, I'm sure ;
For if he 'scape with whipping now, 1175
'Tis more than he can hope to do ;
And that will disengage my conscience
Of th' obligation in his own sense,

I'll make him now by force abide
What he by gentle means deny'd, 1180
To give my honour satisfaction,
And right the Brethren in the action.
This being resolv'd, with equal speed
And conduct he approach'd his steed,
And with activity unwont, 1185
Assay'd the lottty beast to mount;
Which once atchiev'd, he spurr'd his palfrey,
To get from th' enemy, and RALPH, free:
Left danger, fears, and foes behind,
And beat, at last three lengths, the wind. 1190

NOTES TO PART II. CANTO I.

1 BUT now ^a t' observe, &c.] The beginning of this Second Part may perhaps seem strange and abrupt to those who do not know that it was written on purpose in imitation of Virgil, who begins the IVth Book of his Æneids in the very same manner, At Regina gravi, &c. And this is enough to satisfy the curiosity of those who believe that invention and fancy ought to be measured (like cases in law) by precedents, or else they are in the power of the critick.

205 ^b A Saxon Duke, &c.] This history of the Duke of Saxony is not so strange as that of a Bishop, his countryman, who was quite eaten up with rats and mice.

237 ^c King Pyrrhus, &c.] Pyrrhus, King of Epirus, as Pliny says, had this occult quality in his toe, Pollicis in dextro Pede tactu Lienosis medebatur, L. 7. C. 11.

259 In close ^d Catasta shut, &c.] Catasta is but a pair of stocks in English. But heroical poetry must not admit of any vulgar word, (especially of paltry signification,) and therefore some of our modern authors are fain to import foreign words from abroad, that were never before heard of in our language.

371 ^e The ancient writers of the lives of saints were of the same sort of people who first writ of knight-errantry: and as in the one they rendered the brave actions of some great persons ridiculous, by their prodigious lies, and sottish way of describing them, they have abused the piety of some devout persons, by imposing such stories on them as this upon St. Francis.

393 This made the beauteous ^f Queen, &c.] The History of Pasiphaë is common enough: only this may be observed, that tho' she brought the bull a son and heir, yet the husband was fain to father it; as appears by the name; perhaps, because being an island, he was within the four seas when the infant was begotten.

438 ^a As your own Secretary, &c.] Albertus Magnus was a Swedish Bishop, who wrote a very learned work, De Secretis Mulierum.

477 Unless it be to ^b squint, &c.] Pliny, in his Natural History, affirms, that Unus animalium homini oculi depravatur, unde Cognomina Strabonum & Pteronum. Lib. 2.

532 As Friar ¹ Bacon's Noddle was, &c.] The tradition of Friar Bacon and the Brasen Head is very commonly known, and, considering the times he lived in, is not much more strange than what another great Philosopher of his name has delivered up of a ring, that being tied in a string, and held like a pendulum in the middle of a silver bowl, will vibrate of itself, and tell exactly, against the sides of the divining cup, the same thing with, Time is, Time was, &c.

533 ^k Ameri an Indians, among whom (the same authors affirm) there are others, whose skulls are so soft, to use their own words, Ut Digito perfrangant possunt.

556 Or ¹ Oracle, &c.] Jupiter's Oracle in Epirus, near the City of Dodona, Ubi Nymphis erat Jovis sacrum, Quercuum totum, in quo Jovis Dodonæ templum fuisse narratur.

715 ¹ Semiramis, Queen of Assyria, is said to be the first that invented Eunuchs. Semiramis teneros pueros custodivit omnium prima. Am. Marcl. L. 34. p. 12. Which is something strange in a lady of her constitution, who is said to have received horses into her embraces; but that, perhaps, may be the reason why she after thought men not worth the while.

725 For some ^m Philosophers, &c.] Sir K. D. in his Book of Bodies, who has this story of the German Boy, which he endeavours to make good by several natural reasons; by which those who have the dexterity to believe what they please, may be fully satisfied of the probability of it.

845 A ⁿ Persian Emp'or, &c.] Xerxes, who used to whip the seas and wind. In Corum atque Eurum solitus ferire Flagellis. Juv. Sat. 10.

NOTES TO PART II. CANTO II.

15^a So th' ancient Stoicks, &c.] In Porticu (Stoicorum Schola Athenis) Discipulorum seditionibus mille Quadiingenti triginta Crues interfecti sunt. Diog. Laert. in vita Zenonis, p. 389. Those old Virtuosos were better proficient in those exercises than modern, who seldom improve higher than cussing and kicking.

19^a Bonum is such a kind of animal as our modern Virtuosi from Don Quixote will have windmills under sail to be. The same authors are of opinion, that all ships are fishes while they are afloat; but when they are run on ground, or laid up in the dock, become ships again.

413^p In a Town, &c.] The history of the Cobler has been attested by persons of good credit, who were upon the place when it was done.

548^q Have been exchange'd, &c.] The Knight was kept prisoner in Exeter, and, after several exchanges proposed, but none accepted of, was at last released for a barrel of ale, as he often used to declare.

678^r Bore a slave with him in his chariot, &c.]

————— Et sibi Consul
Me placeat, curru servus portatur eodem.

683^a Hung out, &c.] Tunica Coccinea solebat pridie quam dimicandum esset, supra prætorium poni, quasi admonitio, & indicium futurae pugnae. Lipsius in Tacit. p. 56.

687^c Next Links, &c.] That the Roman Emperors were wont to have torches before them (by day) in publick, appears by Herodian in Pertinace. liff. in Tacit. p. 16.

879^u Vespasian being darob'd, &c.] C. Cæsar suscepsens, præter curram verrendis viis non adhibitam, Lato jussit applicari onagris per milites in prætexta, suavitè Sueton in Vespas. C. 5.

NOTES TO PART II. CANTO III.

140 A w Ledger, &c.] The Witch-finder in Suffolk, who, in the Presbyterian times, had a commission to discover witches, of whom (right or wrong) he caused 60 to be hanged within the compass of one year; and, among the rest, the old minister, who had been a painful preacher for many years.

159 *Did he not help the * Dutch, &c.*] In the beginning of the civil wars of Flanders, the common people of Antwerp in a tumult broke open the cathedral church, to demolish images and shrines, and did so much mischief in a small time, that Strada writes, there were several Devils seen very busy among them, otherwise it had been impossible.

161  Sing catches, &c.*] This Devil at Mascon delivered all his oracles, like his forefathers, in verse, which he sung to tunes. He made several lampoons upon the Hugonots, and foretold them many things which afterwards came to pass; as may be seen in his Memoirs, written in French.

163  Appear'd in divers, &c.*] The History of Dr. Dee and the Devil; published by Mer. Casaubon, Isaac Fil. Prebendary of Canterbury, has a large account of all those passages, in which the stile of the true and false angels appears to be penned by one and the same person. The Nun of Loudon, in France, and all her tricks, have been seen by many persons of quality of this nation yet living, who have made very good observations upon the French book written on that occasion.

165  Meet with, &c.*] A Committee of the Long Parliament, sitting in the King's house in Woodstock-Park, were terrified with several apparitions, the particulars whereof were then the news of the whole nation.

167  At Sarum, &c.*] Withers has a long story, in doggerel, of a soldier of the King's army, who, being a prisoner at Salisbury, and drinking a health to the Devil upon his knees, was carried away by him through a single pane of glass.

224 Since old ° Hodge Bacon, &c.] Roger Bacon, commonly called Fiur Bacon, lived in the reign of our Edward I. and, for some little skill he had in the mathematicks, was by the rabble accounted a conjurer, and had the sottish story of the Brazen Head fathered upon him by the ignorant Monks of those days. Robert Grosbeak was Bishop of Lincoln in the reign of Hen. III. He was a learned man for those times, and for that reason suspected by the Clergy to be a conjurer; for which crime being degraded by Pope Innocent IV. and summoned to appear at Rome, he appealed to the Tribunal of Christ; which our lawyers say is illegal, if not a Præmunire, for offering to sue in a Foreign Court.

313 Which ° Socrates, &c.] Aristophanes, in his Comedy of the Clouds, brings in Socrates and Chærophon, measuring the leap of a flea from the one's beard to the other's.

404 ° Was rais'd by him, &c.] This Fisk was a late famous astrologer, who flourished about the time of Subtle and Face, and was equally celebrated by Ben Johnson.

436 ° Unless it be, &c.] This experiment was tried by some foreign Virtuoso's, who planted a piece of ordnance point-blank against the Zenith, and having fired it, the bullet never rebounded back again; which made them all conclude that it sticks in the mark: but Des Cartes was of opinion, that it does but hang in the air.

477 ° As lately 't was, &c.] This Sedgwick had many persons (and some of quality) that believed in him, and prepared to keep the day of judgment with him, but were disappointed; for which the false prophet was afterwards called by the name of Dooms-day Sedgwick.

609 ^e Your modern Indian, &c.] This compendious new way of magick is affirmed by Monsieur Le Blanc (in his Travels) to be used in the East Indies.

627 ^h Bumbastus kept, &c.] Paracelsus is said to have kept a small Devil prisoner in the pommel of his sword, which was the reason, perhaps, why he was so valiant in his drink. Howsoever, it was to better purpose than Hannibal carried poison in his, to dispatch himself, if he should happen to be surprized in any great extremity; for the sword would have done the feat alone much better; and more soldier like; and it was below the honour of so great a commander to go out of the world like a rat.

635 ⁱ Agrippa kept, &c.] Cornelius Agrippa had a dog that was suspected to be a spirit, for some tricks he was wont to do beyond the capacity of a dog, as it was thought; but the author of Magia Adamica has taken a great deal of pains to vindicate both the doctor and the dog from the aspersions, in which he has shewn a very great respect and kindness for them both.

679 ^k Averrhois, &c.] Averrhois Astronomiam propter Excentricos contempsit. Phil. Melancthon in Elem. Phil. p. 781.

691 ^l The Median Emp'rour dreamt his Daughter, &c.] Astyages, King of Media, had this dream of his daughter Mandane, and the interpretation from the Magi; wherefore he married her to a Persian of a mean quality, by whom she had Cyrus, who conquered all Asia, and translated the empire from the Medes to the Persians. Herodot. l. 1.

697 ^m When Cæsar, &c.] Fiunt aliquando prodigiosi, & longiores Solis Defectus, quales occiso Cæsare Dictatore & Antoniano Bello, totius Anni Pallor continuo. Plin.

701 ⁿ Augustus, having, &c.] Divus Augustus lacum sibi prodidit calceum præposuere idutum, quo die seditione Militum prope afflictus est. Idem l. 2.

709 ° The Roman Senate, &c.] Romani L. Crasse & C. Mario Cossi. Bubone viso orbem lustrabant.

737 For ° Anaxagoras, &c.] Anaxagoras affirmabat Solem candens Ferrum esse, & Peloponneso majorem: Lunam Habitacula in se habere, & Colles, & Valles. Fecit dixisse Coelum omne ex Lapidibus esse compositum; Damnatuſque in exilium pulsus est, quod impie Solem candentem luminam esse dixisset, Diog. Laert. in Anaxag. p. 11, 13.

865 ° Tb' Egyptiana, say, &c.] Ægypti decem millia Annorum & amplius recenscent; & observatum est in hoc tanto Spatio, bis mutata esse Loca Ortuum & Occasuum Solis, ita ut Sol bis ortus sit ubi nunc occidit, & bis descenderit ubi nunc oritur. Phil. Melanct. Lib. 1. Pag. 66.

871 ° Some hold the heavens, &c.] Causa quare Coelum non cadit (secundum Empedoclem) est velocitas sui motus. Comment. in L. 2. Aristot. de Cælo.

877 ° Plato believ'd, &c.] Plato Solem & Lunam cæteris Planctis inferiores esse putavit. G. Gunnin in Cosmog. L. 1. p. 11.

881 ° The learned Scaliger, &c.] Copernicus in Libris Revolutionem, deinde Reinboldus, post etiam Stadius Mathematici nobiles perspicuis Demonstrationibus docuerunt, solis Apſida Terris esse propiorem, quam Ptolemæi ætate duodecim partibus, i. e. uno & triginta terræ semidiametris. Jo. Bod. Met. Hist. p. 455.

895 ° Cardan believ'd, &c.] Putat Cardanus, ab extrema Cauda Halices seu Majoris Ursæ omne magnum Imperium pendere. Idem p. 325.

913 ° Tban th' old Chaldean, &c.] Chaldæi jactant se quadringinta septuaginta Annorum millia in periclitandis, experiri, adque Puerorum Animis posuisse. Cicero.

975 ° Like Money, &c.] Druidæ pecuniam mutuo accipiebant in posteriore vita reddituri. Patricius Tom. 2. p. 9.

1001 ° That paltry story, &c.] There was a notorious idcot. (that is here described by the name and character of Whackum) who counterfeited a Second

Part of Hudibras, as untowardly as Captain Po, who could not write himself, and yet made a shift to stand on the pillory for forging other mens' hands, as his fellow Whachum no doubt deserved; in whose abominable doggrel this story of Hudibras and a French mountebank at Brentford fair is as properly described.

1024 That the 2^d Vibration, &c.] The device of the vibration of a Pendulum was intended to settle a certain measure of ells and yards, &c. (that should have its foundation in nature) all the world over: For by swinging a weight at the end of a string, and calculating by the motion of the sun, or any star, how long the vibration would last, in proportion to the length of the string, and weight of the pendulum, they thought to reduce it back again, and from any part of time compute the exact length of any string that must necessarily vibrate into so much space of time; so that if a man should ask in China for a quarter of an hour of satin, or taffata, they would know perfectly what it meant; and all mankind learn a new way to measure things no more by the yard, foot, or inch, but by the hour, quarter, and minute.

1113 * Before the Secular, &c.] As the Devil is the Spiritual Prince of Darkness, so is the Constable the Secular, who governs in the night with as great authority as his colleague, but far more imperiously.

AN HEROICAL EPISTLE OF HUDIBRAS TO SIDROPHEL.

Eccæ iterum Celsipinus—

WELL! SIDROPHEL, though 'tis in vain
 To tamper with your crazy brain,
 Without prepanning of your skull
 As often as the moon's at full;
 'Tis not amiss, e're y' are giv'n o'er, 5
 To try one desp'rate med'cine more:
 For where your case can be no worse,
 The desp'rat'st is the wisest course.
 Is't possible that you, whose ears
 Are of the tribe of Issachar's, 10
 And might (with equal reason) either
 For merit, or extent of leather,
 With WILLIAM PRYN's, before they were
 Retrench'd and crucify'd, compare,
 Shou'd yet be deaf against a noise 15
 So roaring as the publick voice?
 That speaks your virtues free, and loud,
 And openly in ev'ry crowd,
 As loud as one that sings his part
 T' a wheel-barrow or turnip-cart, 20
 Or your new nick-nam'd old invention
 To cry green-hastings with an engine;
 (As if the vehemence had stunn'd,
 And torn your drum-heads with the sound;)

And 'cause your folly's now no news, 25
 But overgrown, and out of use,
 Persuade yourself there's no such matter,
 But that 'tis vanish'd out of nature;

224 AN HEROICAL EPISTLE OF

When folly, as it grows in years,
 The more extravagant appears; 30
 For who but you could be possest
 With so much ignorance, and beast,
 That neither all mens' scorn and hate,
 Nor being laugh'd and pointed at,
 Nor bray'd so often in a mortar, 35
 Can teach you wholesome sense and nurture;
 But (like a reprobate) what course
 Soever's us'd, grow worse and worse?
 Can no transfusion of the blood,
 That makes fools cattle, do you good, 40
 Nor putting pigs t' a bitch to nurse,
 To turn 'em into mungrel-curs,
 Put you into a way, at least,
 To make yourself a better beast?
 Can all your critical intrigues 45
 Of trying found from rotten eggs;
 Your sev'ral new-found remedies
 Of curing wounds and scabs in trees;
 Your arts of fluxing them for claps,
 And purging their infected saps; 50
 Recov'ring shankers, crystallines,
 And nodes and botches in their rinds,
 Have no effect to operate,
 Upon that duller block, your pate?
 But still it must be lewdly bent 55
 To tempt your own due punishment;
 And, like your whimsy'd chariots, draw,
 The boys to course you without law;
 As if the art you have so long
 Profess'd, of making old dogs young, 60
 In you had virtue to renew
 Not only youth, but childhood too.

Can you, that understand all books,
 By judging only with your looks,
 Resolve all problems with your face, 65
 As others do with B's and A's;
 Umuddle all that mankind knows
 With solid bending of your brows;
 All arts and sciences advance,
 With screwing of your countenance, 70
 And, with a penetrating eye,
 Into th' abstrusest learning pry;
 Know more of any trade b' a hint,
 Than those that have been bred up in't;
 And yet have no art, true or false, 75
 To help your own bad naturals;
 But still, the more you strive t' appear,
 Are found to be the wretcheder:
 For fools are known by looking wise,
 As men find woodcocks by their eyes. 80
 Hence 'tis that 'cause y' have g'in'd o' th' col-
 A quarter share (at most) of knowledge, [lege
 And brought in none, but spent repute,
 Y' assume a pow'r as resolute
 To judge, and censure, and controul, 85
 As if you were the sole Sir Poll;
 And saucily pretend to know
 More than your dividend comes to.
 You'll find the thing will not be done
 With ignorance and face alone: 90
 No, though y' have purchas'd to your name,
 In history, so great a fame;
 That now your talents, so well known,
 For having all belief out-grown,
 That ev'ry strange prodigious tale 95
 Is measur'd by your German scale;

226 AN HEROICAL EPISTLE, &c.

By which the virtuosi try
 The magnitude of ev'ry lye,
 Cast up to what it does amount,
 And place the bigg'st to your account; 100
 That all those stories that are laid
 Too truly to you, and those made,
 Are now still charg'd upon your score,
 And lesser authors nam'd no more.
 Alas! that faculty betrays 105
 Those soonest it designs to raise;
 And all your vain renown will spoil,
 As guns o'ercharg'd the more recoil.
 Though he that has but impudence,
 To all things has a fair pretence; 110
 And put among his wants but shame,
 To all the world may lay his claim:
 Though you have try'd that nothing's borne
 With greater ease than public scorn,
 That all affronts do still give place 115
 To your impenetrable face,
 That makes your way through all affairs,
 As pigs through hedges creep with theirs:
 Yet as 'tis counterfeit, and brags,
 You must not think 'twill always pass; 120
 For all impostors, when th'ye known,
 Are past their labour, and undone.
 And all the best that can befall
 An artificial natural,
 Is that which madmen find as soon 125
 As once they're broke loose from the moon,
 And, proof against her influence,
 Relapse to e'er so little sense,
 To turn stark fools, and subjects fit
 For sport of boys, and rabble-wit. 130

HUDIBRAS.

PART III.

CANTO I.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Knight and Squire resolve, at once,
The one the other to rescue
They both approach the Lady's Bower,
The Squire to inform, the Knight to woo her.
She tries them with a Maquado,
By Faints and Hobgoblins made;
From which the Squire conveys the Knight,
And steals him from himself, by Night.

'TIS true, no lover has that pow'r
To enforce a desperate amour,
As he that has two strings to his bow,
And burns for love and money too;
For then he's brave and resolute, 5
Disdains to ~~repulse~~ in his suit,
Has all his ~~pleasures~~ and raptures double,
And hangs or drowns with half the trouble;
While those who silly pursue
The simple, downright way, and true, 10
Make as unlucky applications,
And steer against the stream their passions.

Some forge their mistresses of stars,
 And when the ladies prove averse,
 And a more untoward to be won 15
 Than by CALIGULA the Moon,
 Cry out upon the stars, for doing
 Ill offices to cross their wooing;
 When only by themselves they're hindred,
 For trusting those they made her kindred, 20
 And still, the haither and hide-bounder
 The damsel prove, become the sonder.
 For what mad lover ever dy'd
 To gain a soft and gentle bride?
 Or for a lady tender-hearted, 25
 In purling streams or heap departed?
 Leap'd headlong int' Elysium,
 Through th' windows of a dazzling room?
 But, for some cross, ill-natur'd dame,
 The am'rous fly burnt in his flame. 30
 This to the Knight could be no news,
 With all mankind so much in use;
 Who therefore took the wiser course,
 To make the most of his amours,
 Resolv'd to try all sorts of ways, 35
 As follows in due time and place.
 No sooner was the bloody fight,
 Between the Wizard and the Knight,
 With all th' appurtenances, over,
 But he relaps'd again t' a lover; 40
 As he was always wont to do,
 When h' had discomfited a foe;
 And us'd the only antique^b philters,
 Deriv'd from old heroic tilters.
 But now triumphant, and victorious, 45
 He held th' atchievement was too glorious

For such a conqueror to meddle
With petty constable or headle ;
Or fly for refuge to the Hostels 49
Of th' Inns of Court and Chancery, Justice ;
Who might, perhaps, reduce his cause
To th' ordeal trial of the laws ;
Where none escape, but such as branded
With red-hot irons have pass bare-handed ;
And, if they cannot read one verse 55
I' th' Psalms, must sing it, and that's worse.
He therefore judging it below him,
To tempt a shame the Devil might owe him,
Resolv'd to leave the Squire for bail
And mainprize for him to the gaol, 60
To answer, with his vessel, all
That might disastrously befall ;
And thought it now the fittest juncture
To give the Lady a rencounter ;
T' acquaint her with his expedition, 65
And conquest o'er the fierce Magician ;
Describe the manner of the fray,
And shew the spoils he brought away ;
His bloody scourging aggravate ;
The number of the blows, and weight ; 70
All which might probably succeed,
And gain belief h' had done the deed ;
Which he resolv'd t' enforce, and spare
No pawning of his soul to swear ;
But, rather than produce his back, 75
To set his conscience on the rack ;
And, in pursuance of his urging
Of articles perform'd and scourging,
And all things else, upon his part,
Demand deliv'ry of her heart, 80

Her goods, and chattels, and good graces,
 And person up to his embraces.
 Thought he, the ancient errant knights
 Won all their ladies hearts in fights;
 And cut whole giants into fritters, 85
 To put them into amorous twitters;
 Whole stubborn bowels scorn'd to yield
 Until their gallants were half kill'd:
 But when their bones were drub'd so sore,
 They durst not woo one combat more, 90
 The ladies hearts began to melt,
 Subdu'd by blows their lovers felt.
 So ' Spanish heroes, with their lances,
 At once wound bulls and ladies' fancies;
 And he acquires the noblest spouse 95
 That widows greatest herds of cows:
 Then what may I expect to do,
 Wh' have quell'd so vast a buffalo?

Mean while, the Squire was on his way
 The Knight's late orders to obey; 100
 Who sent him for a strong detachment
 Of beadles, constables, and watchmen,
 T' attack the cunning-man for plunder,
 Committed falsely on his lumber;
 When he, who had so lately sack'd 105
 The enemy, had done the fact;
 Had rifled all his pokes and fobs
 Of gimcracks, whims, and jiggumbobs,
 Which he, by hook or crook, had gather'd,
 And for his own inventions father'd: 110
 And when they should, at gaol delivery,
 Unriddle one another's thievery,
 Both might have evidence enough,
 To render neither halter-proof.

He thought it desperate to tarry, 115
 And venture to be accessary;
 But rather wisely slip his fetters,
 And leave them for the Knight, his betters;
 He call'd to mind th' unjust, foul play
 He wou'd have offer'd him that day, 120
 To make him curry his own hide,
 Which no beast ever did beside,
 Without all possible evasion,
 But of the riding dispensation;
 And therefore much about the hour 125
 The Knight (for reasons told before)
 Resolv'd to leave them to the fury
 Of Justice, and an unpack'd Jury,
 The Squire concurr'd t' abandon him,
 And serve him in the self-same trim; 130
 T' acquaint the Lady what h' had done,
 And what he meant to carry on;
 What project 'twas he went about,
 When SIDROPHEL and he fell out;
 His firm and stedfast resolution, 135
 To swear her to an execution;
 To pawn his inward ears to marry her,
 And bribe the Devil himself to carry her,
 In which both dealt, as if they meant
 Their Party-Saints to represent, 140
 Who never fail'd, upon their sharing
 In any prosperous arms-bearing,
 To lay themselves out, to supplant
 Each other Cousin-German Saint. 144
 But, ere the Knight could do his part,
 The Squire had got so much the start,
 H' had to the Lady done his errand,
 And told her all his tricks afore-hand.

Just as he finish'd his report,
 The Knight alighted in the court ; 150
 And having ty'd his beast t' a pale,
 And taking time for both to stale,
 He put his band and beard in order,
 The spencer to accost and board her ;
 And now began t' approach the door, 155
 When she, wh' had spy'd him out before,
 Convey'd th' informer out of sight,
 And went to entertain the Knight ;
 With whom encount'ring, after longees
 Of humble and submissive congees, 160
 And all due ceremonies paid,
 He strok'd his beard, and thus he said :

Madam, I do, as is my duty,
 Honour the shadow of your shoe-tye ;
 And now am come, to bring your ear 165
 A present you'll be glad to hear :
 At least I hope so : The thing's done,
 Or may I never see the sun ;
 For which I humbly now demand
 Performance at your gentle hand ; 170
 And that you'd please to do your part,
 As I have done mine, to my smart.

With that he shugg'd his sturdy back,
 As if he felt his shoulders ake.
 But she, who well enough knew what 175
 (Before he spoke) he would be at,
 Pretended not to apprehend
 The mystery of what he mean'd ;
 And therefore wish'd him to expound
 His dark expressions, less profound. 180

Madam, quoth he, I come to prove
 How much I've suffer'd for your love,

Which (like your votary) to win,
 I have not spar'd my tartar'd skin;
 And, for those meritorious lishes, 185
 To claim your favour and good graces.

Quoth she, I do remember once
 I fixed you from th' enchanted scone,
 And that you promis'd, for that favour,
 To bind your buck to good behaviour,
 And, for my sake and service, vow'd 191
 To live upon t' a heavy load,
 And what twould bear t' a scruple prove,
 A' other Knights do oft make love,
 Which, whether you have done or no, 195
 Concerns yourself, not me, to know.

But if you have, I shall confess,
 Y' are honeste'r than I could guess
 Quoth he, If you suspect my troth,
 I cannot prove it but by oath, 200
 And if you make a question on't,
 I'll pawn my soul that I have don't;
 And he that makes his soul his surety,
 I think, does give the best security.

Quoth she, Some say, the soul's secure 205
 Asunst distress and forfeiture,
 Is free from action, and exempt
 From execution and contempt;
 And to be summon'd to appear
 In th' other world's illegal here; 210
 And therefore few make any account
 Int' what incumbrances they run't:
 For most men carry things so even
 Between this World, and Hell, and Heaven,
 Without the least offence to either, 215
 They freely deal in all together;

And equally abhor to quit
 This world for both, or both for it;
 And when they pawn and damn their souls,
 Th' are but pris'ners on paroles. 220

For that (quoth he) 'tis rational,
 Th' may be accountable in all:
 For when there is that intercourse
 Between divine and human pow'rs,
 That all that we determine here 225
 Commands obedience every where,
 When penalties may be commuted
 For fines or ears, and executed,
 It follows, nothing binds so fast
 As souls in pawn and mortgage past: 230
 For oaths are th' only tests and seals
 of right and wrong, and true and false;
 And there's no other way to try
 The doubts of law and justice by. 234

(Quoth she) What is it you would swear?
 There's no believing till I hear:
 For, till they're understood, all tales
 (Like nonsense) are not true nor false.

(Quoth he) When I resolv'd t' obey
 What you commanded th' other day, 240
 And to perform my exercise,
 (As schools are wont) for your fair eyes,
 I' avoid all scruples in the case,
 I went to do't upon the place.
 But as the Castle is enchanted 245
 By SIDROPHEL the Witch, and haunted
 With evil spirits; as you know,
 Who took my Squire and me for two,
 Before I'd hardly time to lay
 My weapons by, and disarray, 250

I heard a formidable noise,
Loud as the ^f Stentrophonick voice,
That roar'd far off, Dispatch and slip,
I'm ready with th' infernal whip,
That shall divest thy ribs from skin, 255
To expiate thy ling'ring sin.
Th' hast broken perfidiously thy oath,
And not perform'd thy plighted troth;
But spar'd thy renegade back,
Where th' hadst so great a prize at stake; 260
Which now the fates have order'd me
For penance and revenge to flea,
Unless thou presently make haste:
Time is, 'Time was: And there it ceas'd.
With which, though startled, I confess, 265
Yet th' horror of the thing was less than th' other dismal apprehension
Of interruption or prevention:
And therefore, snatching up the rod,
I laid upon my back a load; 270
Resolv'd to spare no flesh and blood,
To make my word and honour good;
Till tir'd, and taking truce at length,
For new recruits of breath and strength,
I felt the blows still ply'd as fast 275
As if th' had been by ~~s~~ lovers plac'd,
In raptures of platonick lashing,
And chaste contemplative bardashing;
When facing hastily about,
To stand upon my guard and scout, 280
I found th' infernal Cunning-man,
And th' Under-witch, his CALIBAN,
With scourges (like the Furies) aim'd,
That on my outward quarters storm'd,

In haste I snatch'd my weapon up, 285
 And gave their hellish rage a stop ;
 Call'd thrice upon your name, and fell
 Courageously on SIDROPHEL ;
 Who, now transform'd himself t' a bear,
 Began to roar aloud, and tear ; 290
 When I as furiously pret's'd on,
 My weapon down his throat to run ;
 Laid hold on him ; but he broke loose,
 And turn'd himself into a goose ;
 Div'd under water, in a pond, 295
 To hide himself from being found.
 In vain I sought him ; but, as soon
 As I perceiv'd him fled and gone,
 Prepar'd with equal haste and rage,
 His Under-forcerer t' engage. 300
 But bravely scorning to defile
 My sword with feeble blood and vile,
 I judg'd it better from a quick-
 Set hedge to cut a knotted stick,
 With which I furiously laid on. 305
 Till, in a harsh and doleful tone,
 It roar'd, O hold for pity, Sir :
 I am too great a sufferer,
 Abus'd, as you have been, b' a witch,
 But conjur'd into a worse caprich ; 310
 Who sends me out on many a jaunt,
 Old houses in the night to haunt,
 For opportunities t' improve
 Designs of thievery or love ;
 With drugs convey'd in drink or meat, 315
 All feats of witches counterfeit ;
 Kill pigs and geese with powder'd glass,
 And make it for enchantment pass ;

With cow-itch meazle like a leper, 319
 And choak with fumes of Guiney-pepper;
 Make leachers and their punks with dewtry,
 Commit phantastical advowtry;
 Bewitch^h Hermetick-men to run
 Stark staring mad with manicon;
 Believe mechanick Virtuosi 325
 Can raise 'em mountains inⁱ POTOSI;
 And, sillier than the antick fools,
 Take treasure for a heap of coals:
 Seek out for plants with signatures,
 To quack of universal cures: 330
 With figures ground on panes of glafs
 Make people on their heads to pals;
 And mighty heaps of coin increase,
 Reflected from a single piece,
 To draw in fools, whose nat'ral itches 335
 Incline perpetually to witches;
 And keep me in continual fears,
 And danger of my neck and ears;
 When less delinquent have been scourg'd,
 And hemp on wooden anvils forg'd, 340
 Which others for cravats have worn
 About their necks, and took a turn.
 I pity'd the sad punishment
 The wretched caitiff underwent,
 And left my drubbing of his bones, 345
 Too great an honour for pultrones;
 For Knights are bound to feel no blows
 From paulty and unequal foes,
 Who, when they slash, and cut to pieces,
 Do all with civilest addresses: 350
 Their horses never give a blow,
 But when they make a leg, and bow.

I therefore spar'd his flesh, and prest him
 About the witch with many a question.
 Quoth he, For many years he drove 355
 A kind of broking-trade in love;
 Employ'd in all th' intrigues, and trust
 Of feeble, speculative lust:
 Procurer to th' extravagancy,
 And crazy ribaldry of tancy, 360
 By those the Devil had forsook,
 As things below him to provoke.
 But b'ing a virtuoso, able
 'To snatter, quack, and cant, and dabble,
 He held his talent most adroit 365
 For any mystical exploit;
 As others of his tribe had done,
 And rais'd their prices three to one:
 For one predicting pump has th' odds
 Of chauldrons of plain downright bawds.
 But as an elf (the Devil's valet) 371
 Is not so slight a thing to get;
 For those that do his bus'ness best,
 In hell are us'd the ruggedest;
 Before so meriting a person 375
 Cou'd get a grant, but in reversion,
 He serv'd two prenticeships, and longer,
 I' th' mystry of a lady-monger.
 For (as some write) a witch's ghost,
 As soon as from the body loos'd, 380
 Becomes a puiney-imp itself,
 And is another witch's elf,
 He, after searching far and near,
 At length found one in LANCASHIRE,
 With whom he bargain'd before-hand, 385
 And, after hanging, entertain'd;

Since which h' has play'd a thousand feats,
 And practis'd all mechanic cheats,
 Transform'd himself to th' ugly shapes
 Of wolves and bears, baboons and apes, 390
 Which he has vary'd more than witches,
 Or Pharaoh's wizards cou'd their switches;
 And all with whom h' has had to do,
 Turn'd to as monstrous figures too.
 Witness myself, whom h' has abus'd, 395
 And to this beastly shape reduc'd,
 By feeding me on beans and pease,
 He crams in nasty crevices,
 And turns to comfits by his arts,
 To make me relish for diserts, 400
 And one by one, with shame and fear,
 Lick up the candy'd provender.
 Beside——But as h' was running on,
 To tell what other feats h' had done,
 The Lady stopt his full career, 405
 And told him now 'twas time to hear:
 If half those things (said she) be true—
 They're all, (quoth he,) I swear by you.
 Why then (said she) That SIDROPHEL
 Has damn'd himself to th' pit of Hell; 410
 Who, mounted on a broom, the nag
 And hackney of a Lapland hag,
 In quest of you came hither post,
 Within an hour (I'm sure) at most;
 Who told me all you swear and say, 415
 Quite contrary another way;
 Vow'd that you came to him to know
 If you should carry me or no;
 And would have hir'd him, and his imps,
 To be your match-makers and pimps, 420

T' engage the Devil on your side,
 And steal (like PROSERPINE) your bride.
 But he, disdain'g to embrace
 So filthy a design and base,
 You fell to vapouring and huffing, 425
 And drew upon him like a ruffin;
 Surpriz'd him meanly, unprepar'd,
 Before h' had time to mount his guard;
 And left him dead upon the ground, 429
 With many a bruise and desperate wound:
 Swore you had broke and robb'd his house,
 And stole his talismanique louse,
 And all his new-found old inventions,
 With flat felonious intentions;
 Which he could bring out where he had, 435
 And what he bought them for, and paid.
 His flea, his morpion, and punce,
 H' had gotten for his proper case,
 And all in perfect minutes made,
 By th' ablest artist of the trade; 440
 Which (he could prove it) since he lost,
 He has been eaten up almost;
 And altogether might amount
 To many hundreds on account;
 For which h' had got sufficient warrant 445
 To seize the malefactors errant,
 Without capacity of bail,
 But of a cart's or horse's tail;
 And did not doubt to bring the wretches
 To serve for pendulums to watches; 450
 Which, modern virtuosos say,
 Incline to hanging every way.
 Beside, he swore, and swore 'twas true,
 That, e're he went in quest of you,

He set a figure to discover 455
 If you were fled to RYE or DOVER;
 And found it clear, that, to betray
 Yourselfs and me, you fled this way;
 And that he was upon pursuit,
 To take you somewhere hereabout. 460
 He vow'd he had intelligence
 Of all that past before and since;
 And found that, e're you came to him,
 Y' had been engaging life and limb
 About a case of tender conscience, 465
 Where both abounded in your own sense;
 Till RALPHO, by his light and grace,
 Had clear'd all scruples in the case;
 And prov'd that you might swear and own
 Whatever's by the wicked done, 470
 For which, most basely to requite
 The service of his gifts and light,
 You strove to oblige him, by main force,
 To scourge his ribs instead of yours;
 But that he stood upon his guard, 475
 And all your vapouring out-dar'd;
 For which, between you both, the feat
 Has never been perform'd as yet.

While thus the Lady talk'd, the Knight
 Turn'd th' outside of his eyes to white, 480
 (As men of inward light are wont
 To turn their opticks in upon't.)
 He wonder'd how she came to know
 What he had done, and meant to do;
 Held up his affidavit-hand, 485
 As if h' had been to be arraign'd;
 Cast t'wards the door a ghastly look,
 In dread of SIDROPHEL, and spoke:

Madam, if but one word be true
 Of all the Wizard has told you, 490.
 Or but one single circumstance
 In all th' apocryphal romance,
 May dreadful earthquakes swallow down
 This vessel, that is all your own;
 Or may the heavens fall, and cover 495
 These reliques of your constant lover.

You have provided well, quoth she,
 (I thank you) for yourself and me,
 And shewn your Presbyterian wits
 Jump punctual with the Jesuits, 500
 A most compendious way, and civil,
 At once to cheat the world, the Devil,
 And Heaven and Hell, yourselves, and those
 On whom you vainly think t' impose.
 Why then (quoth he) may Hell surprize—
 That trick, (said she) will not pass twice: 505
 I've learn'd how far I'm to believe
 Your pinning oaths upon your sleeve.
 But there's a better way of clearing [ing:
 What you would prove than downright swear-
 For if you have perform'd the feat, 511
 The blows are visible as yet,
 Enough to serve for satisfaction
 Of nicest scruples in the action:
 And if you can produce those knobs, 515
 Although they're but the witch's drubs,
 I'll pass them all upon account,
 As if your natural self had don't;
 Provided that they pass th' opinion
 Of able juries of old women, 520
 Who, us'd to judge all matter of facts
 For bellies, may do so for backs.

Madam, (quoth he,) your love's a million,
 To do is less than to be willing,
 As I am, were it in my power, 525
 T' obey what you command, and more :
 But for performing what you bid,
 I thank you as much as if I did.
 You know I ought to have a care
 To keep my wounds from taking air : 530
 For wounds in thote that are all heart,
 Are dangerous in any part.

I find (quoth she) my goods and chattels
 Are like to prove but mere drawn battels ;
 For still the longer we contend, 535
 We are but farther off the end.
 But granting now we should agree,
 What is it you expect from me ?
 Your plighted faith (quoth he) and word
 You past in heaven on record, 540
 Where all contracts, to have and t' hold,
 Are everlastingly enroll'd :
 And if 'tis counted treason here
 To raze records, 'tis much more there.

Quoth she, There are no bargains driv'n,
 Nor marriages clapp'd up in Heav'n, 546
 And that's the reason, as some guess,
 There is no heav'n in marriages ;
 Two things that naturally press
 Too narrowly to be at ease. 550
 Their bus'ness there is only love,
 Which marriage is not like t' improve.
 Love, that's too generous to abide
 To be against it's nature ty'd :
 For where 'tis of itself inclin'd, 555
 It breaks loose when it is confin'd ;

And like the fowl, it's harbourer,
 Debarr'd the freedom of the air,
 Disdains against its will to stay,
 But struggles out, and flies away; 560
 And therefore never can comply
 To endure the matrimonial tie,
 That binds the female and the male,
 Where th' one is but the other's bail;
 Like Roman gaolers, when they slept, 565
 Chain'd to the prisoners they kept;
 Of which the true and faithfull'st lover
 Gives best security to suffer.
 Marriage is but a beast, some say,
 That carries double in foul way; 570
 And therefore 'tis not to b' admir'd,
 It should so suddenly be tir'd;
 A bargain at a venture made,
 Between two partners in a trade;
 (For what's inferr'd by t' have and t' hold,
 But something past away, and sold?) 576
 That as it makes but one of two,
 Reduces all things else as low;
 And, at the best, is but a mart
 Between the one and th' other part, 580
 That on the marriage-day is paid,
 Or hour of death, the bet is laid;
 And all the rest of better or worse,
 Both are but losers out of purse.
 For when upon their ungot heirs 585
 Th' entail themselves, and all that's theirs,
 What blinder bargain e'er was driv'n,
 Or wager laid at six and seven?
 To pass themselves away, and turn
 Their childrens' tenants e're they're born?

Beg one another idiot 591
 To guardians, e're they ~~are~~ begot ;
 Or ever shall, perhaps, by th' one,
 Who's bound to vouch 'em for his own,
 Though got b' implicit generation, 595
 And gen'ral club of all the nation ;
 For which she's fortify'd no less
 Than all the island, with four seas :
 Exacts the tribute of her dower,
 In ready insolence and power ; 600
 And makes him pass away to have
 And hold, to her, himself, her slave,*
^k More wretched than an ancient villain,
 Condemn'd to drudgery and tilling ;
 While all he does, upon the by, 605
 She is not bound to justify,
 Nor at her proper cost and charge
 Maintain the feats he does at large.
 Such hideous fots were those obedient
 Old vassals to their ladies regent ; 610
 To give the cheats the eldest hand
 In foul play by the laws o' th' land ;
 For which so many a legal cuckold
 Has been run down in courts, and truckeld :
 A law that most unjustly yokes 615
 All Johns of Stiles to Joans of Nokes,
 Without distinction of degree,
 Condition, age, or quality :
 Admits no power of revocation,
 Nor valuable consideration, 620
 Nor writ of error, nor reverse
 Of judgment past, for better or worse : ..
 Will not allow the priviledges
 That beggars challenge under hedges, 624

Who, when they're griev'd, can make dead
 Their spiritual judges of divorces; [horses
 While nothing else but Rem in Re
 Can set the proudest wretches free;
 A slavery beyond enduring,
 But that 'tis of their own procuring. 630
 As spiders never seek the fly,
 But leave him, of himself, t' apply,
 So men are by themselves employ'd,
 To quit the freedom they enjoy'd,
 And run their necks into a noose, 635
 They'd break 'em after, to break loose;
 As some whom Death would not depart,
 Have done the feat themselves by art;
 Like ¹ Indian widows, gone to bed
 In flaming curtains to the dead; 640
 And men as often dangled for't,
 And yet will never leave the sport.
 Nor do the ladies want excuse
 For all the stratagems they use
 To gain the advantage of the set, 645
 And lurch the amorous rook and cheat.
 For as the π Pythagorean soul
 Runs through all beasts, and fish, and fowl,
 And has a smack of ev'ry one,
 So love does, and has ever done: 650
 And therefore, though 'tis ne'er so fond,
 'Takes strangely to the vagabond.
 'Tis but an ague that's reverst,
 Whose hot-fit takes the patient first,
 That after burns with cold as much 655
 As it'n in GREENLAND does the touch;
 Melts in the furnace of desire
 Like glass, that's but the ice of fire;

And when his heat of fancy's over,
 Becomes as hard and frail a lover. 660
 For when he's with love-powder laden,
 And prim'd and cock'd by Miss or Madam,
 The smallest sparkle of an eye
 Gives fire to his artillery;
 And off the loud oaths go, but while 665
 They're in the very act, recoil:
 Hence 'tis so few dare take their chance
 Without a sep'rate maintenance;
 And widows, who have try'd one lover,
 Trust none again, 'till th' have made over.
 Or if they do, before they marry, 671
 The foxes weigh the geese they carry;
 And e're they venture o'er a stream,
 Know how to size themselves and them;
 Whence wittiest ladies always choose 675
 To undertake the heaviest goose:
 For now the world is grown so wary,
 That few of either sex dare marry,
 But rather trust on tick t' amours,
 The cross and pile for better or worse; 680
 A mode that is held honourable,
 As well as French, and fashionable:
 For when it falls out for the best,
 Where both are incommoded least,
 In soul and body two unite, 685
 To make up one hermaphrodite:
 Still amorous, and fond, and billing,
 Like PHILIP and MARY on a shilling,
 Th' have more punctilios and capriches
 Between the petticoat and breeches, 690
 More petulant extravagances,
 Than poets make 'em in romances.

Though when their heroes 'spouse the dames,
 We hear no more of charms and flames :
 For then their late attracts decline, 695
 And turn as eager as prick'd wine ;
 And all their catterwauling tricks,
 In earnest to as jealous piques ;
 Which the ancients wisely signify'd,
 By th' yellow mantos of the bride : 700
 For jealousy is but a kind
 Of clap and grincom of the mind,
 The natural effects of love,
 As other flames and aches prove :
 But all the mischief is, the doubt 705
 On whose account they first broke out.
 For though " Chincses go to bed,
 And lie in, in their ladies stead,
 And for the pains they took before,
 Are nurs'd and pamper'd to do more ; 710
 Our green-men do it worse, when th' hap,
 To fall in labour of a clap :
 Both lay the child to one another :
 But who's the father, who the mother,
 'Tis hard to say in multitudes, 715
 Or who imported the French goods.
 But health and sickness b'ing all one,
 Which both engag'd before to own,
 And are not with their bodies bound
 To worship, only when they're found, 720
 Both give and take their equal shares
 Of all they suffer by false wares ;
 A fate no lover can divert
 With all his caution, wit, and art.
 For 'tis in vain to think to guess 725
 At women by appearances,

- That paint and patch their imperfections
 • Of intellectual complexions,
 And daub their temper o'er with washes
 As artificial as their faces; 730
 Wear under vizard-masks their talents
 And mother-wits before their gallants,
 Until they're hamper'd in the noose,
 Too fast to dream of breaking loose;
 When all the flaws they strove to hide 735
 Are made unready with the bride,
 'That with her wedding-clothes undresses
 Her complaisance and gentilesses;
 Tries all her arts to take upon her
 'The government from th' easy owner; 740
 Until the wretch is glad to wave
 His lawful right, and turn her slave;
 Find all his having and his holding
 Reduc'd t' eternal noise and scolding;
 The conjugal petard, that tears 745
 Down all portcullices of ears,
 And makes the volley of one tongue
 For all their leathern shields too strong;
 When, only arm'd with noise and nails,
 The female silk-worms ride the males, 750
 • 'Transform 'em into rams and goats,
 Like Sirens, with their charming notes;
 Sweet as a screech-owl's serenade,
 Or those enchanting murmurs made
 By th' husband & mandrake and the wife, 755
 Both bury'd, (like themselves) alive.

Quoth he, These reasons are but strains
 Of wanton, over-heated brains,
 Which ralliers, in their wit, or drink,
 Do rather wheedle with than think. 760

Man was not man in paradise,
 Until he was created twice,
 And had his better half, his bride,
 Carv'd from the original, his side,
 T' amend his natural defects, 765
 And perfect his recruited sex;
 Inlarge his breed at once, and lessen
 The pains and labour of increasing,
 By changing them for other cares,
 As by his dry'd-up paps appears. 770
 His body, that stupendous frame,
 Of all the world the anagram,
 Is of two equal parts compact,
 In shape and symmetry exact,
 Of which the left and female side 775
 Is to the manly right a bride;
 Both join'd together with such art,
 That nothing else but death can part.
 Those heav'nly attracts of yours, your eyes,
 And face, that all the world surprize, 780
 That dazzle all that look upon ye,
 And scorch all other ladies tawny,
 Those ravishing and charming graces
 Are all made up of two half faces,
 That in a mathematick line, 785
 Like those in other heavens, join,
 Of which if either grew alone,
 T' would fright as much to look upon:
 And so would that sweet bud your lip,
 Without the other's fellowship. 790
 Our noblest senses act by pairs;
 Two-eyes to see; to hear, two ears;
 Th' intelligencers of the mind,
 To wait upon the soul design'd;

But those that serve the body alone, 795
 Are single, and confin'd to one.
 The world is but two parts, that meet
 And close at th' equinoctial fit;
 And so are all the works of nature,
 Stamp'd with her signature on matter; 800
 Which all her creatures, to a leaf,
 Or smallest blade of grass, receive;
 All which judiciously declare
 How entirely marriage is her care,
 The only method that she uses 805
 In all the wonders she produces:
 And those that take their rules from her,
 Can never be deceiv'd, nor err.
 For what secures the civil life,
 But pawns of children, and a wife? 810
 That lie like hostages at stake,
 To pay for all men undertake;
 To whom it is as necessary
 As to be born and breathe, to marry;
 So universal all mankind, 815
 In nothing else, is of one mind.
 For in what stupid age, or nation,
 Was marriage ever out of fashion?
 Unless among the Amazons,
 Or cloister'd friars, and vestal nuns; 820
 Or Stoicks, who, to bar the freaks
 And loose excesses of the sex,
 Prepost'rously wou'd have all women
 Turn'd up to all the world in common.
 Though men would find such mortal fewds,
 In sharing of their publick goods, 826
 'Twould put them to more charge of lives,
 Than they're supply'd with now by wives;

Until they graze, and wear their clothes,
 As beasts do, of their native growths: 830
 For simple wearing of their horns
 Will not suffice to serve their turns.
 For what can we pretend t' inherit,
 Unless the marriage-deed will bear it?
 Could claim no right to lands or rents, 835
 But for our parents' settlements;
 Had been but younger sons o' th' earth,
 Debarr'd it all, but for our birth.
 What honours or estates of peers,
 Cou'd be preserv'd but by their heirs? 840
 And what security maintains
 Their right and title, but the banes?
 What crowns could be hereditary,
 If greatest monarchs did not marry,
 And with their consorts consummate 845
 Their weightiest interests of state?
 For all the amours of princes are
 But guarantees of peace or war.
 Or what but marriage has a charm,
 The rage of empires to disarm, 850
 Make blood and desolation cease,
 And fire and sword unite in peace,
 When all their fierce contests for forage
 Conclude in articles of marriage?
 Nor does the genial bed provide 855
 Less for the int'rests of the bride;
 Who else had not the least pretence
 T' as much as due benevolence;
 Could no more title take upon her
 To virtue, quality, and honour, 860
 Than ladies errant, unconfin'd,
 And feme-coverts t' all mankind.

All women would be of one piece,
 The virtuous matron and the miss;
 The nymphs of chaste Diana's train, 865
 The same with those in LEWKNER'S Lane;
 But for the difference marriage makes
 Twixt wives and ladies of the lakes:
 Besides the joys of place and birth,
 The sex's paradise on earth; 870
 A privilege so sacred held,
 That none will to their mothers yield;
 But rather than not go before,
 Abandon Heaven at the door.
 And if th' indulgent law allows 875
 A greater freedom to the spouse,
 The reason is, because the wife
 Runs greater hazards of her life;
 Is trusted with the form and matter
 Of all mankind by careful nature; 880
 Where man brings nothing but the stuff
 She frames the wond'rous fabric of;
 Who therefore, in a streight, may freely
 Demand the clergy of her belly,
 And make it save her the same way 885
 It seldom misses to betray;
 Unless both parties wisely enter
 Into the liturgy indenture.
 And though some fits of small contest
 Sometimes fall out among the best, 890
 That is no more than ev'ry lover
 Does from his hackney-lady suffer;
 That makes no breach of faith and love,
 But rather (sometimes) serves t' improve.
 For as in running, ev'ry pace
 Is but between two legs a race, 895

In which both do their uttermost
 'To get before, and win the post,
 Yet when they're at their race's ends,
 They're still as kind and constant friends, 900
 And, to relieve their weariness,
 By turns give one another ease,
 So all those false alarms of strife
 Between the husband and the wife,
 And little quarrels, often prove 905
 To be but new recruits of love;
 When those wh' are always kind or coy,
 In time must either tire or cloy.
 Nor are their loudest clamours more,
 'Than as they're relish'd, sweet or sour; 910
 Like musick, that proves bad or good,
 According as 'tis understood.
 In all amours, a lover burns
 With frowns as well as smiles by turns:
 And hearts have been as oft with sullen 915
 As charming looks surpriz'd and stolen.
 Then why should more bewitching clamour
 Some lovers not as much enamour?
 For discords make the sweetest airs,
 And curses are a kind of pray'rs; 920
 Too slight alloys for all those grand
 Felicities by marriage gain'd.
 For nothing else has pow'r to settle
 Th' interests of love perpetual;
 An act and deed, that makes one heart 925
 Become another's counter-part,
 And passes fines on faith and love,
 Inroll'd and register'd above,
 To seal the slippery knots of vows,
 Which nothing else but death can loose. 930

And what security's too strong,
 To guard that gentle heart from wrong,
 That to its friend is glad to pass
 Itself away, and all it has;
 And, like an anchorite, gives over 935
 This world for th' heaven of a lover?

I grant (quoth she) there are some few
 Who take that course, and find it true:
 But millions whom the same does sentence
 To heav'n b' another way—repentance. 940
 Love's arrows are but shot at rovers;
 Though all they hit, they turn to lovers;
 And all the weighty consequents
 Depend upon more blind events,
 Than gamesters, when they play a set 945
 With greatest cunning at piquet,
 Put out with caution, but take in
 They know not what, unsight, unseen.
 For what do lovers, when they're fast
 In one another's arms embrac't, 950
 But strive to plunder, and convey
 Each other, like a prize, away?
 To change the property of selves,
 As sucking children ~~are~~ by elves?
 And if they use their persons so, 955
 What will they to their fortunes do?
 Their fortunes! the perpetual aims
 Of all their extasies and flames.
 For when the money's on the book,
 And, All my worldly goods—but spoke, 960
 (The formal livery and seisin
 That puts a lover in possession)
 To that alone the bridegroom's wedded;
 The bride a flam, that's superseded.

To that their faith is still made good, 965
 And all the oaths to us they vow'd :
 For when we once resign our pow'rs,
 W' have nothing left we can call ours :
 Our money's now become the Mifs
 Of all your lives and services ; 970
 And we forsaken, and postpon'd ;
 But bawds to what before we own'd ;
 Which, as it made y' at first gallant us,
 So now hires others to supplant us,
 Until 'tis all turn'd out of doors, 975
 (As we had been) for new amours :
 For what did ever heiress yet
 By being born to lordships get ?
 When the more lady sh' is of manours,
 She's but expos'd to more trepanners, 980
 Pays for their projects and designs,
 And for her own destruction fines ;
 And does but tempt them with her riches,
 To use her as the Dev'l does witches ;
 Who takes it for a special grace 985
 To be their cully for a space,
 That, when the time's expir'd, the drazels
 For ever may become his vassals :
 So she, bewitch'd by rooks and spirits,
 Betrays herself, and all sh' inherits ; 990
 Is bought and sold, like stolen goods,
 By pimps, and match-makers, and bawds,
 Until they force her to convey,
 And steal the thief himself away.
 These are the everlasting fruits 995
 Of all your passionate love-suits,
 Th' effects of all your amorous fancies
 To portions and inheritances ;

Your love-sick rapture for fruition
 • Of dowry, jointure, and tuition ; 1000
 To which you make address and courtship,
 And with your bodies strive to worship,
 That th' infants' fortunes may partake
 Of love too, for the mother's sake.
 For these you play at purposes, 1005
 And love your love's with A's and B's :
 For these at Beste and L'Ombre'woo,
 And play for love and money too ;
 Strive who shall be the ablest man
 At right gallanting of a fan ; 1010
 And who the most genteely bred
 At sucking of a vizard-bead ;
 How best t' accost us in all quarters ;
 T' our question and command-new garters ;
 And solidly discourse upon 1015
 All sorts of dresses, Pro and Con.
 For there's no mystery nor trade,
 But in the art of love is made :
 And when you have more debts to pay
 Than Michaelmas and Lady-Day, 1020
 And no way possible to do't,
 But love and oaths, and restless suit,
 To us y' apply to pay the scores
 Of all your cully'd, past amours :
 Act o'er your flames and darts again, 1025
 And charge us with your wounds and pain ;
 Which others influences long since
 Have charm'd your noses with and shins ;
 For which the surgeon is unpaid,
 And like to be, without our aid. 1030
 Lord ! what an am'rous thing is want !
 How debts and mortgages enchant !

What graces must that lady have
 That can from executions save !
 What charms that can reverse extent, 1035
 And null decree and exigent !
 What magical attracts and graces,
 That can redeem from Scire facias !
 From bonds and statutes can discharge,
 And from contempts of courts enlarge ! 1040
 These are the highest excellencies
 Of all your true or false pretences :
 And you would damn yourselves, and swear
 As much t' an hostess dowager,
 Grown fat and purfy by retail 1045
 Of pots of beer and bottled ale ;
 And find her fitter for your turn ;
 For fat is wondrous apt to burn ;
 Who at your flames would soon take fire,
 Relent, and melt to your desire, 1050
 And, like a candle in the socket,
 Dissolve her graces int' your pocket.

By this time 'twas grown dark and late,
 When they heard a knocking at the gate,
 Laid on in haste with such a powder, 1055
 The blows grew louder still and louder ;
 Which HUDIBRAS, as if th' had been
 Bestow'd as freely on his skin,
 Expounding, by his inward light,
 Or rather more prophetick fright, 1060
 To be the Wizard, come to search,
 And take him napping in the lurch,
 Turn'd pale as ashes or a clout ;
 But why or wherefore is a doubt :
 For men will tremble, and turn paler, 1065
 With too much or too little valour.

His heart laid on, as if he try'd
 To force a passage through his side,
 Impatient (as he vow'd) to wait them,
 But in a fury to fly at 'em; 1070
 And therefore beat, and laid about,
 To find a cranny to creep out.
 But she, who saw in what a taking
 The Knight was by his furious quaking,
 Undaunted cry'd, Courage, Sir Knight; 1075
 Know, I'm resolv'd to break no rite
 Of hospitality t' a stranger,
 But to secure you out of danger,
 Will here myself stand sentinel,
 To guard this pass 'gainst SIDROPHEL. 1080
 Women, you know, do seldom fail
 To make the stoutest men turn tail;
 And bravely scorn to turn their backs
 Upon the desp'ratest attacks.
 At this the Knight grew resolute 1085
 As ^w IRONSIDE and HARDIKNUTE:
 His fortitude began to rally,
 And out he cry'd aloud to sally.
 But she besought him to convey
 His courage rather out o' th' way, 1090
 And lodge in ambush on the floor,
 Or fortify'd behind a door;
 That if the enemy shou'd enter,
 He might relieve her in th' adventure.
 Mean while they knock'd against the door
 As fierce as at the gate before, 1096
 Which made the Renegado Knight
 Relapse again t' his former fright.
 He thought it desperate to stay
 Till th' enemy had forc'd his way, 1100

But rather post himself, to serve
 The lady, for a fresh reserve.
 His duty was not to dispute,
 But what sh' had order'd execute;
 Which he resolv'd in haste t' obey, 1105
 And therefore stoutly march'd away;
 And all h' encounter'd fell upon,
 Though in the dark, and all alone;
 Till fear, that braver feats performs
 'Than ever courage dar'd in arms, 1110
 Had drawn him up before a pass,
 'To stand upon his guard, and face:
 'This he courageously invaded,
 And having enter'd, barricado'd,
 Inscand himself as formidable 1115
 As could be underneath a table,
 Where he lay down in ambush close,
 T' expect th' arrival of his foes.
 Few minutes he had lain perdue,
 To guard his desp'rate avenue, 1120
 Before he heard a dreadful shout,
 As loud as putting to the rout,
 With which impatiently alarm'd,
 He fancy'd th' enemy had storm'd,
 And, after ent'ring, SIBAOPHEL 1125
 Was fall'n upon the guards pell-mell:
 He therefore sent out all his senses,
 To bring him in intelligences,
 Which vulgars, out of ignorance,
 Mistake for falling in a trance; 1130
 But those that trade in geomancy,
 Affirm to be the strength of fancy;
 In which the * Lapland Magi deal,
 And things incredible reveal. 1134

Mean while the foe beat up his quarters,
 And storm'd the out-works of his fortrefs:
 And as another, of the same
 Degree and party, in arms and fame,
 That in the same cause had engag'd,
 And war with equal conduct wag'd, 1140
 By vent'ring only but to thrust
 His head a span beyond his post,
 B' a gen'ral of the cavaliers
 Was dragg'd thro' a window by th' cars;
 So he was serv'd in his redoubt, 1145
 And by the other end pull'd out.

Soon as they had him at their mercy,
 They put him to the cudgel fiercely,
 As if they'd scorn'd to trade or barter,
 By giving or by taking quarter: 1150
 They stoutly on his quarters laid,
 Until his scouts came in t' his aid.
 For when a man is past his sense,
 There's no way to reduce him thence,
 But twinging him by th' ears or nose, 1155
 Or laying on of heavy blows;
 And if that will not do the deed,
 To burning with hot irons proceed.
 No sooner was he come t' himself,
 But on his neck a sturdy elf 1160
 Clap'd, in a trice, his cloven hoof,
 And thus attack'd him with reproof:

Mortal, thou art betray'd to us
 B' our friend, thy Evil Genius,
 Who, for thy horrid perjuries, 1165
 Thy breach of faith, and turning lies,
 The Brethren's privilege (against
 The wicked) on themselves, the Saints,

Has here thy wretched carcass sent
 For just revenge and punishment; 1170
 Which thou hast now no way to lessen,
 But by an open, free confession;
 For if we catch thee failing once,
 'Twill fall the heavier on thy bones.

What made thee venture to betray, 1175
 And filch the lady's heart away?
 To spirit her to matrimony?—
 That which contracts all matches—money.
 It was th' enchantment of her riches 1179
 That made m' apply t' your croney witches,
 That, in return, wou'd pay th' expence,
 The wear-and-tear of conscience;
 Which I cou'd have patch'd up, and turn'd
 For th' hundredth part of what I earn'd.

Didst thou not love her then? Speak true.
 No more (quoth he) than I love you.— 1186
 How would'st th' have us'd her, and her
 First turn'd her up to alimony; [money?—
 And laid her dowry out in law,
 To null her jointure with a flaw, 1190
 Which I before-hand had agreed,
 T' have put, on purpose, in the deed;
 And bar her widow's making over
 T' a friend in trust, or private lover. 1194

What made thee pick and chuse her out,
 T' employ their forceries about?—
 That which makes gamesters play with those
 Who have least wit, and most to lose.

But didst thou scourge thy vessel thus,
 As thou hast damn'd thyself to us? 1200

I see you take me for an ass:
 'Tis true, I thought the trick wou'd pass

Up^{on} a woman well enough,
 As 't has been often found, by proof,
 Whose humours are not to be won, 1205
 But when they are impos'd upon.
 For love approves of all they do
 That stand for candidates, and woo.

Why didst thou forge those shameful lies
 Of bears and witches in disguise? 1210

That is no more than authors give
 The rabble credit to believe;
 A trick of following their leaders,
 To entertain their gentle readers:
 And we have now no other way 1215
 Of passing all we do or say;
 Which, when 'tis natural and true,
 Will be believ'd b' a very few.
 Beside the danger of offence,
 The fatal enemy of sense. 1220

Why did thou chuse that cursed sin,
 Hypocrisy, to set up in?

Because it is in the thriving'st calling,
 The only Saints-bell that rings all in;
 In which all Churches are concern'd, 1225
 And is the easiest to be learn'd:
 For no degrees, unless th' employ't,
 Can ever gain much, or enjoy't.
 A gift, that is not only able
 To domineer among the rabble, 1230
 But by the laws impower'd to rout;
 And awe the greatest that stand out;
 Which few hold forth against, for fear
 Their hands should slip, and come too near;
 For no sin else among the Saints 1235
 Is taught so tenderly against.

What made thee break thy plighted vow?—
That which makes others break a house,
And hang, and scorn ye all, before
Endure the plague of being poor. 1240

Quoth he, I see you have more tricks
Than all our doating politicks,
That are grown old, and out of fashion,
Compar'd with your New Reformation;
That we must come to school to you, 1245
To learn your more refin'd, and new. }

Quoth he, If you will give me leave
To tell you what I now perceive,
You'll find yourself an arrant chouse,
If y' were but at a Meeting-House. 1250

'Tis true, quoth he, we ne'er come there,
Because, w' have let 'em out by th' year.

Truly, quoth he, you can't imagine
What wond'rous things they will engage in;
That as your fellow-friends in Hell 1255
Were angels all before they fell;
So are you like to be agen,
Compar'd with th' angels of us men.

Quoth he, I am resolv'd to be
Thy scholar in this mystery; 1260
And therefore first desire to know
Some principles on which you go.

What makes a ~~man~~ have a child of God,
And one of us?—A livelihood.
What renders beating out of brains, 1265
And murder, godliness?—Great gains.

What's tender conscience?—'Tis a botch,
That will not bear the gentlest touch;
But breaking out, dispatches more
Than th' epidemical' st plague-sore. 1270

What makes y' encroach upon our trade,
And damn all others?—To be paid.

What's orthodox, and true believing
Against a conscience?—A good living.

What makes rebelling against Kings 1275
A good old Cause?—Administ'ring.

What makes all doctrines plain and clear?
About two hundred pounds a year.

And that which was prov'd true before,
Prove false again?—Two hundred more. 1280

What makes the breaking of all oaths,
A holy duty?—Food and cloaths.

What laws and freedom, persecution?
B'ing out of pow'r, and contribution. 1284

What makes a church a den of thieves?
A dean and chapter, and white sleeves.

And what would serve, if those were gone,
To make it orthodox?—Our own.

What makes morality a crime,
The most notorious of the time; 1290
Morality, which both the Saints,
And wicked too, cry out against?
'Cause grace and virtue are within
Prohibited degrees of kin;

And therefore no true Saint allows 1295
They shall be suffer'd to espouse;
For Saints can need no conscience,
That with morality dispense;

As virtue's impious, when 'tis rooted
In nature only, and not imputed: 1300
But why the wicked should do so,
We neither know, or care to do.

What's liberty of conscience,
If th' natural and genuine sense?

'Tis to restore, with more security, 1305
 Rebellion to its ancient purity;
 And Christian liberty reduce
 To th' elder practice of the Jews.
 For a large conscience is all one,
 And signifies the same with none. 1310

It is enough (quoth he) for once,
 And has repriev'd thy forfeit bones:
 NICK MACHIAVEL had ne'er a trick,
 (Though he gave his name to our Old Nick,)
 But was below the least of these, 1315
 That pass i' th' world for holiness.

This said, the furies and the light
 In th' instant vanish'd out of sight,
 And left him in the dark alone,
 With stinks of brimstone and his own. 1320

The Queen of Night, whose large com-
 Rules all the sea, and half the land, [mand
 And over moist and crazy brains,
 In high springs-tides, at midnight reigns,
 Was now declining to the west, 1325
 To go to bed, and take her rest;

When HUDIBRAS, whose stubborn blows
 Deny'd his bones that soft repose,
 Lay still expecting worse and more,
 Stretch'd out at length upon the floor: 1330
 And though he shut his eyes as fast
 As if h' had been to sleep his last,
 Saw all the shapes that fear or wizards
 Do make the Devil wear for vizards,
 And pricking up his ears, to hear 1335
 If he cou'd hear too in the dark,
 Was first invaded with a groan,
 And after, in a feeble tone,

These trembling words : Unhappy wretch !
 What hast thou gotten by this fetch ; 1340
 Or all thy tricks, in this new trade,
 Thy holy brotherhood o' th' blade ?
 By fauntring still on some adventure,
 And growing to thy horse a ^a Centaure ?
 To stuff thy skin with swelling knobs 1345
 Of cruel and hard-wooded drubs ?
 For still th' hast had the worst on't yet,
 As well in conquest as defeat.
 Night is the sabbath of mankind,
 To rest the body and the mind, 1350
 Which now thou art deny'd to keep,
 And cure thy labour'd corps with sleep.
 The Knight, who heard the words, explain'd,
 As meant to him, this reprimand,
 Because the character did hit 1355
 Point-blank upon his case so fit ;
 Believ'd it was some drolling spright,
 That staid upon the guard that night,
 And one of those h' had seen, and felt
 The drubs he had so freely dealt ; 1360
 When, after a short pause and groan,
 The doleful Spirit thus went on :
 'This 'tis t' engage with dogs and bears
 Pell-mell together by the ears,
 And, after painful bangs and knocks, 1365
 To lie in limbo in the stocks,
 And from the pinnacle of glory
 Fall headlong into purgatory.
 (Thought he, this devil's full of malice,
 That on my late disasters rallies :) 1370
 Condemn'd to whipping, but declin'd it,
 By being more heroic-minded ;

And at a riding handled worse,
 With treats more sovenly and coarse :
 Engag'd with fiends in stubborn wars, 1375
 And hot disputes with conjurers;
 And when th' hadst bravely won the day,
 Wast fain to steal thyself away.

(I sec, thought he, this shameless elf
 Would fain steal me too from myself, 1380
 That impudently dares to own
 What I have suffer'd for and done,)
 And now but vent'ring to betray,
 Hast met with vengeance the same way.

'I thought he, how does the Devil know
 What 'twas that I design'd to do ? 1386
 His office of intelligence,
 His oracles, are ceas'd long since ;
 And he knows nothing of the Saints,
 But what some treacherous spy acquaints.
 'Tis his is some pettifogging fiend, 1391
 Some under door-keeper's friend's friend,
 That undertakes to understand,
 And juggles at the second-hand ;
 And now would pass for Spirit Po, 1395
 And all mens' dark concerns foreknow.
 I think I need not fear him for't ;
 'These rallying devils do no hurt.
 With that he rous'd his drooping heart,
 And hastily cry'd, 'What art ?' 1400
 A wretch (quoth he) whom want of grace
 Has brought to this unhappy place.

I do believe thee, quoth the Knight ;
 I hus far I'm sure th' art in the right ;
 And know what 'tis that troubles thee, 1405
 Better than thou hast guess'd of me.

Thou art some paultry, black-guard spright,
 Condemn'd to drudg'ry in the night ;
 Thou hast no work to do in th' house,
 Nor half-penny to drop in shoes ; 1410
 Without the raising of which sum,
 You dare not be so troublesome,
 To pinch the flatterns black and blue,
 For leaving you their work to do.
 This is your bus'ness, good Pug-Robin, 1415
 And your diversion dull dry bobbing,
 T' entice fanaticks in the dirt,
 And wash them clean in ditches for't :
 Of which conceit you are so proud,
 At ev'ry jest you laugh aloud, 1420
 As now you wou'd have done by me,
 But that I barr'd your raillery.

Sir (quoth the voice) y' are no such ^b Sophi
 As you wou'd have the world judge of ye.
 If you design to weigh our talents 1425
 I' the standard of your own false balance,
 Or think it possible to know
 Us ghosts as well as we do you ;
 We, who have been the everlasting
 Companions of your drubs and basting, 1430
 And never left you in contest,
 With male or female, man or beast,
 But prov'd as true t' ye, and entire,
 In all adventures, as your 'Squire.

Quoth he, That may be said as true 1435
 By th' idlest-pug of all your crew.
 For none cou'd have betray'd us worse
 Than those allies of ours and yours.
 But I have sent him for a token 1439
 To your Low-Country HOGGEN-MOGGEN,

To whose infernal shore I hope
 He'll swing like skippers in a rope
 And if y' have been more just to me
 (As I am apt to think) than he,
 I am afraid it is as true, 1445

What th' ill-affected say of you
 Y' have spous'd the Covenant and Cause,
 By holding up your cloven paw

Sir, quoth the voice, 'tis true, I prithee,
 We made and took the Covenant, 1450

But that no more concerns the Cause
 Than other perjuries do the laws,
 Which, when they're prov'd in open court,
 Weir wooden peccadillos for it
 And that's the reason Covenanters 1455

Hold up their hands like rogues at bus
 I see, quoth HUDIBRAS, from whence
 These scandals of the Saints commence,
 That are but natural effects

Of Satan's malice, and his sects, 1460
 Those Spider-Saints, that hang by threads,
 Spun out o' th' entrails of their head.

Sir, quoth the voice, that may as true
 And properly be said of you,
 Whose talents may compare with either, 1465
 Or both the other put to together.

For all the Independents do,
 Is only what you forc'd 'em to;
 You, who are not content alone
 With tricks to put the Devil down, 1470

But must have arms rais'd to back
 The gospel-work you undertake;
 As if artillery, and edge-tools,
 Were th' only engines to save souls;

While he, poor devil, has no pow'r 1475
 By force to run down and devour;
 Has ne'er a Classis; cannot sentence
 To stools, or poundage of repentance;
 Is ty'd up only to design,
 T' entice, and tempt, and undermine, 1480
 In which you all his arts out-do,
 And prove yourselves his betters too.
 Hence 'tis ^d possessions do less evil
 Than mere temptations of the Devil,
 Which, all the horrid'st actions done, 1485
 Are charg'd in courts of law upon;
 Because, unless they help the elf,
 He can do little of himself;
 And therefore where he's best possess'd,
 Acts most against his interest; 1490
 Surprizes none, but those wh' have priests
 To turn him out, and exorcists,
 Supply'd with spiritual provision,
 And magazines of ammunition;
 With crosses, relicks, crucifixes, 1495
 Beads, pictures, rosaries, and pixes;
 The tools of working our salvation
 By mere mechanick operation;
 With holy water, like a sluice,
 To overflow all avenues. 1500
 But those wh' are utterly unarm'd
 T' oppose his entrance, if he storm'd,
 He never offers to surprize,
 Although his falsest enemies;
 But is content to be their drudge, 1505
 And on their errands glad to trudge:
 For where are all your forfeitures
 Intrusted in safe hands, but ours?

Who are but jailors of the holes
 And dungeons where you clap up souls; 1510
 Like under-keepers, turn the keys,
 T' your mittimus anathemas;
 And never boggle to restore
 The members you deliver o're
 Upon demand, with fairer justice 1515
 Than all your covenanting trustees;
 Unless to punish them the worse,
 You put them in the secular pow'rs,
 And pass their souls, as some demise
 The same estate in mortgage twice; 1520
 When to a legal e Utlegation
 You turn your excommunication,
 And for a groat unpaid, that's due,
f Distrain on soul and body too.

Thought he, 'tis no mean part of civil 1525
 State prudence to cajole the Devil;
 And not to handle him too rough,
 When h' has us in his cloven hoof.

'Tis true, quoth he, that intercourse
 Has pass'd between your friends and ours;
 That as you trust us, in our way, 1531
 To raise your members, and to lay,
 We send you others of our own,
 Denounc'd to hang themselves or drown;
 Or, frighted with our oratory, 1535
 To leap down headlong many a story:
 Have us'd all means to propagate
 Your mighty interests of state;
 Laid out our spiritual gifts to further
 Your great designs of rage and murder. 1540
 For if the Saints are nam'd from blood,
 We only have made that title good;

And if it were but in our power,
 • We should not scruple to ob more,
 And not be half a foul behind 1545
 Of all dissenters of mankind.

Right, quoth the voice; and as I scorn
 To be ungrateful, in return
 Of all those kind good offices,
 I'll free you out of this distress, 1550
 And set you down in safety, where
 It is no time to tell you here.

The cock crows, and the morn grows on,
 When 'tis decreed I must be gone;
 And if I leave you here till day, 1555
 You'll find it hard to get away.

With that the Spirit grop'd about,
 To find th' enchanted hero out,
 And try'd with haste to lift him up;
 But found his forlorn hope, his crup, 1560
 Unserviceable with kicks and blows,
 Receiv'd from harden'd-hearted foes.
 He thought to drag him by the heels,
 Like Gresham carts, with legs for wheels;
 But fear, that soonest cures those sores 1565
 In danger of relapse to worse,
 Came in t'assist him with it's aid,
 And up his sinking vessel weigh'd.
 No sooner was he fit to trudge,
 But both made ready to dislodge. 1570
 The Spirit hors'd him like a sack
 Upon the vehicle his back;
 And bore him headlong into th' hall,
 With some few rubs against the wall;
 Where finding out the postern lock'd, 1575
 And th' avenues as strongly block'd,

H' attack'd the window, storm'd the glafs,
 And in a moment gain'd the pafs;
 Thro' which he dragg'd the worsted soldier's
 Fore-quarters out by the head and shoulders;
 And cautiously began to scout, 1581
 To find their fellow-cattle out.
 Nor was it half a minute's quest,
 Ere he retriev'd the champion's beast,
 Ty'd to a pale, instead of rack; 1585
 But ne'er a saddle on his back,
 Nor pistols at the saddle bow,
 Convey'd away the Lord knows how.
 He thought it was no time to stay,
 And let the night too steal away; 1590
 But in a trice advanc'd the Knight
 Upon the bare ridge, bolt upright:
 And groping out for RALPHO's jade,
 He found the saddle too was stray'd,
 And in the place a lump of soap, 1595
 On which he speedily leap'd up;
 And turning to the gate the rein,
 He kick'd and cudgell'd on amain.
 While HUDIBRAS, with equal haste,
 On both sides laid about as fast, 1600
 And spurr'd as jockies use to break,
 Or padders to secure, a neck.
 Where let us leave 'em for a time,
 And to their Churches turn our rhyme;
 To hold forth their declining state, 1605
 Which now come near an even-rate,

PART. III. CANTO II.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Saint engage in fierce Contests
About their Carnal Interests
To share their sacrilegious Preys,
According to their Rates of Grace;
The various Frenzies to reform,
When Cromwel left them in a Storm,
Till in the Light of Rump, the Rabble
Burns all their Grantees of the Cabal.

THE learned write, an insect breeze
Is but a mungrel prince of bees,
That falls before a storm on cows,
And flings the founders of his house;
From whose corrupted flesh that breed 5
Of vermin did at first proceed.
So e're the storm of war broke out,
Religion spawn'd a various rout
Of petulant capricious sects,
The maggots of corrupted texts, 10
That first run all religion down,
And after ev'ry swarm its own.
For as the Persianⁿ Magi once
Upon their mothers got their sons,
That were incapable t'enjoy 15
That empire any other way;
So PARRY begot the other
Upon the good-old Cause, his mother,
Then bore them like the Devil's dam,
Whose son and husband are the same. 20
And yet no nat'ral tie of blood,
Nor int'rest for the common good,

Cou'd, when then profits interser'd,
 Get quarter for each other's beard.
 I or when they thiv'd, they never fadg'd,
 But only by the ears engag'd 26
 Like dogs that snarl about a bone,
 And play together when they've none,
 As by their truest characters,
 Their constant actions, plainly appears. 30
 Rebellion now begin, for lack
 Of zeal and plunder, to grow slack,
 The Cause and Covenant to lessen,
 And Providence to be out of season
 For now there was no more to purchase 35
 O' th' King's Revenue, and the Churches,
 But all divided, shar'd and gone,
 That us'd to urge the brethren on;
 Which forc'd the stubborn'st for the Cause,
 To cross the cudgels to the laws, 40
 That what by breaking them th' had gain'd,
 By their support might be maintain'd;
 Like thieves, that in a hemp-plot lie,
 Secur'd against the hue-and-cry.
 For PRESBYTER and INDEPENDANT 45
 Were now turn'd plaintiff and defendant;
 Laid out their apostolic functions
 On carnal orders and injunctions;
 And all their precious gifts and graces
 On outlawries and fire facias; 50
 At Michael's term had many a trial,
 Worse than the Dragon and St. Michael,
 Where thousands fell, in shape of fees,
 Into the bottomless abyss.
 For when like brethren, and like friends, 55
 They came to share their dividends.

And ev'ry partner to possess
 His Church and State Joint-Purchases,
 In which the ablest Saint, and best,
 Was nam'd in trust by all the rest, 60
 To pay their money; and, instead
 Of ev'ry Brother, pass the deed;
 He strait converted all his gifts
 To pious frauds and holy shifts;
 And settled all the other shares 65
 Upon his outward man and's heirs.
 Held all they claim'd as forfeit lands,
 Deliver'd up into his hands,
 And pass'd upon his conscience,
 By pre-intail of Providence; 70
 Impeach'd the rest for reprobates,
 That had no titles to estates,
 But by their spiritual attaints
 Degraded from the right of Saints.
 This b'ing reveal'd, they now begun 75
 With law and conscience to fall on;
 And laid about as hot and brain-sick
 As th' Utter Barrister of ^h SWANSWICK;
 Engag'd with money-bags as bold
 As men with sand-bags did of old; 80
 That brought the lawyers in more fees
 Than all unsanctify'd trustees;
 Till he who had no more to show
 I' th' case receiv'd the overthrow;
 Or both sides having had the worst, 85
 They parted as they met at first.
 Poor PRESBYTER was now reduc'd,
 Secluded, and cashier'd, and chous'd!
 Turn'd out, and excommunicate
 -From all affairs of Church and State; 90

Reform'd t' a reformato Saint,
 And glad to turn itinerant,
 To stroll and teach from town to town,
 And those he had taught up, teach down,
 And make those uses serve agen 95
 Against the new-enlighten'd men,
 As fit as when at first they were
 Reveal'd against the CAVALIER:
 Damn ANABAPTIST and FANATIC,
 As pat as Popish and Prelatic; 100
 And with as little variation,
 To serve for any Sect i' th' nation.
 The Good Old Cause, which some believe
 To be the Dev'l that tempted EVE
 With knowledge, and does still invite 105
 The world to mischief with new Light,
 Had store of money in her purse
 When he took her for bett'r or worse;
 But now was grown deform'd and poor,
 And fit to be turn'd out of door. 110

The INDEPENDENTS (whose first station
 Was in the rear of reformation,
 A mungrel kind of church-dragoons,
 That serv'd for horse and foot at once;
 And in the saddle of one steed 115
 The Saracen and Christian rid;
 Were free of ev'ry spiritual order,
 To preach, and fight, and pray, and murder)
 No sooner got the start to lurch
 Both disciplines, of War and Church, 120
 And Providence enough to run
 The chief commanders of 'em down,
 But carry'd on the war against
 The common enemy o' th' Saints,

And in a while prevail'd so far, 125
 To win of them the game of war,
 And be at liberty, once more
 I' attack themselves, as th' had before.
 For now there was no foe in arms,
 T' unite their factions with alms, 130
 But all reduc'd, and overcome,
 Except then worst, themselves at home,
 Wh' had compass'd all they pray'd, and swore,
 And fought, and preach'd, and plunder'd for;
 Subdu'd the Nation, Church and State, 135
 And all things, but their laws and hate
 But when they came to treat and transact,
 And share the spoil of all th' had ransackt,
 To botch up what th' had torn and rent,
 Religion and the Government, 140
 They met no sooner, but prepar'd
 To pull down all the war had spar'd:
 Agreed in nothing, but t' abolish,
 Subvert, extirpate, and demolish
 For knaves and fools b'ing near of kin 145
 As ' Dutch Boors are t' a Sooterkin,
 Both parties join'd to do their best
 To damn the publick interest,
 And herded only in consults,
 To put by one another's bolts; 150
 T' out-cant the " Babylonian labourers,
 At all their dialects of jabberers,
 And tug at both ends of the saw,
 To tear down Government and Law.
 For as two cheats, that play one game, 155
 Are both defeated of their aim,
 So those who play a game of state,
 "And only cavil in debate,

Although there's nothing lost nor won,
The publick bus'ness is undone ; 160
Which still the longer 'tis in doing,
Becomes the surer way to ruine.

'This, when the ROYALISTS perceiv'd,
(Who to then faith as firmly cleav'd,
And own'd the right they had paid down 165
So dearly for, the Church and Crown,)
Th' united constanter, and sided
The more, the more their foes divided.

For though out-number'd, overthrown,
And by the fate of war run down, 170
Their duty never was defeated,

Nor from their oaths and faith retreated ;
For loyalty is still the same,

Whether it win or lose the game ;
True as the dial to the sun, 175
Although it be not shin'd upon.

But when these brethren in evil,
Their adversaries, and the Devil,
Began once more to shew them play,
And hopes, at least, to have a day, 180
They rally'd in parades of woods,
And unfrequented solitudes ;

Conven'd at midnight in out-houses,
T' appoint new-rising rendezvouzes,
And with a pertinacy unmatched, 185
For new recruits of danger watch'd.

No sooner was one blow diverted,
But up another party started ;
And, as if nature too, in haste
To furnish out supplies as fast, 190
Before her time had turn'd destruction
T' a new and numerous production,

No sooner those were overcome,
 • But up rose others in their room,
 That, like the Christian faith, increast, 195
 The more, the more they were suppress;
 Whom neither chains, nor transportation,
 Proscription, sale, or confiscation,
 Nor all the desperate events
 Of former try'd experiments, 200
 Nor wounds, cou'd terrify, nor mangling,
 To leave off loyalty and dangling;
 Nor death (with all his bones) affright
 From vent'ring to maintain the right,
 From staking life and fortune down 205
 'Gainst all together, for the Crown;
 But kept the title of their cause
 From forfeiture, like claims in laws;
 And prov'd no prosp'rous usurpation
 Can ever settle in the nation; 210
 Until, in spight of force and treason,
 They put their loyalty in possession;
 And, by their constancy and faith,
 Destroy'd the mighty men of Gath.
 Toss'd in a furiousⁿ hurricane, 215
 Did OLIVER give up his reign;
 And was believ'd, as well by Saints,
 As mortal men and miscreants,
 To founder in the Stygian Ferry;
 Until he was retriev'd by STERRY, 220
 Who, in a false erroneous dream,
 Mistook the New Jerusalem
 Profanely for th' apocryphal
 • False Heaven at the end o' th' Hall;
 Whither it was decreed by Fate 225
 His precious reliques to translate.

So ROMULUS was seen before
 B' as orthodox a Senator;
 From whole divine illumination
 He stole the Pagan revelation. 230

Next him his Son and Heir apparent
 Succeeded, though a lame vicegerent;
 Who first laid by the Parliament,
 The only crutch on which he leant;
 And then sunk underneath the State, 235
 That rode him above horseman's weight.

And now the Saints began their reign,
 For which th' had yearn'd so long in vain,
 And felt such bowel-hankerings,
 To see an empire all of kings. 240

Deliver'd from th' Egyptian awe
 Of Justice, Government, and Law,
 And free t' erect what spiritual Cantons
 Should be reveal'd, or Gospel Hans-Towns,
 To edify upon the ruins 245

Of JOHN of LEYDEN's old Out-goings;
 Who for a weather-cock hung up,
 Upon their Mother Church's top;
 Was made a type, by Providence,
 Of all their revelations since; 250

And now fulfill'd by his successors,
 Who equally mistook their measures:
 For when they came to shape the model,
 Not one could fit another's noddle;
 But found their light and gifts more wide 255

From sadding than th' unsanctify'd;
 While ev'ry individual brother
 Strove hand to fist against another;
 And still the maddest, and most crack't;
 Were found the busiest to transact: 260

For though most hands dispatch apace,
 And make light work, (the proverb says,)
 Yet many diff'rent intellects
 Are found t' have contrary effects;
 And many heads t' obstruct intrigues, 265
 As slowest insects have moll legs.

Some were for setting up a King;
 But all the rest for no such thing,
 Unless King JESUS. Others tamper'd [BERT;
 For FLEETWOOD, DESBOROUGH, and LAM-
 Some for the Rump, and some, more cravily,
 For Agitators, and the safety;
 Some for the Gospel, and massacres
 Of Spiritual Affidavit-makers,
 That swore, to any human regence, 275
 Oaths of supremacy and allegiance:
 Yes, though the ablest swearing Saint
 That vouch'd the Bulls o' th' Covenant:
 Others for pulling down th' high-places
 Of Synods and Provincial Classes, 280
 That us'd to make such hostile inroads
 Upon the Saints, like bloody NIMRODS:
 Some for fulfilling prophecies,
 And th' expiration of th' exile;
 And some against th' Egyptian bondage 285
 Of holy-days, and paying poundage:
 Some for the cutting down of groves,
 And rectifying baker's loaves:
 And some for finding out expedients
 Against the slavery of obedience. 290
 Some were for Gospel Ministers,
 And some for Red-coat Seculars,
 As men most fit t' hold forth the word,
 And wield the one and th' other sword.

Some were for carrying on the work 295
 Against the Pope; and some the Turk;
 Some for engaging to suppress
 The Camisado of surplices,
 That gifts and dispensations hinder'd,
 And turn'd to th' Outward Man the Inward;
 More proper for the cloudy night 301
 Of Popery than Gospel Light.
 Others were for abolishing
 That tool of matrimony, a ring,
 With which th' unsanctify'd bridegroom 305
 Is marry'd only to a thumb;
 (As wise as ringing of a pig,
 That us'd to break up ground, and dig;)
 The bride to nothing but her will,
 That nulls the after-marriage still. 310
 Some were for th' utter extirpation
 Of linsy woofsy in the nation;
 And some against all idolizing
 The Cross in shop-books, or Baptizing:
 Others to make all things recant 315
 The Christian or Surname of Saint;
 And force all churches, streets, and towns,
 The holy title to renounce.
 Some 'gainst a Third Estate of Souls,
 And bringing down the price of coals: 320
 Some for abolishing black-pudding,
 And eating nothing with the blood in;
 To abrogate them roots and branches;
 While others were for eating haunches
 Of warriors, and now and then, 325
 The flesh of Kings and mighty men;
 And some for breaking of their bones
 With rods of ir'n, by secret ones;

For thrashing mountains, and with spells
 For hallowing carriers packs and bells: 330
 Things that the legend never heard of,
 But made the wicked fore afear'd of.

The quacks of Government (who sate
 At th' unregarded helm of State,
 And understood this wild confusion 335
 Of fatal madness and delusion,
 Must, sooner than a prodigy,
 Portend destruction to be nigh)
 Consider'd timely how t' withdraw,
 And save their wind-pipes from the law; 340
 For one rencounter at the bar
 Was worse than all th' had 'scap'd in war;
 And therefore met in consultation,
 To cant and quack upon the nation;
 Not for the sickly patient's sake, 345
 Nor what to give, but what to take;
 To feel the pulses of their fees,
 More wise than fumbling arteries;
 Prolong the snuff of life in pain,
 And from the grave recover——Gain. 350

'Mong these there was a politician
 With more heads than a beast in vision,
 And more intrigues in ev'ry one
 Than all the whores of Babylon:
 So politic, as if one eye 355
 Upon the other were a spy,
 That, to trepan the one to think
 The other blind, both strove to blink;
 And in his dark pragmatick way,
 As busy as a child at play. 360
 H' had seen three Governments run down,
 And had a hand in ev'ry one;

Was for 'em and against 'em all,
 But barb'rous when they came to fall:
 For, by trepanning th' old to ruin, 365
 He made his int'rest with the new one;
 Play'd true and faithful, though against
 His conscience, and was still advanc'd.
 I or by the witchcraft of rebellion
 Transform'd t' a feeble state-camelion, 370
 By giving aim from side to side,
 He never fail'd to save his tide,
 But got the start of ev'ry state,
 And as a change ne'er came too late;
 Cou'd turn his word, and oath, and faith, 375
 As many ways as in a lath;
 By turning, wriggle, like a screw,
 In' highest trust, and out, for new.
 For when h' had happily inclin'd,
 Instead of hemp, to be prefer'd, 380
 And pass'd upon a government,
 He play'd his trick, and out he went:
 But being out, and out of hopes
 To mount his ladder (more) of ropes,
 Wou'd strive to raise himself upon 385
 The publick ruin, and his own;
 So little did he understand
 The desp'rate leap he took in hand.
 For when h' had got himself a name
 For fraud and tricks, he spoil'd his game; 390
 Had for his neck into a noose,
 To show his play at fast and loose;
 And when he chanc'd t' escape, mistook
 His art and subtlety, his luck.
 So right his judgment was cut fit, 395
 And made a tally to his wit,

And both together most profound
 At deeds of darkness under-ground ;
 As th' earth is easiest undermin'd,
 By vermin impotent and blind. 409
 By all these arts, and many more,
 H' had practis'd long and much before,
 Our state artificer foresaw
 Which way the world began to draw.
 For as old sinners have all points 405
 O th' compass in their bones and joints,
 Can by their pangs and aches find
 All turns and changes of the wind,
 And better than by ^t NAPIER's bones
 Feel in their own the age of moons ; 410
 So guilty sinners in a state
 Can by their crimes prognosticate,
 And in their consciences feel pain
 Some days before a show'r of rain.
 He therefore wisely cast about, 415
 All ways he cou'd, t' insure his throat ;
 And hither came, t' observe and smooke
 What courses other riskers took ;
 And to the utmost do his best
 To save himself, and hang the rest. 420
 To match this Saint, there was ^u another
 As busy and perverse a Brother,
 An haberdasher of small wares,
 In politicks and state affairs ;
 More Jew than Rabbi ACHITOPHEL, 425
 And better gifted to rebel :
 For when h' had taught his tribe to 'spouse
 'The Cause, aloft, upon one house,
 He scorn'd to set his own in order,
 But try'd another, and went further ; 430

So suddenly addicted still
 To's only principle, his will,
 'That whatsoe'er it chanc'd to prove,
 Nor force of argument could move;
 Nor law, nor cavalcade of Ho'burn, 435
 Could render half a grain less stubborn.
 For he at any time would hang
 For th' opportunity t' harangue;
 And rather on a gibbet dangle,
 Than miss his dear delight, to wrangle; 440
 In which his parts were so accomplish'd,
 That, right or wrong, he ne'er was non-plust;
 But still his tongue ran on, the less
 Of weight it bore, with greater ease;
 And with its everlasting clack 445
 Set all men's ears upon the rack.
 No sooner cou'd a hint appear,
 But up he started to picquer,
 And made the stoutest yield to mercy,
 When he engag'd in controversy. 450
 Not by the force of carnal reason,
 But indefatigable teasing;
 With volleys of eternal babble,
 And clamour, more unanswerable.
 For though his topics, frail and weak, 455
 Cou'd ne'er amount above a freak,
 He still maintain'd 'em, like his faults,
 Against the desp'ratest assaults;
 And back'd their feeble want of sense,
 With greater heat and confidence; 460
 As bones of Hector, when they differ,
 The more they're cudgel'd, grow the stiffer.*
 Yet when his profit moderated,
 The fury of his heat abated:

For nothing, but his interest 465

Could lay his Devil on Conquest

It was his choice, or chance, or cause,

I' spouse the Cause for bett'r or worse,

And with his vor'dly goods and wit,

And soul and body, worship'd it 470

But when he found the follen trapes

Possess'd with th' Devil, worms, and clips,

The Trojan mace, in foal with Greek,

Not hilt so full of judish tricks;

Though she was in her outward woman, 475

A loose and rampant as Dol Common,

He still resolv'd, to mend the matter,

To adhere and cleave the obstinate,

And still the skiffish and looser

Her freaks appear'd, to sit the closer. 480

Her boldness still in then way,

And she are hidden by th' ally.

And obstinacy's ne'er so stiff,

As when 'tis in a wrong belief.

The two, with others, being met, 485

And close in consultation set,

After a discontented pause,

And not without sufficient cause,

The orator we nam'd of late;

Iefs troubled with the pangs of State 490

Than with his own impatience,

To give himself first audience,

After he had a while look'd wise,

At last broke silence, and the ice.

Quoth he, There's nothing makes me doubt

Our last out-goings brought about, 496

More than to see the characters

Of great jealousies and fears

Not feign'd, as once, but, sadly horrid;
 Scor'd upon ev'ry Member's forehead; 500
 Who, 'cause the clouds are drawn together,
 And threaten sudden change of weather,
 Feel pangs and aches of state-turns,
 And revolutions in their corns;
 And, since our workings-out are cross'd, 505
 Throw up the Cause before 'tis lost.
 Was it to run away we meant,
 When, taking of the Covenant,
 The lamest cripples of the brothers
 Took oaths to run before all others; 510
 But in their own sense only swore
 To strive to run away before;
 And now would prove, that words and oath
 Engage us to renounce them both?
 'Tis true, the Cause is in the lurch, 515
 Between a Right and Mungrel-Church;
 The Presbyter and Independent,
 That stickle which shall make an end on't;
 As 'twas made out to us the last 519
 Expedient—(I mean * Marg'ret's Fast,)
 When Providence had been suborn'd,
 What answer was to be return'd.
 Else why should tumults fright us now,
 We have so many times gone through?
 And understand as well to tame, 525
 As when they serve our turns t' inflame;
 Have prov'd how inconsiderable
 Are all engagements of the table,
 Whose frenzies must be reconcil'd,
 With drums and rattles, like a child;
 But never prov'd so prosperous,
 As when they were led on by us:

For all our scouring of religion
 Began with tumults and sedition;
 When hurricanes of fierce commotion 535
 Became strong motives to devotion;
 (As carnal seamen, in a storm,
 Turn pious converts, and reform;)
 When rusty weapons, with chalk'd edges,
 Maintain' our feeble priviledges, 540
 And brown-bills, levy'd in the City,
 Made bills to pass the Grand Committee:
 When zeal, with aged clubs and gleaves,
 Gave chase to rochets and white sleeves,
 And made the Church, and State, and Laws,
 Submit t' old iron and the Cause. 546
 And as we thriv'd by tumults then,
 So might we better now agen,
 If we knew how, as then we did,
 To use them rightly in our need: 550
 Tumults, by which the mutinous
 Betray themselves instead of us.
 The hollow-hearted, disaffected,
 And close malignant are detected,
 Who lay their lives and fortunes down 555
 For pledges to secure our own;
 And freely sacrifice their ears
 T' appease our jealousies and fears;
 And yet, for all these providences,
 W' are offer'd, if we had our senses, 560
 We idly sit like stupid blockheads,
 Our hands committed to our pockets;
 And nothing but our tongues at large,
 To get the wretches a discharge:
 Like men condemn'd to thunder-bolts, 565
 No, e're the blow, become mere dolts;

Or fools besotted with their crimes,
 That know not how to shift betimes,
 And neither have the hearts to stay,
 Nor wit enough to run away; 570
 Who, if we cou'd resolve on either,
 Might stand or fall at least together;
 No mean or trivial solace
 To partners in extreme distress;
 Who us'd to lessen their despairs, 575
 By parting them int' equal shares;
~~And~~ if the more they were to bear,
 They felt the weight the easier;
 And ev'ry one the gentler hung,
 The more he took his turn among. 580
 But 'tis not come to that, as yet,
 If we had courage left, or wit;
 Who, when our fate can be no worse,
 Are fitted for the bravest courle;
 Have time to rally, and prepare 585
 Our last and best defence, despair:
 Despair, by which the gallant'st feats
 Have been atchiev'd in greatest straits,
 And horrid'st dangers safely wav'd,
 By being courageously out-brav'd; 590
 As wounds by milder wounds are heal'd,
 And poisons by themselves expell'd:
 And so they might be now agen,
 If we were, what we shou'd be, men;
 And not so dully desperate, 595
 To side against ourselves with fate;
 As criminals, condemn'd to suffer,
 Are blinded first, and then turn'd over.
 This comes of breaking Covenants,
 And setting up Exaunts of Saints,

That fine, like aldermen, for grace,
 To be excus'd the efficacy.
 For spiritual men are too transcendent,
 That mount their banks for Independent,
 To hang like MAHOMET in th' air, 603
 Or St. IGNATIUS at his prayer,
 By pure geometry, and hate
 Dependence upon Church or State;
 Disdain the pedantry o' th' letters;
 And since obedience is better 610
 (The Scripture says) than sacrifice,
 Presume the less on't will suffice;
 And scorn to have the moderat'st stints
 Prescrib'd their peremptory hints,
 Or any opinion, true or false, 615
 Declar'd as such, in doctrinals:
 But left at large to make their best on,
 Without b'ing call'd t' account or question,
 Interpret all the spleen reveals,
 As WHITTINGTON explain'd the bells; 620
 And bid themselves turn back agen
 Lord May'rs of New-Jerusalem;
 But look so big and over-grown,
 They scorn their edifiers t' own, 624
 Who taught them all their sprinkling lessons,
 Their tones, and sanctify'd expressions;
 Bestow'd their gifts upon a Saint,
 Like Charity, on those that want;
 And learn'd th' apocryphal bigots, 629
 T' inspire themselves with short-hand notes;
 For which they scorn and hate them worse
 Than dogs and cats do sow-gelders.
 For who first bred them up to pray,
 And teach, the House of Commons Way?

Where had they all their gifted phiares, 635
 But from our CHAMYS and CHASS,
 Without whose sprinkling and anointing,
 Who e'er had heard of NAH or OWAY?
 Their dispensations had been ill fled,
 But for our ADONIRAM BAYLID, 640
 And had they not begun the war,
 Th' had ne'er been hunted, as they are.
 For Saints in peace degenerate,
 And dwindle down to reprobate,
 Their zeal corrupts, like standing water, 645
 In th' intervals of war and slaughter,
 Abates the sharpness of its edge,
 Without the power of sacrifice.
 And though they've tricks to cast their sins
 As easy as serpents do their skins, 650
 That in a while grow out again,
 In peace they turn more carnal men,
 And from the most refin'd of Saints,
 As naturally grow muscicants,
 As barnacles turn SOLAND peele 655
 In th' Islands of the ORCADIES.
 Their dispensation's but a trick,
 For their conforming to the wicked;
 With whom the greatest difference
 Lies more in words, and shew, than sense 660
 For as the Pope, that keeps the gate
 Of Heaven, wears three crowns of state;
 So he that keeps the gate of Hell,
 Proud CHABERUS, wears three heads as well
 And, if the world has any troth, 665
 Some have been canoniz'd in both;
 But that which does them greatest harm,
 Their spiritual gizzards are too warm,

Which puts the over-heated fots
 In fevers still, like other goats. 670
 For though the Whore bends Hereticks
 With flames of fire, like crooked sticks,
 Our Schismaticks so vastly differ,
 Th' hotter th' are, they grow the stiffer;
 Still setting off their spiritual goods, 675
 With fierce and pertinacious feuds.
 For 'zeal's a dreadful termagant,
 That teaches Saints to tear and rant,
 And Independents to profess
 The doctrine of dependences: 680
 Turns meek, and secret, sneaking ones,
 To raw-heads fierce and bloody-bones:
 And, not content with endless quarrels
 Against the wicked, and their morals,
 The ^c GIBELLINES, for want of GUELFs,
 Divert their rage upon themselves. 686
 For now the war is not between
 The Brethren and the Men of Sin,
 But Saint and Saint, to spill the blood
 Of one another's brotherhood; 690
 Where neither side can lay pretence
 To liberty of conscience,
 Or zealous suff'ring for the Cause,
 To gain one groat's-worth of applause;
 For though endur'd with resolution, 695
 'Twill ne'er amount to persecution.
 Shall precious Saints, and secret ones,
 Break one another's outward bones,
 And eat the flesh of Brethren,
 Instead of Kings and mighty men? 700
 When feuds agree among themselves,
 Shall they be found the greater elves?

When BELL's at union with the DRAGON,
 And BAAL-PEOR friends with DAGON,
 When savage bears agree with bears, 705
 Shall secret ones lug Saints by th' ears,
 And not atone their fatal wrath,
 When common danger threatens both?
 Shall mastiffs, by the collars pull'd,
 Engag'd with bulls, let go their hold, 710
 And Saints, whose necks are pawn'd at stake,
 No notice of the danger take?
 But though no pow'r of Heav'n or Hell
 Can pacify phanatick zeal,
 Who wou'd not guess there might be hopes,
 The fear of gallowses and ropes, 716
 Before their eyes, might reconcile
 Their animosities a while;
 At least until th' had a clear stage,
 And equal freedom to engage, 720
 Without the danger of surprize
 By both our common enemies?
 This none but we alone cou'd doubt,
 Who understand their workings out; 724
 And know them, both in soul and conscience,
 Giv'n up t' as reprobate a nonsense
 As spiritual ~~onions~~, whom the pow'r
 Of miracle can never restore:
 We, whom at first they set up under,
 In revelation only of plunder, 730
 Who since have had so many trials
 Of their encroaching self-denials,
 That rook'd upon us with design,
 To out-reform, and undermine;
 Took all our interests and commands 735
 Perfidiously out of our hands;

Involv'd us in the guilt of blood,
 Without the motive gains allow'd,
 And made us serve as ministerial,
 Like younger sons of Father BELIAL ; 740
 And yet, for all th' inhuman wrong
 Th' had done us, and the Cause so long,
 We never fail'd to carry on
 The work still as we had begun ;
 But true and faithfully obey'd, • 745
 And neither preach'd them hurt, nor pry'd,
 Nor troubled them to crop our ears,
 Nor hang us like the cavaliers ;
 Nor put them to the charge of gaols,
 To find us pillories and cart's-tails, 750
 Or hangman's wages, which the State
 Was forc'd (before them) to be at,
 That cut, like tallics, to the stumps,
 Our ears for keeping true accompts,
 And burnt our vessels, like a new 755
 Seal'd peck, or bushel, for b'ing true ;
 But hand in hand, like faithful brothers,
 Held for the Cause against all others,
 Disdaining equally to yield,
 One syllable of what we held. 760
 And though we differ'd now and then
 'Bout outward things, and outward men,
 Our inward men, and constant frame
 Of spirit, still were near the same ;
 And till they first began to cant, 765
 And sprinkle down the Covenant,
 We never had call in any place,
 Nor dream'd of teaching down free grace,
 But join'd our gifts perpetually
 Against the common enemy. 770

Although 'twas ours and their opinion, 't
 Each other's Church was but a RIMMON :
 And yet, for all this Gospel-union,
 And outward shew of Church-communion,
 They'd ne'er admit us to our shares 775
 Of ruling Church or State affairs ;
 Nor give us leave t' absolve, or sentence
 T' our own conditions of repentance ;
 But shar'd our dividend o' th' Crown,
 We had so painfully preach'd down ; 780
 And forc'd us, though against the grain,
 T' have calls to teach it up again .
 For 'twas but justice to restore
 The wrongs we had receiv'd before ;
 And when 'twas held forth in our way, 785
 W' had been ungrateful not to pay ;
 Who, for the right w' have done the nation,
 Have earn'd our temporal salvation ;
 And put our vessels in a way
 Once more to come again in play. 790
 For if the turning of us out
 Has brought this Providence about,
 And that our only suffering
 Is able to bring in the King,
 What would our actions not have done, 795
 Had we been suffer'd to go on ?
 And therefore may pretend t' a share,
 At least, in carrying on th' affair.
 But whether that be so, or not,
 W' have done enough to have it thought ; 800
 And that's as good as if w' had done 't,
 And easier pass't upon account :
 For if it be but half deny'd,
 'Tis half as good as justify'd.

The world is nat'rally averse 805
 To all the truth it sees or hears;
 But swallows nonsense, and a lie,
 With greediness and gluttony;
 And though it have the pique, and long,
 'Tis still for something in the wrong; 810
 As women long, when they're with child,
 For things extravagant and wild;
 For meats ridiculous and fulsome,
 But seldom any thing that's wholesome;
 And, like the world, men's jobbernoles 815
 Turn round upon their ears, the poles;
 And what they're confidently told,
 By no sense else can be control'd.

And this, perhaps, may prove the means
 Once more to hedge-in Providence. 820
 For as relapses make diseases
 More desp'rate than their first accesses,
 If we but get again in pow'r,
 Our work is easier than before;
 And we more ready and expert 825
 I' th' mystery to do our part.
 We, who did rather undertake
 The first war to create than make;
 And when of nothing 'twas begun,
 Rais'd funds as strange to carry on; 830
 Trepann'd the State, and laid it down
 With plots and projects of our own;
 And if we did such feats at first,
 What can we now we're better vers'd?
 Who have a freer latitude, 835
 Than flatterers give themselves, allow'd,
 And therefore likeliest to bring in,
 On falsest terms, our discipline;

To which it was reveal'd long since,
 We were ordain'd by Providence ; 840
 When d three Saints Ears, our predecessors,
 The Cause's primitive Confessors,
 B'ing crucify'd, the nation stood
 In just so many years of blood ;
 That, multiply'd by six, express 845
 The perfect number of the beast,
 And prov'd that we must be the men
 To bring this work about agen ;
 And those who laid the first foundation,
 Compleat the thorough Reformation : 850
 For who have gifts to carry on
 So great a work, but we alone ?
 What churches have such able pastors,
 And precious, powerful, preaching masters ?
 Possess'd with absolute dominions 855
 O'er brethren's purses and opinions ?
 And trusted with the double keys
 Of Heaven and their warehouses ;
 Who, when the Cause is in distress,
 Can furnish out what sums they please, 860
 That brooding lie in bankers' hands,
 To be dispos'd at their commands ;
 And daily increase and multiply,
 With doctrine, life, and usury :
 Can fetch in parties (as in war 865
 All other heads of cattle are)
 From the enemy of all religions,
 As well as high and low condition
 And share them, from blue ribbons
 To all blue aprons in the town ; 870
 From ladies hurried in calleches,
 With cornets at their footmen's breeches

To bawds as fat as Mother Nab ;
 All guts and belly, like a crab.
 Our party's great, and better ty'd 875
 With oaths and trade than any side,
 Has one considerable improvement,
 To double fortify the Cov'nant :
 I mean our Covenant to purchase
 Delinquents titles, and the Churches ; 880
 That pass in sale, from hand to hand,
 Among ourselves, for current land ;
 And rise or fall, like Indian actions,
 According to the rate of factions ;
 Our best reserve for reformation, 885
 When new out-goings give occasion ;
 That keeps the loins of Brethren girt
 The Covenant (their creed) t' assert ;
 And when th' have pack'd a Parliament,
 Will once more try th' expedient : 890
 Who can already muster friends,
 To serve for members, to our ends,
 That represent no part o' th' nation,
 But a Fisher's-Folly Congregation ;
 Are only tools to our intrigues, 895
 And sit like geese to hatch our eggs ;
 Who, by their precedents, all wit,
 T' out-fast, out-loiter, and out-fit,
 Can order matters underhand,
 To put all bus'ness to a stand ; 900
 Lay publick bills aside for private,
 And make 'em one another drive out ;
 Direct the great and necessary,
 With titles to contest and vary ;
 And make the nation represent, 905
 And serve for us, in Parliament :

Cut out more work than can be done
 In ^f PLATO's year, but finish none ;
 Unless it be the Bulls of LFNTHAL,
 That always pass'd for fundamental ; 910
 Can set up grandee against grandee,
 To squander time away, and bandy ;
 Make Lords and Commoners lay sieges
 To one another's privileges,
 And, rather than compound the quarrel, 915
 Engage to th' inevitable peril
 Of both their ruins ; th' only scope
 And consolation of our hope ;
 Who, though we do not play the game,
 Assist as much by giving aim : 920
 Can introduce our ancient arts,
 For heads of factions t' act their parts ;
 Know what a leading voice is worth,
 A seconding, a third, or fourth ;
 How much a casting voice comes to, 925
 That turns up trump, of ay, or no ;
 And, by adjusting all at th' end,
 Share ev'ry one his dividend :
 An art that so much study cost,
 And now's in danger to be lost, 930
 Unless our ancient virtuosos,
 That found it out, get into th' Houses.
 These are the courses that we took
 To carry things by hook or crook ;
 And practis'd down from forty-four, 935
 Until they turn'd us out of door :
 Besides the herds of Bouteefeus
 We set on work without the House ;
 When ev'ry knight and citizen
 Kept legislative journey men, 940

To bring them in intelligence
 From all points of the rabble's sense,
 And fill the lobbies of both Houses
 With politick important buzzes:
 Set up committees of cabals, 945
 To pack designs without the walls;
 Examine, and draw up all news,
 And fit it to our present use.
 Agree upon the plot o' th' farce,
 And ev'ry one his part rehearse. 950
 Make Q's of answers, to way-lay
 What th' other parties like to say:
 What repartees, and smart reflections,
 Shall be return'd to all objections;
 And who shall break the master-jest, 955
 And what, and how, upon the rest:
 Help pamphlets out, with safe editions,
 Of proper slanders and seditions;
 And treason for a token send,
 By Letter to a Country Friend; 960
 Disperse lampoons, the only wit
 That men, like burglary, commit;
 Wit falser than a padder's face,
 That all its owner does betrays;
 Who therefore dares not trust it when 965
 He's in his calling to be leech:
 Disperse the dung on barren earth,
 To bring new weeds of discord forth;
 Be sure to keep up congregations,
 In spite of laws and proclamations: 970
 For charlatans can do no good
 Until they're mounted in a crowd;
 And when they're punish'd, all the hurt
 Is but to fare the better for't;

As long as confessors are fore 175
 Of double pay for all th' endure,
 And what they earn in persecution,
 Are paid t' a goat in contribution.
 Whence some Tub-Holders forth have made
 In powd'ring-tubs their richest trade; 980
 And, while they kept their shops in prison,
 Have found their prices strangely risen.
 Disdain to own the least regret
 For all the Christian blood w' have let;
 'Twill save our credit, and maintain 985
 Our title to do so again;
 That needs not cost one dram of sense,
 But pertinacious impudence.
 Our constancy t' our principles,
 In time will wear out all things else; 990
 Like marble statues rubb'd in pieces
 With gallantry of pilgrims' kisses;
 While those who turn and wind their oaths,
 Have swell'd and sunk, like other froths;
 Prevail'd a while, but 'twas not long 995
 Before from world to world they swung:
 As they had turn'd from side to side,
 And as the changlings liv'd, they dy'd.
 This said, th' impatient States-monger
 Could now contain himself no longer; 1000
 Who had not spar'd to shew his piques
 Against th' haranguer's politicks,
 With smart remarks of leering faces,
 And annotations of grimaces.
 After h' had administer'd a dose 1005
 Of snuff-mundungus to his nose,
 And powder'd th' inside of his skull,
 Instead of th' outward jobberno,

He shook it with a scornful look
 'On th' adversary, and thus he spoke: 1010
 'In dressing a calves head, although
 The tongue and brains together go,
 Both keep so great a distance here,
 'Tis strange if ever they come near;
 For who did ever play his gambols 1015
 With such insufferable rambles?
 To make the bringing in the KING,
 And keeping of him out, one thing?
 Which none could do, but those that swore
 'T' as point-blank nonsense heretofore: 1020
 That to defend, was to invade;
 And to assassinate, to aid:
 Unless, because you drove him out,
 (And that was never made a doubt,)
 No pow'r is able to restore, 1025
 And bring him in, but on your score:
 A spiritual doctrine, that conduces
 Most properly to all your uses.
 'Tis true, a scorpion's oil is said
 To cure the wounds the vermin made; 1030
 And weapons, drest with falves, restore
 And heal the hurts they gave before;
 But whether Presbyterians have
 So much good nature as the falve,
 Or virtue in them as the vermine, 1035
 Those who have try'd them can determine.
 Indeed, 'tis pity you should miss
 Th' arrears of all your services,
 And for the eternal obligation
 Y' have laid upon th' ingrateful nation, 1040
 Be us'd so unconscionably hard,
 As not to find a just reward,

For letting rapine loose, and murder,
 To rage just so far, but no further;
 And setting all the land on fire, 1045
 To burn t' to a scantling, but no higher;
 For vent'ring to assassinate,
 And cut the throats, of Church and State,
 And not be allow'd the fittest men
 To take the charge of both agen: 1050
 Especially, that have the grace
 Of self-denying, gifted face;
 Who, when your projects have miscarry'd,
 Can lay them, with undaunted forehead,
 On those you painfully trepann'd, 1055
 And sprinkled in at second hand;
 As we have been, to share the guilt
 Of Christian Blood, devoutly spilt;
 For so our ignorance was flamm'd 1059
 To damn ourselves, t' avoid being damn'd;
 Till finding your old foe, the hangman,
 Was like to lurch you at back-gammon,
 And win your necks upon the set,
 As well as ours, who did but bet,
 (For he had drawn your ears before, 1065
 And nick'd them on the self-same score,)
 We threw the box, and dice away,
 Before y' had lost us, at foul play;
 And brought you down to rook, and lie,
 And fancy only, on the by; 1070
 Redeem'd your forfeit jobbernoles
 From perching upon lofty poles;
 And rescu'd all your outward traitors
 From hanging up like aligators;
 For which ingeniously y' have shew'd 1075
 Your Presbyterian gratitude;

Would freely have paid us home in kind,
 And not have been one rope behind.
 Those were your motives to divide,
 And scruple, on the other side, 1080
 To turn your zealous frauds, and force,
 To fits of conscience and remorse;
 To be convinc'd they were in vain,
 And face about for new again:
 For truth no more unveil'd your eyes, 1085
 Than maggots are convinc'd to flies;
 And therefore all your lights and calls
 Are but apocryphal and false,
 To charge us with the consequences
 Of all your native insolences, 1090
 That to your own imperious wills
 Laid Law and Gospel neck and heels;
 Corrupted the Old Testament,
 To serve the New for precedent;
 T' amend its errors, and defects, 1095
 With murder, and rebellion-texts;
 Of which there is not any one
 In all the Book to sow upon;
 And therefore (from your tribe) the Jews
 Held Christian doctrine forth, and use; 1100
 As Mahomet (your chief) began
 To mix them in the Alchoran:
 Denounc'd and pray'd, with fierce devotion,
 And bended elbows on the cushion;
 Stole from the beggars all your tones, 1105
 And gifted mortifying groans;
 Had Lights where better eyes were blind,
 As pigs are said to see the wind:
 Filled Bedlam with predestination, 1109
 And Knights-bridge with illumination:

Made children, with your tones, to run for't,
 As bad as bloody-lanes, or LUNSFORD:
 While women, great with child, miscarried,
 For being to malignants marry'd:
 Transform'd all wives to DALILAHs, 1115
 Whose husbands were not for the Cause;
 And turn'd the men to ten-horn'd cattle,
 Because they came not out to battle:
 Made taylors' prentices turn heroes,
 For fear of being transform'd to MEROZ;
 And rather forsook their indentures, 1121
 Than not espouse the Saints' adventures.
 Could transubstantiate, metamorphose, [us:
 And charm whole herds of beasts, like Orphe-
 Inchant the King's and Churches' lands 1125
 T' obey and follow your commands;
 And settle on a new freehold,
 As MARC'DY-HILL had done of old:
 Could turn the Covenant, and translate
 The Gospel into spoons and plate: 1130
 Expound upon all merchants' cashes,
 And open th' intricate places:
 Could catechize a money-box,
 And prove all powches orthodox;
 Until the Cause became a DAMON, 1135
 And PYTHIAS the wicked Mammon.
 And yet, in spite of all your charms
 To conjure legion up in arms,
 And raise more devils in the rout
 Than e'er y' were able to cast out, 1140
 Y' have been reduc'd, and by those fools
 Bred up (you say) in your own schools;
 Who, though but gifted at your feet,
 Have made it plain, they have more wit;

By whom you have been so oft trepann'd,
 And held forth out of al^l command, 1145
 Out-gifted, out-impuls'd, out-done,
 And out-reveal'd at carryings-on;
 Qf all your dispensations worm'd,
 Out-Providenc'd, and out-reform'd; 1150
 Ejected out of Church and State,
 And all things, but the peoples' hate;
 And spirited out of th' enjoyments
 Of precious, edifying employments,
 By those who lodg'd their gifts and graces,
 Like better bowlers, in your places; 1155
 All which you bore with resolution,
 Charg'd on th' accompt of persecution;
 And though most righteously oppress'd,
 Against your wills, still acquiesc'd; 1160
 And never hum'd and hah'd sedition,
 Nor snuff'd treason, nor misprision.
 That is, because you never durst;
 For had you preach'd and pray'd your worst,
 Alas! you were no longer able 1165
 To raise your posse of the rabble:
 One single red-coat sentinel
 Out-charm'd the magick of the spell;
 And, with his squirt-fire, could disperse
 Whole troops with chapter rais'd and verse.
 We knew too well these tricks of yours, 1171
 To leave it ever in your powers;
 Or trust our safeties, or undoings,
 To your disposing of out-goings;
 Or to your ordering Providence, 1175
 One farthing's-worth of consequence.
 For had you pow'r to undermine,
 Or wit to carry a design,

Or correspondence to trepan,
 Inveigle, or betray one man, 1180
 There's nothing else that intervenes,
 And bars your zeal to use the means;
 And therefore wond'rous like, no doubt,
 To bring in Kings, or keep them out.
 Brave undertakers to restore, 1185
 That cou'd not keep yourselves in pow'r;
 T' advance the int'rests of the Crown,
 That wanted wit to keep your own!
 'Tis true, you have (for I'd be loth
 To wrong ye) done your parts in both, 1190
 To keep him out, and bring him in,
 As grace is introduc'd by sin;
 For 'twas your zealous want of sense,
 And sanctify'd impertinence,
 Your carrying business in a huddle, 1195
 That forc'd our rulers to new-model;
 Oblig'd the State to tack about,
 And turn you, root and branch, all out;
 To reformato, one and all,
 T' your great & Croysado General. 1200
 Your greedy slav'ring to devour,
 Before 'twas in your clutches, pow'r,
 That sprung the game you were to set,
 Before y' had time to draw the net;
 Your spight to see the Churches' lands 1205
 Divided into other hands,
 And all your sacrilegious ventures
 Laid out in tickets and debentures;
 Your envy to be sprinkled down,
 By Under-Churches in the town; 1210
 And no course us'd to stop their mouths,
 Nor th' Independents' spreading growths.

All which consider'd, 'tis most true
 None bring him in so much as you ;
 Who have prevail'd beyond their plots, 1215
 Their midnight juntos, and seal'd knots ;
 That thrive more by your zealous piques,
 Than all their own rash politicks ;
 And this way you may claim a share,
 In carrying (as you brag) th' affair ; 1220
 Else frogs and toads, that croak'd the Jews
 From PHARAOH and his brick-kilns loose,
 And flies and mange, that set them free
 From task-masters and slavery,
 Were likelier to do the feat, 1225
 In any indiff'rent man's conceit :
 For who e'er heard of restoration,
 Until your thorough Reformation ?
 That is, the King's and Churches' lands
 Were sequester'd int' other hands : 1230
 For only then, and not before,
 Your eyes were open'd to restore.
 And when the work was carrying on,
 Who cross'd it, but yourselves alone ?
 As by a world of hints appears, 1235
 All plain and extant as your ears.
 But first, o' th' first: The Isle of WIGHT
 Will rise up, if you should deny't ;
 Where HENDERSON, and th' other masses,
 Were sent to cap texts, and put cases : 1240
 To pass for deep and learned scholars,
 Although but paltryⁿ Ob and Solters :
 As if th' unreasonable fools
 Had been a courting in the schools ;
 Until th' had prov'd the Devil author 1245
 O' th' Covenant, and the Cause his daughter.

For when they charg'd h'm with the guilt
Of all the blood that been spilt,
'They did not mean he wrought th' effusion,'
In person, like ' Sir PRIDI, or HUGHSON,
But only those who first began 1251

The quarrel were by him set on.
And who could those be but the Saints,
Those Reformation Termagants? 1254

But e're this pass'd, the wise debate 1255
Spent so much time, it grew too late;
For OLIVER had gotten ground,
T' inclose him with his warriors round;
Had brought his Providence about,
And turn'd th' untimely sophists out. 1260

Nor had the UXBRIDGE bus'ness less
Of nonsense in't, or sottishness,
When from a scoundrel Holder-forth,
The scum as well as son o' th' earth,
Your mighty Senators took law; 1265

At his command, were for'd t' withdraw,
And sacrifice the peace o' th' nation
To doctrine, use, and application.

So when the SCOTS, your constant cronies,
Th' espousers of your Cause and monies, 1270

Who had so often, in your aid,
So many ways been soundly paid,
Came in at last for better ends,
To prove themselves your trusty friends,
You basely left them, and the Church 1275

They train'd you up to, in the lurch,
And suffer'd your own tribe of Christians

'To fall before, as true Philistines..

'This shews what utensils y' have been,
To bring the King's concerns in; 1280

Which is so far from being true,
 That none but he can bring in you :
 And if he take you into trust,
 Will find you most exactly just :
 Such as will punctually repay 1285
 With double interest, and betray.

Not that I think those pantomimes,
 Whose vary action with the times,
 Are less ingenious in their art,
 Than those who dully act one part ; 1290
 Or those who turn from side to side,
 More guilty than the wind and tide.
 All countries are a wise man's home,
 And so are governments to some,
 Who change them for the same intrigues 1295
 That statesmen use in breaking leagues ;
 While others, in old faiths and troths,
 Look odd as out-of-fashion'd cloths ;
 And nastier, in an old opinion,
 Than those who never shift their linnen. 1300

For true and faithful's sure to lose,
 Which way soever the game goes ;
 And whether parties lose or win,
 Is always nick'd, or else hedg'd in :
 While pow'r usurp'd, like stol'n delight, 1305
 Is more bewitching than the right ;
 And when the times begin to alter,
 None rise so high as from the halter.

And so may we, if w^e have but sense
 To use the necessary means ; 1310
 And not your usual stratagems
 Of one another, Lights and Dreams :
 To stand on terms as positive,
 As if we did not take, but give :

Set up the Covenant on crutches, '1315
 'Gainst those who have us in their clutches,
 And dream of pulling churches down,
 Before w' are sure to prop our own:
 Your constant method of proceeding,
 Without the carnal means of heeding; '1320
 Who, 'twixt your inward sense and outward,
 Are worse, than if y' had none, accoutred.
 I grant, all courses are in vain,
 Unless we can get in again;
 The only way that's left us now; '1325
 But all the difficulty's, How?
 'Tis true, w' have money, th' only pow'r
 That all mankind falls down before;
 Money, that, like the swords of kings,
 Is the last reason of all things; '1330
 And therefore need not doubt our play
 Has all advantages that way;
 As long as men have faith to sell,
 And meet with those that can pay well;
 Whose half-starv'd pride, and avarice, '1335
 One Church and State will not suffice
 To expose to sale, beside the wages
 Of storing plagues to after-ages.
 Nor is our money less our own,
 Than 'twas before we laid it down; '1340
 For 'twill return, and turn t' account,
 If we are brought in play upon't:
 Or but, by casting knaves, get in,
 What pow'r can hinder us to win?
 We know the arts we us'd before, '1345
 In peace and war, and something more;
 And by th' unfortunate events,
 Can mend our next experiments:

For when w' are taken into trust,
 How easy are the wisest clost?
 Who see but th' outsides of our seats,
 And not their secret springs and weights;
 And while they're busy at their ease,
 Can carry what designs we please.
 How easy is it to serve for agents,
 To prosecute our old engagements?
 To keep the Good Old Cause on foot,
 And present power from taking root?
 Inflame them both with false alarms
 Of plots and parties taking arms;
 To keep the Nation's wounds too wide
 From healing up of side to side;
 Profess the passionat'st concerns
 For both their interests by turns;
 The only way t' improve our own,
 By dealing faithfully with none;
 (As bowls run true, by being made
 On purpose false, and to be sway'd:)
 For if we should be true to either,
 'Twould turn us out of both together;
 And therefore have no other means
 To stand upon our own defence,
 But keeping up our ancient party
 In vigour, confident and hearty:
 To reconcile our late dissenters,
 Our brethren, though by other venters;
 Unite them, and their different maggots,
 As long and short sticks are in faggots,
 And make them join again as close
 As when they first began t' espouse;
 Erect them into separate
 New Jewish tribes, in Church and State;

To join in marriage and commerce,
 And only among themselves converse ;
 And all that are not of their mind, 1385
 Make enemies to all mankind :
 Take all religions in, and stickle
 From Conclave down to Conventicle ;
 Agreeing still, or disagreeing,
 According to the Light in being. 1390
 Sometimes for liberty of conscience,
 And spiritual mis-rule, in one sense ;
 But in another quite contrary,
 As dispensations chance to vary ;
 And stand for, as the times will bear it, 1395
 All contradictions of the Spirit :
 Protect their emissaries, empower'd
 To preach sedition and the word ;
 And when they're hamper'd by the laws,
 Release the lab'ers for the Cause ; 1400
 And turn the persecution back
 On those that made the first attack ;
 To keep them equally in awe,
 From breaking or maintaining law :
 And when they have their fits too soon, 1405
 Before the full-tides of the moon,
 Put off their zeal t' a fitter season
 For sowing faction in and treason ;
 And keep them hooded, and their Churches,
 Like hawks from bating on their perches,
 That, when the blessed time shall come 1411
 Of quitting BABYLON and ROME,
 They may be ready to restore
 Their own Fifth Monarchy once more.
 Mean while be better arm'd to fence
 Against revolts of Providence, 1415

By watching narrowly, and snapping
 All blind sides of it, as they happen :
 For if success could make us Saints,
 Our ruin turn'd us miscreants : 1420
 A scandal that wou'd fall too hard
 Upon a few, and unprepar'd.
 These are the courses we must run,
 Spight of our hearts, or be undone ;
 And not to stand on terms and freaks, 1425
 Before we have secur'd our necks.
 But do our work, as out of sight,
 As stars by day, and suns by night :
 All licence of the people own,
 In opposition to the Crown ; 1430
 And for the Crown as fiercely side,
 The head and body to divide ;
 The end of all we first design'd,
 And all that yet remains behind :
 Be sure to spare no publick rapine, 1435
 On all emergencies, that happen ;
 For 'tis as easy to supplant
 Authority as men in want ;
 As some of us, in trusts, have made
 The one hand with the other trade ; 1440
 Gain'd vastly by their joint endeavour ;
 The right a thief ; the left, receiver ;
 And what the one, by tricks, forestall'd,
 The other, by as sly, retail'd.
 For gain has wonderful effects 1445
 T' improve the Factory of Sects ;
 The rule of faith in all professions,
 And great DIANA of the EPHESIANS ;
 Whence turning of Religion's made
 The means to turn and wind a trade : 1450

And though some change it for the worse,
 They put themselves into a course;
 And draw in store of customers,
 To thrive the better in commerce:
 For all Religions flock together, 1455
 Like tame and wild fowl of a feather;
 To nab the itches of their sects,
 As jades do one another's necks.
 Hence 'tis, Hypocrisy as well 1459
 Will serve t' improve a Church as ZALAL:
 As Persecution, or Promotion,
 Do equally advance Devotion.

Let business, like ill watches, go
 Sometime too fast, sometime too slow;
 For things in order are put out 1465
 So easy, Ease itself will do't;
 But when the feat's design'd and meant,
 What miracle can bar th' event?
 For 'tis more easy to betray,
 Than ruin any other way. 1470

All possible occasions start
 The weighty'st matters to divert;
 Obstruct, perplex, distract, intangle,
 And lay perpetual trains to wrangle.
 But in affairs of less import, 1475
 That neither do us good nor hurt,
 And they receive as little by,
 Out-fawn as much, and out-comply;
 And seem as scrupulously just,
 To bait our hooks for greater trust; 1480
 But still be careful to cry down
 All publick actions, though our own:
 The least miscarriage aggravate,
 And charge it all upon the State:

Express the horrid'st detestation, 1485
 And pity the distracted nation:
 Tell stories scandalous and false,
 I' th' proper language of cabals,
 Where all a subtle statesman says,
 Is half in words, and half in face; 1490
 (As Spaniards talk in dialogues
 Of heads and shoulders, nods and shrugs :)
 Entrust it under solemn vows .
 Of mum, and silence, and the rose,
 To be retail'd again in whispers, 1495
 For th' easy credulous to disperse. .

Thus far the Statesman—When a shout,
 Heard at a distance, put him out;
 And strait another, all agast,
 Rush'd in with equal fear and haste; 1500
 Who star'd about, as pale as death,
 And, for a while, as out of breath;
 Till having gather'd up his wits,
 He thus began his tale by fits. 1504

That ^k beastly rabble—that came down
 From all the garrets—in the town,
 And stalls, and shop-boards—in vast swarms,
 With new-chalk'd bills—and rusty arms,
 To cry the Cause—up, heretofore,
 And hawl the BISHOPS—out of door, 1510
 Are now drawn up—in greater shoals,
 To roast—and broil us on the coals,
 And all the Grandees—of our Members
 Are carbonading—on the embers;
 Knights, Citizens, and Burgeffes— 1515
 Held forth by Rumps—of Pigs and Geese,
 That serve for Characters—and Badges
 To represent their Personages :

Each Bonfire is a Funeral Pile, 1519
 In which they roast, and scorch, and broil,
 And ev'ry Representative
 Have vow'd to roast—and broil alive :
 And 'tis a Miracle, we are not
 Already sacrific'd incarnate.
 For while we wrangle here, and jar, 1525
 W' are grilly'd all at TEMPLE-BAR :
 Some on the sign-post of an ale-house,
 Hang in effigy, on the gallows ;
 Made up of rags, to personate
 Respective Officers of State ; 1530
 That henceforth they may stand reputed,
 Proscrib'd in law, and executed ;
 And while the Work is carrying on,
 Be ready list'd under ¹ DUN,
 That worthy patriot, once the bellows, 1535
 And tinder-box, of all his fellows ;
 The activ'st Member of the Five,
 As well as the most primitive ;
 Who, for his faithful service then,
 Is chosen for a Fifth agen : 1540
 (For since the State has made a Quint
 Of Generals, he's list'd in't.)
 This worthy, as the world will say,
 Is paid in specie, his own way ;
 For, moulded to the life in clouts, 1545
 Th' have pick'd from dung-hills hereabouts,
 He's mounted on a hazel bavin,
 A cropp'd malignant baker gave 'em ;
 And to the largest bone-fire riding, [in ;
 They've roasted ^m COOK already and PRIDE -
 On whom, in equipage and state, 1551
 His scarecrow fellow-members wait,

And march in order, two and two,
 As at thanksgivings th' us'd to do ;
 Each in a tatter'd talisman, 1555
 Like vermin in effigie slain.

But (what's more dreadful than the rest)
 Those Rumps are but the tail o' th' Beast,
 Set up by Popish engineers,
 As by the crackers plainly appears ; 1560
 For none but Jesuits have a mission
 To preach the faith with ammunition,
 And propagate the Church with powder ;
 Their tounder was a blown-upⁿ Soldier.
 These spiritual pioneers o' th' Whore's, 1565
 That have the charge of all her stores,
 Since first they fail'd in their designs,
 To take in Heav'n by springing mines,
 And with unanswerable barrels
 Of gunpowder dispute their quarrels, 1570
 Now take a course more practicable,
 By laying trains to fire the rabble,
 And blow us up in th' open streets,
 Disguis'd in Rumps, like Sambenites ;
 More like to ruin, and confound, 1575
 Than all their doctrines under ground.

Nor have they chosen Rumps amiss, .
 For symbols of State-mysteries ;
 Though some suppose 'twas but to shew 1579
 How much they scorn'd the Saints, the few ;
 Who, 'cause they're wasted to the stumps,
 Are represented best by Rumps.
 But Jesuits have deeper reaches
 In all their politick far-fetches, 1584
 And, from the Coptick Priest, ° Kircherus,
 Found out this mystick way to jeer us.

For, as th' Ægyptians us'd by bees
 T' exprefs their antick PROLOMIES ;
 And by their stings, the swords they wore,
 Held forth authority and power ; 1590
 Because these subtil animals
 Bear all their int'rests in their tails,
 And when they're once impair'd in that,
 Are banish'd their well-order'd state ;
 They thought all governments were best 1595
 By Hieroglyphick Rumps exprest.
 For, as in bodies natural,
 The rump's the fundament of all ;
 So, in a common-wealth, or realm,
 The government is call'd the helm ; 1600
 With which, like vessels under sail,
 They're turn'd and winded by the tail ;
 The tail, which birds and fishes steer
 Their courses with through sea and air ;
 To whom the rudder of the rump is' 1605
 The same thing with the stern and compass.
 This shews how perfectly the Rump
 And Common-wealth in nature jump.
 For as a fly, that goes to bed,
 Rests with his tail above his head, 1610
 So in this mungrel state of ours,
 The rabble are the supreme powers ;
 That hors'd us on their backs, to show us
 A jadish trick at last, and throw us.
 The learned Rabbins of the Jews 1615
 Write there's a bone, which they call luz,
 I th' rump of man, of such a virtue,
 No force in nature can do hurt to ;
 And therefore at the last great day,
 All th' other members shall, they say, 1620

Spring out of this, as from a seed
 All sorts of vegetals proce'd;
 From whence the learned sons of art
 Os Sacrum justly stile that part.
 Then what can better represent 1625
 Than this Rump Bone the Parliament;
 That, after several rude ejections,
 And as prodigious resurrections,
 With new reversions of nine lives,
 Starts up, and like a cat revives? 1630

But now, alas! they're all expir'd,
 And th' House, as well as Members, fir'd;
 Consum'd in kennels by the rout,
 With which they other fires put out:
 Condemn'd t' ungoverning distress, 1635
 And paultry, private wretchedness;
 Worse than the Devil, to privation,
 Beyond all hopes of restoration;
 And parted, like the body and soul,
 From all dominion and controul. 1640
 We, who cou'd lately with a look
 Enact, establish, or revoke;
 Whose arbitrary nods gave law,
 And frowns kept multitudes in awe;
 Before the bluster of whose huff, 1645
 All hats, as in a storm, flew off;
 Ador'd and bow'd to by the great,
 Down to the foot-man and valet;
 Had more bent knees than chapel-mats,
 And prayers, than the crowns of hats; 1650
 Shall now be scorn'd as wretchedly;
 For ruin's just as low as high;
 Which might be suffer'd, were it all
 The horror that attends our fall:
 For some of us have scores more large 1655
 Than heads and quarters can discharge;

And others, who, by restless scraping,
 With publick frauds, and private rapine,
 Have mighty heaps of wealth amass'd,
 Would gladly lay down all at last, 1660
 And to be but undone, entail
 Their vessels on perpetual jail;
 And bless the Dev'l to let them farms
 Of forstent souls on no worse terms.

This sad, a'neer and louder shout 1665
 Put all th' assembly to the rout,
 Who now begun t' out run their fear,
 As horses do from whom they bear;
 But crowded on with so much haste,
 Until th' had block'd the passage fast, 1670
 And barricado'd it with haunches
 Of outward men, and bulks and paunches,
 That with their shoulders strove to squeeze,
 And rather save a crippled piece 1674
 Of all their crush'd and broken members,
 Than have them grilled on the embers,
 Still pressing on with heavy packs
 Of one another on their backs
 The van guard could no longer bear
 The charges of the forlorn reer, 1680
 But, born down headlong by the rout,
 Were trampled sorely under foot:
 Yet nothing prov'd so formidable
 As the horrid cookery of the rabble;
 And fear, that keeps all feeling out, 1685
 As lesser pains are by the gout,
 Reliev'd 'em with a fresh supply
 Of rallied force enough to fly,
 And beat a Tuscan running-horse,
 Whose jocky-ride is all spurs.

PART III. CANTO III.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Knight and Squire's prodigious Flight
To quit th' enchanted Bow r by Night.
He plds to turn his amorous Suit
T' a Plea in Law, and prosecute:
Repairs to Counsel, to advise
'Bout managing the Enterprize,
But first resolves to try by Letter,
And one in re fair Address, to get her.

WHO wou'd believe what strange bugbears
Mankind creates itself, of fears,
That spring like fern, that insect weed,
Equivocally, without seed,
And have no possible foundation, 5
But meerly in th' imagination;
And yet can do more dreadful feats
Than hags, with all their charms and teats;
Make more bewitch and haunt themselves,
Than all their nurseries of elves, 10
For fear does things so like a witch,
'Tis hard t' unriddle which is which:
Sets up communities of senses,
To chop and change intelligences;
As Rosicrucian virtuosos
Can see with ears, and hear with noses;
And when they neither see nor hear,
Have more than both supply'd by fear;
That makes 'em in the dark see visions,
And hag themselves with apparitions; 20
And when their eyes discover least,
Discern the subtlest objects best:

Do things not contrary, alone,
 To th' course of nature, but its own ;
 The courage of the bravest daunt, 25
 And turn pultrons as valiant :
 For men as resolute appear
 With too much as too little fear ;
 And when they're out of hopes of flying,
 Will run away from death by dying, 30
 Or turn again to stand it out,
 And those they fled, like lions, rout.

This HUDIBRAS had prov'd too true,
 Who, by the furies left perdue,
 And haunted with detachments, sent 35
 From a Marshal Legion's regiment,
 Was by a fiend, as counterfeited,
 Reliev'd and rescu'd with a cheat ;
 When nothing but himself, and fear,
 Was both the imp and conjurer ; 40
 As, by the rules o' th' virtuosi,
 It follows in due form of poesie.

Disguis'd in all the masks of night,
 We left our champion on his flight,
 At blindman's buff, to grope his way, 45
 In equal fear of night and day,
 Who took his dark and desp'rate course,
 He knew no better than his horse ;
 And, by an unknown Devil led,
 (He knew as little whither,) fled. 50
 He never was in greater need,
 Nor less capacity, of speed ;
 Disabled, both in man and beast,
 To fly and run away, his best ;
 To keep the enemy, and fear, 55
 From equal falling on his rear.

- And though with kicks and bangs he ply'd
 • The further and the nearer side,
 (As seamen ride with all their force,
 And tug as if they row'd the horte, 60
 And when the hackney sails most swift,
 Believe they lag, or run a-drift,)
 So, though he posted e'er so fast,
 His fear was greater than his haste :
 For fear, though fleetier than the wind,
 Believes 'tis always left behind. 66
 But when the morn began t' appear,
 And shift t'another scene his fear,
 He found his new officious shade,
 That came so timely to his aid, 70
 And forc'd him from the foe t' escape,
 Had turn'd itself to RALPHO's shape ;
 So like in person, garb, and pitch,
 'Twas hard t' interpret which was which.
 For RALPHO had no sooner told 75
 The Lady all he had t' unfold,
 But she convey'd him out of sight,
 To entertain the approaching Knight ;
 And, while he gave himself diversion,
 T' accommodate his beast and person, 80
 And put his beard into a posture
 At best advantage to accost her,
 She order'd th' anti-masquerade
 (For his reception) aforesaid :
 But when the ceremony was done, 85
 The lights put out, and furies gone,
 And HUDIBRAS, among the rest,
 Convey'd away, as RALPHO guess't,
 The wretched caitiff, all alone,
 (As he believ'd) began to moan, 90

And tell his story to himself, .
 The Knight mistook him for an elf;
 And did so still, till he began
 To scruple at RALPH's Outward Man;
 And thought, because they oft agreed 95
 T' appear in one another's stead,
 And act the Saint's and Devil's part
 With undistinguishable art,
 They might have done so now, perhaps,
 And put on one another's shapes; 100
 And therefore, to resolve the doubt,
 He star'd upon him, and cry'd out,
 What art? My 'Squire, or that bold Sprite
 That took his place and shape to-night?
 Some busy independent pug, 105
 Retainer to his Synagogue?
 Alas! quoth he, I'm none of those,
 Your bosom friends, as you suppose;
 But RALPH himself, your trusty 'Squire,
 Wh' has dragg'd your Dunship out o' th' mire,
 And from th' enchantments of a widow, 111
 Wh' had turn'd you int' a beast, have freed you;
 And, though a prisoner of war,
 Have brought you safe where you now are;
 Which you would gratefully repay 115
 Your constant Presbyterian way. [stranger.
 That's stranger (quoth the Knight) and
 Who gave thee notice of my danger?
 Quoth he, Th' infernal Conjuror
 Pursu'd, and took me prisoner; 120
 And knowing you were hereabout,
 Brought me along to find you out;
 Where I, in hugger-mugger hid,
 Have noted all they said or did:

And though they lay to him the pageant,
 • I did not see him, nor his agent; 126
 Who play'd their sorceries out of sight,
 T' avoid a fiercer second fight.
 But didst thou see no Devils then?
 Not one (quoth he) but carnal men, 130
 A little worse than fiends in hell,
 And that She-Devil Jezebel;
 That laugh'd and tee-he'd with derision,
 To see them take your deposition.

What then (quoth HUDIBRAS) was he? 135
 That play'd the Dev'l to examine me?
 A rallying weaver in the town,
 That did it in a parson's gown;
 Whom all the parish take for gifted;
 But, for my part, I ne'er believ'd it: 140
 In which you told them all your feats,
 Your conscientious frauds and cheats;
 Deny'd your whipping, and confess
 The naked truth of all the rest,
 More plainly than the ' Rev'rend Writer, 145
 That to our Churches veil'd his Miter;
 All which they took in black and white,
 And cudgell'd me to under-write.

What made thee, when they all were gone,
 And none but thou and I alone, 150
 To act the Devil, and forbear
 To rid me of my hellish fear?

Quoth he, I knew your constant rate
 And frame of sp'rit too obstinate
 To be by me prevail'd upon 155
 With any motives of my own;
 And therefore strove to counterfeit
 The Dev'l a-while, to nick your wit;

The Devil, that is your constant crony,
 That only can prevail upon ye ; 160
 Else we might still have been disputing,
 And they with weighty drubs confuting.

The Knight, who now began to find
 Th' had left the enemy behind,
 And saw no farther harm remain, 165
 But feeble weariness and pain ;
 Perceiv'd, by losing of their way,
 Th' had gain'd th' advantage of the day ;
 And, by declining of the road,
 They had, by chance, their rere made good ;
 He ventur'd to dismiss his fear, 171
 That parting's wont to rent and tear,
 And give the desperat'st attack
 To danger still behind its back.

For having paus'd to recollect, 175
 And on his past success reflect,
 T' examine and consider why,
 And whence, and how they came to fly,
 And when no Devil had appear'd,
 What else, it cou'd be said, he fear'd ; 180

It put him in so fierce a rage,
 He once resolv'd to re-engage ;
 Toss'd like a foot-ball back again,
 With shame, and vengeance, and disdain.
 Quoth he, it was thy cowardise 185

That made me from this leaguer rise ;
 And when I'd half reduc'd the place,
 To quit it infamously base ;
 Was better cover'd by the new
 Arriv'd detachment than I knew ; 190
 To slight my new acquies, and run
 Victoriously from battles won ;

And reck'ning all I gain'd or lost,
 To sell them cheaper than they cost;
 To make me put myself to flight, 195
 And conqu'ring run away by night;
 To drag me out, which th' haughty foe
 Durst ne'er have presum'd to do,
 To mount me in the dark, by force,
 Upon the bare ridge of my horse; 200
 Expos'd in querpo to their rage,
 Without my arms and equipage;
 I lest, if they ventur'd to pursue,
 I might th' unequal fight renew;
 And, to preserve thy Outward Man, 205
 Assum'd my place, and led the van.

All this, quoth RALPH, I did, 'tis true,
 Not to preserve myself, but you;
 You, who were damn'd to baser drubs
 Than wretches feel in powd'ring tubs, 210
 To mount two-wheel'd carroches, worse
 Than managing a wooden-horse:
 Dragg'd out through straiter holes by th' ears,
 Eras'd, or coup'd for perjurers;
 Who, though th' attempt had prov'd in vain,
 Had no reason to complain: 216
 But since it prosper'd, 'tis unhandsome
 To blame the hand that paid your ransom,
 And rescu'd your obnoxious bones
 From unavoidable battoons. 220
 The enemy was reinforc'd,
 And we disabled, and unhors'd,
 Disarm'd, unqualify'd for fight,
 And no way left but hasty flight,
 Which, though as desp'rate in th' attempt,
 Has giv'n you freedom to condemn't. 226

But were our bones in fit condition
 To reinforce the expedition,
 'Tis now unseasonable, and vain,
 To think of falling on again. 230
 No martial project to surprize
 Can ever be attempted twice ;
 Nor cast design serve afterwards,
 As gamesters tear their losing-cards.
 Beside, our bangs of man and beast 235
 Are fit for nothing now but rest ;
 And for a-while will not be able
 To rally, and prove serviceable :
 And therefore I, with reason, chose
 This stratagem t' amuse our foes ; 240
 To make an honourable retreat,
 And wave a total sure defeat :
 For those that fly may fight again,
 Which he can never do that's slain.
 Hence timely running's no mean part . 245
 Of conduct in the martial art ;
 By which some glorious feats atchieve,
 As citizens by breaking thrive ;
 And cannons conquer armies, while
 They seem to draw off and recoil ; 250
 Is held the gallantest course, and bravest
 To great exploits, as well as safest ;
 That spares th' expence of time and pains,
 And dangerous beating out of brains ;
 And in the end prevails as certain 255
 As those that never trust to fortune ;
 But make their fear do execution
 Beyond the stoutest resolution ;
 As earthquakes kill without a blow,
 And, only trembling, overthrow. 260

If th' ancients crown'd their bravest men
 That only sav'd a citizen;
 What victory could e'er be won,
 If ev'ry one would save but one?
 Or fight indanger'd to be lost, 265
 Where all resolve to save the most?
 By this means, when a battle's won,
 The war's as far from being done;
 For those that save themselves, and fly,
 Go halves, at least, i' th' victory; 270
 And sometimes, when the loss is small,
 And danger great, they challenge all;
 Print new additions to their feats,
 And emendations in Gazettes;
 And when, for furious haste to run, 275
 They durst not stay to fire a gun,
 Have don't with bonfires, and at home
 Made squibs and crackers overcome;
 To set the rabble on a flame,
 And keep their governors from blame; 280
 Disperse the news the pulpit tells,
 Confirm'd with fire-works and with bells;
 And though reduc'd to that extrem,
 They have been forc'd to sing Te Deum;
 Yet, with religious blasphemy, 285
 By flattering Heaven with a lie;
 And for their beating giving thanks,
 Th' have rais'd recruits, and fill'd their banks;
 For those who run from th' enemy,
 Engage them equally to fly; 290
 And when the fight becomes a chace,
 Those win the day that win the race;
 And that which would not pass in fights,
 It is done the first with easy flights;

Recover'd many a desp'rate campaign 295
 With Bourdeaux, Rurgundy, and Champaign,
 Restor'd the fainting high and mighty
 With brandy-wine and aqua-vitæ;
 And made 'em stoutly overcome
 With bacrack, hoccamore, and mum; 300
 Whom the uncontroul'd decrees of fate
 To victory necessitate;
 With which, although they run or burn,
 They unavoidably return:
 Or else their w' sultan populaces 305
 Still strangle all their routed bassas.

Quoth HUDIBRAS, I understand
 What fights thou mean'st at sea and land,
 And who those were that run away,
 And yet gave out th' had won the day; 310
 Although the rabble sous'd them for 't,
 O'er head and cars in mud and dirt.
 'Tis true, our modern way of war
 Is grown more politick by far,
 But not so resolute, and bold, 315
 Nor ty'd to honour, as the old.
 For now they laugh at giving battle,
 Unless it be to herds of cattle;
 Or fighting convoys of provision,
 The whole design o' the expedition; 320
 And not with downright blows to rout
 The enemy, but eat them out:
 As fighting, in all beasts of prey,
 And eating are perform'd one way;
 To give defiance to their teeth, 325
 And fight their stubborn guts to death;
 And those atchieve the high'st renown,
 That bring the other stomachs down.

'There's now no fear of wounds, nor maiming;
 All dangers are reduc'd to famine; 330
 And seats of arms, to plot, design,
 Surprise, and stratagem, and mine;
 But have no need nor use of courage,
 Unless it be for glory or forage:
 For if they fight, 'tis but by chance, 335
 When one side vent'ring to advance,
 And come uncivilly too near,
 Are charg'd unmercifully i' th' rear;
 And forc'd, with terrible resistance,
 To keep hereafter at a distance; 340
 To pick out ground to incamp upon,
 Where store of largest rivers run,
 That serve, instead of peaceful barriers,
 To part th' engagements of their warriors;
 Where both from side to side may skip, 345
 And only encounter at bo-peep:
 For men are found the stouter-hearted,
 The certainer th' are to be parted,
 And therefore post themselves in bogs,
 As th' ancient mice attack'd the frogs, 350
 And made their mortal enemy,
 The water-rat, their strict ally.
 For 'tis not now, who's stout and bold,
 But who bears hunger best, and cold;
 And he's approv'd the most deserving, 355
 Who longest can hold out at starving;
 And he that routs most pigs and cows,
 The formidablest man of prowess.
 So th' emperor CALIGULA,
 That triumph'd o'er the British Sea, 360
 Took crabs and oysters prisoners,
 Lobsters, 'stead of cuirassiers;

Engag'd his legions in fierce bustles
 With periwinkles, prawns, and muscles;
 And led his troops with furious gallops, 365
 To charge whole regiments of scallops:
 Not like their ancient way of war,
 To wait on his triumphal carr;
 But when he went to dine or sup,
 More bravely eat his captives up; 370
 And left all war, by his example,
 Reduc'd to vict'ling of a camp well.

Quoth RALPH, By all that you have said,
 And twice as much that I cou'd add,
 'Tis plain you cannot now do worse, 375
 Than take this out-of-fashion'd course
 To hope, by stratagem, to woo her,
 Or waging battle to subdue her:
 Though some have done it in romances,
 And bang'd them into amorous fancies; 380
 As those who won the AMAZONS,
 By wanton drubbing of their bones;
 And stout y Rinaldo gain'd his bride,
 By courting of her back and side.
 But since those times and feats are over, 385
 They are not for a modern lover,
 When mistresses are too cross-grain'd
 By such addresses to be gain'd:
 And if they were, wou'd have it out
 With many another kind of bout, 390
 Therefore I hold no course s' infoluble,
 As this of force to win the JEANNEE;
 To storm her heart, by th' antick charms
 Of ladies errant, force of arms;
 But rather strive by law to win her, 395
 And try the title you have in her.

Your case is clear; you have her word,
 And me to witness the accord;
 Besides two more of her retinue
 To testify what pass'd between you, 400
 More probable, and like to hold,
 Than hand, or seal, or breaking gold;
 For which so many, that renounc'd
 Their plighted contracts, have been trounc'd,
 And bills upon record been found, 405
 That forc'd the ladies to compound;
 And that, unless I miss the matter,
 Is all the bus'ness you look after.
 Besides, encounters at the bar
 Are braver now than those in war, 410
 In which the law does execution
 With less disorder and confusion:
 Has more of honour in 't, some hold,
 Not like the new way, but the old;
 When those the pen had drawn together, 415
 Decided quarrels with the feather,
 And winged arrows kill'd as dead,
 And more than bullets now of lead.
 So all their combats now, as then,
 Are manag'd chiefly by the pen; 420
 That does the feat with braver vigours,
 In words at length, as well as figures;
 Is judge of all the world perform'd
 In voluntary feats of arms;
 And whatsoe'er's atchiev'd in fight, 425
 Determines which is wrong or right;
 For whether you prevail, or lose,
 All must be try'd there in the close;
 And therefore 'tis not wise to shun
 What you must trust to ere y' have done.

The law, that settles all you do, '431
 And marries where you did but woo;
 That makes the most perfidious lover
 A lady, that's as false, recover;
 And if it judge upon your side, 435
 Will soon extend her for your bride;
 And put her person, goods, or lands,
 Or which you like best, int' your hands.

For law's the wisdom of all ages,
 And manag'd by the ablest sages; 440
 Who, though their bus'ness at the bar
 Be but a kind of civil war,
 In which th' engage with fiercer dudgeons
 Than e'er the GRECIANS did and TROJANS,
 They never manage the contest 445
 T' impair their public interest;
 Or by their controversies lessen
 The dignity of their profession:
 Not like us Brethren, who divide 449
 Our Common-wealth, the Cause, and Side;
 And though w' are all as near of kindred
 As th' outward man is to the inward,
 We agree in nothing, but to wrangle
 About the slightest fingle-fangle;
 While lawyers have more sober sense 455
 Than to argue at their own expence,
 But make their best advantages
 Of others' quarrels, like the SWISS;
 And out of foreign controversies,
 By aiding both sides, fill their purses; 460
 But have no int'rest in the cause
 For which th' engage, and wage the laws;
 Nor further prospect than their pay,
 Whether they lose or win the day.

And though th' abounded in all ages, 465
 With sundry learned clerks and sages;
 Though all their business be dispute,
 Which way they canvass ev'ry suit,
 I h' have no disputes about their art,
 Nor in Polemicks controvert: 472
 While all professions else are found
 With nothing but disputes t' abound.
 Divines of all sorts, and physicians,
 Philosphers, mathematicians;
 The Galenist and Paracelsian 477
 Condemn the way each other deals in;
 Anatomists dissect and mangle,
 To cut themselves out work to wrangle:
 Astrologers dispute their dreams,
 That in their sleeps they talk of schemes; 480
 And heralds stickle, who got who
 So many hundred years ago.

But lawyers are too wise a nation
 T' expose their trade to disputation;
 Or make the busy rabble judges 485
 Of all their secret piques and grudges;
 In which whoever wins the day,
 The whole profession's sure to pay.
 Beside, no mountebanks, nor cheats,
 Dare undertake to do their feats; 490
 When in all other sciences
 They swarm, like insects, and increase.

For what bigot durst ever draw,
 By inward light, a deed in law?
 Or could hold forth, by revelation, 495
 An answer to a declaration?
 For those that meddle with their tools
 Will cut their fingers, if they're fools:

And if you follow their advice,
 In bills, and answers, and replies, 500
 They'll write a love-letter in chancery,
 Shall bring her upon oath to answer ye,
 And soon reduce her to b' your wife,
 Or make her weary of her life. 504

The Knight, who us'd with tricks and
 To edify by RALPHO'S Gifts, [shifts
 But in appeasance cry'd him down,
 To make them better seem his own,
 (All plagiaries' constant course
 Of sisking when they take a purse) 510
 Resolv'd to follow his advice,
 But kept it from him by disguise;
 And, after stubborn contradiction,
 To counterfeit his own conviction,
 And by transition fall upon 515
 The resolution as his own.

Quoth he, This gambol thou advisest,
 Is of all others the unwiseſt;
 For if I think by law to gain her,
 There's nothing sillier or vainer. 520
 'Tis but to hazard my pretence,
 Where nothing's certain, but th' expence;
 To act against myself, and traverse
 My suit and title to her favours:
 And if she shou'd (which Heav'n forbid) 525
 O'erthrow me, as the sidler did,
 What after-course have I to take,
 'Gainst losing all I have at stake?
 He that with injury is griev'd,
 And goes to law to be relief'd, 530
 'Tis sillier than a sottish chawse,
 'Ho, when a thief has robb'd his house,

Applies himself to cunning-men,
 To help him to his goods agen;
 When all he can expect to gain,
 Is but to squander more in vain: 535
 And yet I have no other way
 But is as difficult to play.
 For to reduce her by main force,
 Is now in vain; by fair means, worse; 540
 But worst of all, to give her over,
 'Till she's as desp'rate to recover.
 For bad games are thrown up too soon,
 Until th' are never to be won.
 But since I have no other course, 545
 But is as bad t' attempt, or worse,
 He that complies against his will,
 Is of his own opinion still;
 Which he may adhere to, yet disown,
 For reasons to himself best known: 550
 But 'tis not to b' avoided now,
 For SIDROPHIL resolves to sue;
 Whom I must answer, or begin
 Inevitably first with him.
 For I've receiv'd advertisement, 555
 By times enough, of his intent;
 And knowing he that first complains
 Th' advantage of the business gains;
 For Courts of Justice understand
 The plaintiff to be eldest hand; 560
 Who what he pleases may aver;
 The other, nothing, till he swear;
 Is freely admitted to all grace,
 And lawful favour, by his place;
 And for his bringing custom in, 565
 Has all advantages to win.

I, who resolve to oversee
 No lucky opportunity,
 Will go to council, to advise
 Which way t' encounter, or surprize, 570
 And, after long consideration,
 Have found out one to fit th' occasion,
 Most apt 'or what I have to do,
 As counsellor and justice too.
 And truly so, no doubt, he was, 575
 A lawyer fit for such a case.

An 'old dull sot, who told the clock
 I or many yeas at Bridewell-dock,
 At Westminster, and Hicks's-Hall,
 And Hiccius Doctus play'd in all; 580
 Where, in all governments and times,
 H' had been both friend and foe to crimes,
 And us'd two equal ways of gaining,
 By hind'ring justice or maintaining;
 To many a whore give privilege, 585
 And whipp'd for want of quarteridge:
 Cart-loads of bawds to prison sent
 For b'ng behind a fortnight's rent;
 And many a trusty pimp and croney
 To a Puddle-dock for want of money; 590
 Engag'd the constable to seize
 All those that would not break the peace,
 Nor give him back his own foul words,
 Though sometimes Commoners or Lords,
 And kept 'em prisoners of course, 595
 For being sober at ill hours,
 That in the morning he might free
 Or bind 'em over for his fee;
 Made monsters fine, and puppet-plays,
 For leave to practise in their ways, 600

Farm'd out all cheats, and went a share
 With th' headborough and scavenger;
 And made the dirt i' th' streets compound
 For taking up the publick ground;
 The kennel, and the King's highway, 605
 For being unmolested, pay;
 Let out the stocks, and whipping-post,
 And cage, to those that gave him most;
 Impos'd a tax on bakers' ears,
 And for false weights on chandelers; 610
 Made victuallers and vintners fine
 For arbitrary ale and wine;
 But was a kind and constant friend
 To all that regularly offend;
 As residentiary bawds, 615
 And brokers that receive stol'n goods;
 That cheat in lawful mysteries,
 And pay church duties and his fees;
 But was implacable, and aukward
 To all that interlop'd and hawker'd. 620
 To this brave man the Knight repairs
 For council in his law-affairs;
 And found him mounted in his pew,
 With books and money plac'd for shew,
 Like nest-eggs to make clients lay, 625
 And for his false opinion pay;
 To whom the Knight, with comely grace,
 Put off his hat to put his case;
 Which he as proudly entertain'd
 As th' other courteously strain'd; 630
 And, to assure him, 'twas not that
 He look'd for, bid him put on's hat.
 Quoth he, There is one SIDROPHEL,
 Whom I have cudgell'd—Very well.

And now he brags t' have beaten me.— ' 635

Better and betten still, quoth he.—

And vows to stick me to a wall

Where-e'er he meets me—Best of all.

'Tis true, the knave has taken's oath 639

That I robb'd him—Well done, in troth.

When h' has confes'd he stole my cloak,

And pick'd my fob, and what he took ;

Which was the cause that made me bang him,

And take my goods again—Marry hang him.

Now whether I should before-hand 645

Swear he robb'd me ?—I understand.

Or bring my action of conversion

And trover for my goods ?—Ah, Whoreson !

Or if 'tis better to indite,

And bring him to his trial ?—Right. 650

Prevent what he designs to do,

And swear for th' State against him ?—True.

Or whether he that is defendant

In this case has the better end on't ;

Who, putting in a new cross-bill, 655

May traverse th' action ?—Better still.

Then there's a Lady too.—Aye, marry !

That's easily prov'd accessary ;

A widow, who, by solemn vows

Contracted to me for my spouse, 660

Combin'd with him to break her word,

And has abetted all.—Good Lord !

Suborn'd th' aforesaid SIDROPHEL

To tamper with the Dev'l of Hell ;

Who put m' into a horrid fear, 665

Fear of my life.—Make that appear.

Made an assault with fiends and men

U₁ on my body.—Good agen.

And kept me in a deadly fright,
 And false imprisonment, all night : 670
 Mean while they robb'd me, and my horse,
 And stole my saddle.—Worse and worse.
 And made me mount upon the bare ridge,
 T' avoid a wretcheder misfortune 674

 Sai, quoth the Lawyer, not to flatter ye,
 You have as good and fair a battery
 As heart can wish, and need not shame
 'The proudest man alive to claim.
 For it th' have us'd you as you say;
 Marry, quoth I, God give you joy. 680
 I wou'd it were my case, I'd give
 More than I'll say, or you'll believe.
 I would so trounce her, and her purse;
 I'd make her kneel for better or worse;
 For matrimony and hanging here 685
 Both go by destiny so clear,
 That you as sure may pick and choose,
 As Crofs, I win; and, Pile, you lose;
 And, if I durst, I would advance
 As much in ready maintenance, 690
 As upon any case I've known,
 But we that practise dare not own.
 The law severely contrabands
 Our taking bus'ness off mens' hands;
 'Tis common barratry, that bears 695
 Point-blank an action 'gainst our ears,
 And crops them till there is not leather
 To stick a pin in left of either;
 For which some do the Sommer-fault,
 And o'er the bar, like tumblers, vault. 700
 But you may swear, at any rate,
 Things not in nature, for the State:

For in all courts of justice here
 A witness is not said to swear, 704
 But make an oath; that is, in plain terms,
 To forgo whatever he affirms.

(I thank you, quoth the Knight, for that,
 Because 'tis to my purpose pat---)
 For Justice, though she's painted blind,
 Is to the weaker side inclin'd, 710
 Like Charity; else right and wrong
 Could never hold it out so long,

And, like blind Fortune, with a slight
 Convey mens' interest and right
 From 'c Stiles's pocket in Nokes's, 715
 As easily as Hocus Pocus ;

Plays fast and loose; makes men obnoxious,
 And clear again, like Hiccius Doctius.
 Then whether you wou'd take her life,
 Or but recover her for your wife, 720
 Or be content with what she has,

And let all other matters pass,
 The bus'ness to the law's alone,
 The proof is all it looks upon :
 And you can want no witnesses 725

To swear to any thing you please,
 That hardly get their meer expences
 By th' labour of their consciences;
 Or letting out to hire their ears
 To affidavit-customers, 730

At inconsiderable values,
 To serve for jury-men or tales,
 Although retain'd in th' hardest matters,
 Of trustees and administrators.

For that, quoth he, let me alone; 735
 W' have store of such, and all our own;

Bred up and tutor'd by our teachers,
 'The ablest of conscience-stretchers.
 'That's well, quoth he; but I should guess,
 By weighing all advantages, 740
 Your surest way is first to pitch
 On d BONGRY for a water-witch;
 And when y' have hang'd the conjurer,
 A' have time enough to deal with her.
 In th' intr'm, spare for no trepans 745
 To draw her neck into the bans:
 Ply her with love-letters and billets,
 And bait 'em well, for quirks and quillets,
 With trains t' inveigle, and surprize
 Her heedless answers and replies; 750
 And if she miss the mouse-trap lines,
 'They'll serve for other by-designs;
 And make an artill understand
 To copy out her seal or hand;
 Or find void places in the paper 755
 To steal in something to intrap her;
 'Till, with her worldly goods and body,
 Spight of her heart, she has endow'd ye.
 Retain all sorts of witnesses,
 That ply i' th' Temple under trees; 760
 Or walk the round, with knights o' th' post,
 About the cross-legg'd knights, their hosts;
 Or wait for customers between
 The pillars-rows in Lincoln's-Inn;
 Where vouchers, forgers, common-bail, 765
 And affidavit-men ne'er fail
 'T' expose to sale all sorts of oaths,
 According to their ears and cloaths,
 'Their only necessary tools,
 Besides the Gospel and their souls: 770

And when y' are furnish'd with all purvéys,
I shall be ready at your service.

I would not give, quoth HUDIBRAS,
A straw to understand a case,
Without the admirable skill 775

To wind and manage it at will ;
To veer, and tack, and steer a cause
Against the weather-gage of laws ;
And ring the 'changes upon cases
As plain as notes upon faces, 780

As you have well instructed me,
For which you've earn'd (here 'tis) your fee.
I long to practise your advice,
And try the subtle artifice ;
To bait a letter, as you bid. 785

As not long after, thus he did :
For having pump'd up all his wit,
And hum'd upon it, thus he writ.

350 AN HEROICAL EPISTLE QF

The one for great and weighty cause,
 To salve in Honour ugly flaws ;
 For none are like to do it sooner
 Than those who are nicest of their honour :
 The other, for base gain and pay, 35
 Forswear, and perjure by the day ;
 And make th' exposing and retailing
 Their souls and consciences a calling.

It is no scandal, nor aspersion,
 Upon a great and noble person, 40
 To say he nat'rally abhorr'd
 Th' old-fashion'd trick, To keep his word ;
 Though 'tis perfidiousness and shame
 In meaner men to do the same :

For to be able to forget, 45
 Is found more useful to the great,
 Than gout, or deafness, or bad eyes,
 To make 'em pass for wond'rous wise.

But though the law on perjurers
 Inflicts the forfeiture of ears, 50
 It is not just that does exempt
 The guilty, and punish the innocent ;
 To make the ears repair the wrong
 Committed by th' ungovern'd tongue ;
 And when one member is forsworn, 55
 Another to be cropt or torn.

And if you shou'd, as you design,
 By course of law, recover mine,
 You're like, if you consider right,
 To gain but little honour by't. 60
 For he that for his lady's sake
 Lays down his life or limbs at stake,
 Does not so much deserve her favour,
 As he that pawns his soul to have her.

This y' have acknowledg'd I have done, 65
 Although you now disdain to own;
 But sentence what you rather ought
 To esteem good service than a fault.
 Besides, oaths are not bound to bear
 That literal sense the words infer, 70
 But, by the practice of the age,
 Are to be judg'd how far th' engage;
 And, where the sense by custom's checkt,
 Are found void, and of none effect.
 For no man takes or keeps a vow, 75
 But just as he sees others do;
 Nor are th' oblig'd to be so brittle,
 As not to yield and bow a little;
 For as best-temper'd blades are found,
 Before they break, to bend quite round, 80
 So truest oaths are still most tough,
 And though they bow, are breaking proof.
 Then wherefore should they not be allow'd
 In love a greater latitude?
 For as the law of arms approves 85
 All ways to conquest, so should love's;
 And not be ty'd to true or false,
 But make that justest that prevails;
 For how can that which is above
 All empire, high and mighty love, 90
 Submit its great prerogative
 To any other power alive?
 Shall love, that to no crown gives place,
 Become the subject of a case?
 The fundamental law of nature, 95
 Be over-rul'd by those made after?
 Commit the censure of its cause
 To any but its own great laws?

352 AN HEROICAL EPISTLE OF

Love, that's the world's preservative,
 That keeps all sorts of things alive; 100
 Controls the mighty pow'r of fate,
 And gives mankind a longer date,
 The life of nature, that reflores
 As fast as time and death devours;
 To whose free-gift the world does owe, 105
 Not only earth, but heaven too,
 For love's the only trade that's driven,
 The interest of state in heav'n,
 Which nothing but the soul of man
 Is capable to entertain. 110
 For what can earth produce, but love,
 To represent the joys above?
 Or who but lovers can converse,
 Like angels, by the eye-discourse?
 Address and compliment by vision; 115
 Make love and court by intuition?
 And burn in amorous flames as fierce
 As those celestial ministers?
 Then how can any thing offend,
 In order to so great an end? 120
 Or heav'n itself a sin be sent,
 That for its own supply was meant?
 That merits, in a kind mistake,
 A pardon for th' offence's sake.
 Or if it did not, but the cause 125
 Were left to th' injury of laws,
 What tyranny can disapprove
 There should be equity in love?
 For laws that are inanimate,
 And feel no sense of love or hate, 130
 That have no passion of their own,
 Nor pity to be wrought upon,

And only proper to inflict
 • Revenge on criminals as strict:
 But to have power to forgive, 135
 Is empire and prerogative;
 And 'tis in crowns a nobler gem
 To grant a pardon than condemn.
 Then since so few do what they ought,
 'Tis great t' indulge a well-meant fault. 140
 For why should he who made address,
 All humble ways, without success,
 And met with nothing, in return,
 But insolence, affronts, and scorn,
 Not strive by wit to counter-mine, 145
 And bravely carry his design?
 He who was us'd so unlike a soldier,
 Blown up with philters of love-powder?
 And after letting blood, and purging,
 Condemn'd to voluntary scourging; 150
 Alarm'd with many a horrid fright,
 And claw'd by goblins in the night;
 Insulted on, revil'd, and jeer'd,
 With rude invasion of his beard;
 And when your sex was foully scandal'd, 155
 As foully by the rabble handled;
 Attack'd by despicable foes,
 And drubb'd with mean and vulgar blows;
 And, after all, to be debarr'd
 So much as standing on his guard; 160
 When horses, being spur'd and prick'd,
 Have leave to kick for being kick'd?
 Or why should you, whose mother-wits
 Are furnish'd with all perquisites,
 That with your breeding-teeth begin, 165
 And nursing babies, that lie in,

354 AN HEROICAL EPISTLE OF

B' allow'd to put all tricks upon
 Our cully ſock, and we uſe none?
 We, who have nothing but frail vows
 Againſt your ſtratagems t' oppoſe; 170
 Or oaths more feeble than your own,
 By which we are no leſs put down?
 You wound, like s Parthians, while you fly,
 And kill with a retreating eye:
 Retire the more, the more we preſs, 175
 To draw us into ambuſhes.
 As pirates all falſe colours wear
 T' intrap th' unwary mariner,
 So women, to ſurpriſe us, ſpread
 The borrow'd flags of white and red; 180
 Diſplay 'em thicker on their cheeks
 Than their old grandmothers, the Picts;
 And raiſe more devils with their looks,
 Than conjurer's leſs ſubtle books;
 Lay trains of amorous intrigues, 185
 In tow'rs, and curls, and perriwigs,
 With greater art and cunning rear'd,
 Than ^h PHILIP NYE's thankſgiving beard,
 Prepoſt'rouſly, t' entice, and gain
 Thoſe to adore 'em they diſdain; 190
 And only draw 'em in, to clog
 With idle names a catalogue.

A lover is, the more he's brave,
 T' his miſtreſs but the more a ſlave;
 And whatſoever ſhe commands, 195
 Becomes a favour from her hands;
 Which he's oblig'd t' obey, and muſt,
 Whether it be unjuſt or juſt.
 Then when he is compell'd by her
 T' adventures he would elſe forbear, 200

Who with his honour can withstand,
 Since force is greater than command?
 And when necessity's obey'd,
 Nothing can be unjust or bad;
 And therefore when the mighty pow'rs 205
 Of love, our great ally and yours,
 Join'd forces not to be withstood
 By frail enamour'd flesh and blood,
 All I have done, unjust or ill,
 Was in obedience to your will; 210
 And all the blame that can be due,
 Falls to your cruelty and you.
 Nor are those scandals I confess,
 Against my will and interest,
 More than is daily done of course 215
 By all men, when they're under force;
 When some upon the rack confess
 What th' hangman and their prompters please;
 But are no sooner out of pain,
 Than they deny it all again. 220
 But when the Devil turns confessor,
 Truth is a crime he takes no pleasure
 To hear, or pardon, like the founder
 Of liars, whom they all claim under;
 And therefore, when I told him none, 225
 I think it was the wiser done.
 Nor am I without precedent,
 The first that on th' adventure went:
 All mankind ever did of course,
 And daily does the same, or worse. 230
 For what romance can shew a lover,
 That had a lady to recover,
 And did not flee a nearer course,
 To fall a-board on his amours?

356 AN HEROICAL EPISTLE OF

And what at first was held a crime, /235
Has turn'd to honourable in time.

To what a height did ' infant ROME,
By ravishing of women, come!
When men upon their spouses seiz'd,
And freely marry'd where they pleas'd, 240
They ne'er forswore themselves, nor ly'd,
Nor, in the mind they were in, dy'd;
Nor took the pains t' address and sue,
Nor play'd the masquerade to woo:
Disdain'd to stay for friends' consents; 245
Nor juggled about settlements:
Did need no license, nor no priest,
Nor friends, nor kindred, to assist;
Nor lawyers, to join land and money
In th' holy state of matrimony, 250
Before they settled hands and hearts,
Till ' alimony or death departs:
Nor wou'd endure to stay until
Th' had got the very bride's good will;
But took a wife and shorter course 255
To win the ladies, down-right force;
And justly made 'em prisoners then,
As they have often since, us men,
With acting plays, and dancing jigs,
The luckiest of all love's intrigues; 260
And when they had them at their pleasure,
Then talk'd of love and flames at leisure:
For after matrimony's over,
He that holds out but half a lover,
Deserves for ev'ry minute more 265
Than half a year of love before;
For which the dames in contemplation
Of that best way of application,

HUDIBRAS TO HIS LADY. 357

Pro'd nobler wives than e'er was known,
 By suit or treaty to be won; 270
 And such as all posterity
 Could never equal nor come nigh.
 For women first were made for men,
 Not men for them.—It follows, then,
 That men have right to ev'ry one, 275
 And they no freedom of their own:
 And therefore men have pow'r to chuse,
 But they no charter to refuse.
 Hence 'tis apparent, that what course
 Soe'er we take to your amours, 280
 Though by the indirectest way,
 'Tis no injustice, nor foul play;
 And that you ought to take that course,
 As we take you, for better or worse;
 And gratefully submit to those 285
 Who you, before another, chose.
 For why should ev'ry savage beast
 Exceed his great lord's interest?
 Have freer pow'r than he, in grace
 And nature, o'er the creature has? 290
 Because the laws he since has made
 Have cut off all the pow'r he had;
 Retrench'd the absolute dominion
 That nature gave him over women;
 When all his pow'r will not extend 295
 One law of nature to suspend;
 And but to offer to repeal
 The smallest clause, is to rebel.
 This, if men rightly understood
 Their privilege, they would make good; 300
 And not, like sots, permit their wives
 To encroach on their prerogatives;

358 AN HEROICAL EPISTLE OF

For which sin they deserve to be
 Kept, as they are, in slavery :
 And this some precious Gifted Teachers,
 Unrev'rently reputed leachers, 306
 And disobey'd in making love,
 Have vow'd to all the world to prove,
 And make ye suffer, as you ought,
 For that uncharitable fault. 310
 But I forget myself, and rove
 Beyond th' instructions of my love.
 Forgive me (Fair) and only blame
 The extravagancy of my flame,
 Since 'tis too much at once to show 315
 Excess of love and temper too.
 All I have said that's bad and true
 Was never meant to aim at you,
 Who have so sov'reign a controul
 O'er that poor slave of yours, my soul, 320
 That, rather than to forfeit you,
 Has ventur'd loss of heaven too :
 Both with an equal pow'r possess,
 To render all that serve you blest :
 But none like him, who's destin'd either 325
 To have, or lose you, both together.
 And if you'll but this fault release
 (For so it must be, since you please)
 I'll pay down all that vow, and more,
 Which you commanded, and I swore, 330
 And expiate upon my skin
 Th' arrears in full of all my sin.
 For 'tis but just that I should pay
 Th' accruing penance for delay,
 Which shall be done, until it move 335
 Your equal pity and your love.

HUDIBRAS TO HIS LADY. 359

The Knight, perusing this Epistle,
 Believ'd h' had brought her to his whistle;
 And read it like a jocund lover,
 With great applause t' himself, twice over;
 Subscrib'd his name, but at a fit 341
 And humble distance to his wit;
 And dated it with wond'rous art,
 Giv'n from the Bottom of his Heart;
 Then seal'd it with his Coat of Love, 345
 A smocking Faggot—and above,
 Upon a scroll—I burn, and weep;
 And near it—For her Ladyship;
 Of all her sex most excellent,
 These to her gentle hands present. 350
 Then gave it to his faithful Squire,
 With lessons how t' observe and eye her.
 She first consider'd which was better,
 To send it back, or burn the letter.
 But guessing that it might import, 355
 Though nothing else, at least her sport,
 She open'd it, and read it out,
 With many a smile and leering flout:
 Resolv'd to answer it in kind,
 And thus perform'd what she design'd. 360

THE LADY'S ANSWER

TO THE KNIGHT.

THAT you're a beast, and turn'd to grass,
Is no strange news, nor ever was ;
At least to me, who once, you know,
Did from the pound replevin you,
When both your sword and spurs were won 5
In combat by an Amazon.
That sword, that did (like Fate) determine
Th' inevitable death of vermine,
And never dealt its furious blows,
But cut the throats of pigs and cows, 10
By TRULLA was, in single fight,
Disarm'd and wrested from its Knight;
Your heels degraded of your spurs,
And in the stocks close prisoners ;
Where still they'd lain, in base restraint, 15
If I, in pity of your complaint,
Had not, on honourable conditions,
Released 'em from the worst of prisons ;
And what return that favour met
You cannot (though you wou'd) forget ; 20
When, being free, you strove t' evade
The oaths you had in prison made ;
Forsook yourself ; and first deny'd it,
But after own'd and justify'd it ;
And when y' had fallily broke one vow, 25
Absolv'd yourself by breaking two.
For while you sneakingly submit,
And beg for pardon at our feet,

Discourag'd by your guilty fears,
 No hope for quarter for your fear, 30
 And doubting 'twas in vain to sue,
 You claim us boldly as your due;
 Declare that treachery and force,
 To deal with us, is th' only course;
 We have no title nor pretence 35
 To body, soul, or conscience;
 But ought to fall to that man's share
 That claims us for his proper ware.
 These are the motives which, t' induce
 Or fight us into love, you use. 40
 A pretty new way of gallanting,
 Between soliciting and ranting;
 Like sturdy beggars, that intreat
 For charity at once, and threat.
 But since you undertake to prove 45
 Your own propriety in love,
 As if we were but lawful prize
 In war between two enemies,
 Or forfeitures, which ev'ry lover,
 That wou'd but sue for, might recover, 50
 It is not hard to understand
 The myst'ry of this bold demand,
 That cannot at our persons aim,
 But something capable of claim.
 'Tis not those paultry counterfeit 55
 French stones, which in our eyes you set,
 But our right diamonds, that inspire
 And set your am'rous hearts on fire.
 Nor can those false St. Martin's beads,
 Which on our lips you lay for reds, 60
 And make us wear, like Indian dames,
 Add fuel to your scorching flames;

But those true rubies of the rock,
 Which in our cabinets we lock.
 'Tis not those orient pearls our teeth, 65
 That you are so transported with ;
 But those we wear about our necks,
 Produce those amorous effects.
 Nor is't those threads of gold, our hair,
 The perriwigs you make us wear ; 70
 But those bright guineas in our chests,
 That light the wild-fire in your breasts.
 These love-tricks I've been vers'd in so,
 That all their sly intrigues I know,
 And can unriddle, by their tones, 75
 Their mystick cabals and jargones ;
 Can tell what passions, by their sounds,
 Pine for the beauties of my grounds ;
 What raptures fond and amorous
 O' th' charms and graces of my house ; 80
 What extasy, and scorching flame,
 Burns for my money in my name ;
 What from th' unnatural desire
 To beasts and cattle takes its fire ;
 What tender sigh, and trickling tear, 85
 Longs for a thousand pounds a year ;
 And languishing transports are fond
 Of statute, mortgage, bill, and bond.
 These are th' attracts which most men fall
 Inamour'd, at first sight, withal : 90
 To these th' address with serenades,
 And court with balls and masquerades ;
 And yet, for all the yearning pain
 Y'have suffer'd for their loves in vain,
 I fear they'll prove so nice and coy 95
 To have, and t'hold, and to enjoy,

TO THE KNIGHT

That all your oaths and labours for,
 They'll ne'er turn ladies of the poor.
 This is not meant to disapprove
 Your judgment in your choice of love, 100
 Which is so wise, the greatest part
 Of mankind study't as an art;
 For love shou'd, like a deadend,
 Still fall to th' owner of the land, 105
 And where there's substance for it, count,
 Cannot but be more firm and sound
 Than that which has the lighter base
 Of airy virtue, wit, and graces;
 Which is of such thin subtilty,
 It steals and creeps in at the eye, 110
 And, as it can't endure to stay,
 Steals out again as nice a way.
 But love, that its extraction owns
 From solid gold and precious stones,
 Must, like its shining parents, prove 115
 As solid and as glorious love.
 Hence 'tis you have no way t' express
 Our charms and graces but by these:
 For what are lip, and eye, and teeth, 119
 Which beauty invades and conquers with,
 But rubies, pearls, and diamonds,
 With which a philter-love commands?
 'Tis this the way all parents prove,
 In managing their childrens' love;
 That force 'em t'intermarry and wed, 125
 As if th' were burying of the dead;
 Cast earth to earth, as in the grave,
 To join in wedlock all they have;
 And when the settlement's in force,
 Take all the rest for better or worse: 132

For money has power above
 The stars and fate to manage love ;
 Whose arrows, learned poets hold,
 That never miss, are 'tipp'd with gold. 134
 And though some say, the parents claims
 To make love in their childrens' names,
 Who many times at once provide
 The nurse, the husband, and the bride ;
 Feel darts and charms, attracts and flames,
 And woo and contract in their names ; 140
 And as they christen, use to marry 'em,
 And, like their gossips, answer for 'em ;
 Is not to give in matrimony,
 But sell and prostitute for money ;
 'Tis better than their own betrothing, 145
 * Who often do't for worse than nothing :
 And when th' are at their own dispose,
 With greater disadvantage choose.
 All this is right ; but for the course
 You take to do't, by fraud or force, 150
 'Tis so ridiculous, as soon
 As told, 'tis never to be done ;
 No more than fetters can betray,
 That tell what tricks they are to play.
 Marriage, at best, is but a vow, 155
 Which all men either break or bow :
 Then what will those forbear to do,
 Who perjure when they do but woo ?
 Such as before-hand swear and lie
 For earnest to their treachery ; 160
 And, rather than a crime confess,
 With greater strive to make it less :
 Like thieves, who, after sentence past,
 * Maintain their innocence to the last ;

And when their crimes were made appear 165
 As plain as witnesses can swear,
 Yet, when the wretches come to die,
 Will take upon their death a lie.
 Nor are the virtues you confess
 T' your ghostly father, as you guest, 170
 So slight as to be justify'd
 By being as shamefully deny'd.
 As if you thought your word would pass
 Point-blank on both sides of a case;
 Or credit were not to be lost 175
 B' a brave Knight-Errant of the Post,
 That eats perfidiously his word, [board:
 And swears his ears, through a two inch
 Can own the same thing, and disown,
 And perjure booty, Pro and Con: 180
 Can make the Gospel serve his turn,
 And help him out, to be forsworn;
 When 'tis laid hands upon, and kist,
 To be betray'd and sold like Christ.
 These are the virtues in whose name 185
 A right to all the world you claim,
 And boldly challenge a dominion,
 In grace and nature, o'er all women;
 Of whom no less will satisfy
 Than all the sex your tyranny. 190
 Although you'll find it a hard province,
 With all your crafty frauds and covins,
 To govern such a num'rous crew,
 Who, one by one, now govern you:
 For if you all were SOLOMONS, 195
 And wise and great as he was once,
 You'll find they're able to subdue
 (As they did him) and baffle you..

And if you are impos'd upon,
 'Tis by your own temptation done, 200
 That with your ignorance invite,
 And teach us how to use the slight.
 For when we find y^e are still more taken
 With false attracts of our own making;
 Swear that's a role, and that a stole, 205
 Like fots, to us that laid it on,
 And what we did but slightly prime,
 Most ignorantly daub in rhyme;
 You force us, in our own defences,
 To copy beams and influences; 210
 To lay perfections on the graces,
 And draw attracts upon our faces;
 And, in compliance to your wit,
 Your own false jewels counterfeit.
 For, by the practice of those arts, 215
 We gain a greater share of hearts;
 And those deserve in reason most
 That greatest pains and study cost:
 For great perfections are, like heaven,
 Too rich a present to be given. 220
 Nor are these master-strokes of beauty
 To be perform'd without hard duty,
 Which, when they're nobly done and well,
 The simple natural excell.
 How fair and sweet the planted rose 225
 Beyond the wild in hedges grows!
 For without art the noblest seeds
 Of flow'rs degen'rate into weeds.
 How dull and rugged, e'er 'tis ground
 And polish'd, looks a diamond! 230
 Though Paradise were e'er so fair,
 It was not kept so without care.

The whole world, without art and dress,
 Would be but one great wilkerness;
 And mankind but a savage herd, 235
 For all that nature has conferr'd.
 This does but rough-hew, and design,
 Leaves art to polish and refine.
 Though women first were made for men,
 Yet men were made for them agen; 240
 For when (outwitted by his wife)
 Man first turn'd tenant but for life,
 If women had not interven'd,
 How soon had mankind had an end!
 And that it is in being yet, 245
 To us alone you are in debt.
 And where's your liberty of choice,
 And our unnatural No Voice?
 Since all the privilege you boast,
 And falsely usurp'd, or vainly lost, 250
 Is now our right; to whose creation
 You owe your happy restoration:
 And if we had not weighty cause
 To not appear, in making laws,
 We could, in spite of all your tricks, 255
 And shallow, formal politicks,
 Force you our managements t' obey,
 As we to yours (in shew) give way.
 Hence 'tis that, while you vainly strive
 T' advance your high prerogative, 260
 You basely, after all your braves,
 Submit, and own yourselves our slaves;
 And 'cause we do not make it known,
 Nor publickly our int'rests own,
 Like fots, suppose we have no shares 265
 In ord'ring you and your affairs;

When all your empire and comma
 You have from us at second hand :
 As if a pilot, that appears
 To sit still only while he steers, 270
 And does not make a noise and stir,
 Like ev'ry common mariner,
 Knew nothing of the card, nor star,
 And did not guide the man of war ;
 Nor we, because we don't appear 275
 In councils, do not govern there ;
 While, like the mighty ^m PRESTER JOHN,
 Whose person none dares look upon,
 But is preserv'd in close disguise,
 From being made cheap to vulgar eyes, 280
 W' enjoy as large a pow'r unseen,
 To govern him, as he does men ;
 And in the right of our Pope JOAN,
 Make Emp'rors at our feet fall down ;
 Or ⁿ JOAN DE PUCFL's braver name, 285
 Our right to arms and conduct claim ;
 Who, though a spinster, yet was able
 To serve FRANCE for a Grand Constable.
 We make and execute all laws ;
 Can judge the judges and the cause ; 290
 Prescribe all rules of right or wrong
 To th' long robe, and the longer tongue ;
 'Gainst which the world has no defence,
 But our more pow'rful eloquence.
 We manage things of greatest weight 295
 In all the world's affairs of state ;
 Are ministers of war and peace,
 That sway all nations how we please.
 We rule all churches and their flock ;
 Heretical and orthodox ;

And are the heavenly vehicles
 O' th' profits in all conveniences.
 By us is all commerce and trade
 Improv'd, and manag'd, and decay'd;
 For nothing can go off so well, 305
 Nor bears that price, as what we sell.
 We rule in ev'ry publique meeting,
 And make men do what we judge fitting;
 Are magistrates in all great towns,
 Where men do nothing but wear gowns. 310
 We make the man of war strike fail,
 And to our braver conduct veil,
 And, when h' has chac'd his enemies,
 Submit to us upon his knees.
 Is there an officer of state 315
 Untimely rais'd, or magistrate,
 That's haughty and imperious?
 He's but a journeyman to us.
 That as he gives us cause to do't,
 Can keep him in, or turn him out. 320
 We are your guardians, that increase
 Or waste your fortunes how we please,
 And, as you humour us, can deal
 In all your matters, ill or well.
 'Tis we that can dispose alone, 325
 Whether your heirs shall be your own,
 To whose integrity you must,
 In spite of all your caution, trust;
 And, 'less you fly beyond the seas,
 Can fit you with what heirs we please; 330
 And force you t' own 'em, though begotten
 By French Valets or Irish Footmen.
 Nor can the rigorouslest course
 Prevail, unless to make us worse;

Who still, the farther we are us'd, 285
 Are further off from b'ing reduc'd;
 And scorn t' abate, for any ills,
 The least punèlilio's of our wills.
 Force does but what out wits t' apply
 Arts, born with us, for remedy; 340
 Which all your politicks, as yet,
 Have ne'er been able to defeat:
 For when y' have try'd all sorts of ways,
 What fools d' we make of you in plays!
 While all the favours we afford, 345
 Are but to girt you with the sword,
 To fight our battles in our steads,
 And have your brains beat out o' your heads;
 Encounter, in despite of nature,
 And fight at once, with fire and water, 350
 With pirates, rocks, and storms, and seas,
 Our pride and vanity t' appease;
 Kill one another, and cut throats,
 For our good graces, and best thoughts;
 To do your exercise for honour, 355
 And have your brains beat out the sooner;
 Or crack'd, as learnedly, upon
 Things that are never to be known;
 And still appear the more industrious,
 The more your projects are prepost'rous; 360
 To square the circle of the arts,
 And run stark mad to shew your parts;
 Expound the oracle of laws,
 And turn them which way we see cause
 Be our solicitors and agents, 365
 And stand for us in all engagements.
 And these are all the mighty pow'rs
 You vainly boast to cry down ours;

TO THE KNIGHT.

371

And what in real value's wanting,
 Supply with vapouring and fainting : 370
 Because yourselves are terrify'd,
 And stoop to one another's pride,
 Believe we have as little wit
 To be put-hector'd, and submit;
 By your example, lose that right 375
 In treaties which we gam'd in fight ;
 And, terrify'd into an awe, •
 Pass on ourselves a ° Salique law :
 Or, as some nations use, give place, •
 And truckle to your mighty race ; 380
 Let men usurp th' unjust dominion,
 As if they were the better women.

NOTES TO PART III. CANTO I.

15 ^a AND more, &c.] Caligula was one of the Emperors of Rome, son of Germanicus and Agrippina. He would needs pass for a god, and had the heads of the ancient statues of the gods taken off, and his own placed on in their stead, and used to stand between the statues of Cæsar and Pelux to be worshipped; and often bragged of lying with the Moon.

43 ^b And us'd, &c.] Philære were love potions, reported to be much in request in former ages; but our true Knight-Errant Hero made use of no other but what the noble achievements by his sword produced.

52 To th' Ordeal, &c.] Ordeal trials were, when supposed criminals, to discover their innocence, went over several cruel counter-motions. These were generally such whose chastity was suspected, as the vestal virgins, &c.

93 So Spanish Heroes, &c.] The young Spaniards signalized their valour before the Spanish ladies at bull feasts, which often proved very hazardous, and sometimes fatal to them. It is performed by attacking of a wild bull, kept on purpose, and let loose at the combatant; and he that kills most, carries the laurel, and dwells highest in the ladies' favour.

137 ^a To paron, &c.] His exterior ears were gone before, and so out of danger; but by inward ears he here meant his conscience.

252 ^t Loud at, &c.] A speaking trumpet, by which the voice may be heard at a great distance, very useful at sea.

276 ^a As if th' had, &c.] This alludes to some abject lechers, who used to be disciplined with amorous lashes by their mistresses.

323 Bewitch'd Hermetick Men, &c.] Hermes Trismegistus, an Egyptian Philosopher, and said to

Have lived Anno Mundi 2076, in the reign of Ninus, after Moses. He was a wonderful philosopher, and proved that there was but one God, the creator of all things; and was the author of several most excellent and useful inventions. But those Hermetick Men here mentioned, though the pretended sectators of this great man, are nothing else but a wild and-extravagant sort of enthusiasts, who make a hodge-podge of Religion and Philosophy, and produce nothing but what is the object of every considering person's contempt.

326 ^a Potosi] Potosi is a city of Peru, the mountains whercof afford great quantities of the finest silver in all the Indies.

603 ^k More wretched, &c.] Uvilainage was an ancient tenure, by which the tenants were obliged to perform the most abject and slavish services for their lords.

639 Like ^l Indian Widows, &c.] The Indian women, richly attired, are carried in a splendid and pompous machine to the funeral pile, where the bodies of their deceased husbands are to be consumed, and there voluntarily throw themselves into it, and expire; and such as refuse, their virtue is ever after suspected, and they live in the utmost contempt.

647 For as the ^m Pythagorean, &c.] It was the opinion of Pythagoras and his followers, that the soul transmigrated (as they termed it) into all the diverse species of animals; and so was differently disposed and affected, according to their different natures and constitutions.

707 For tho' ⁿ Chinenses, &c.] The Chinese men of quality, when their wives are brought to bed, are nursed and tended with as much care as women here, and are supplied with the best strengthening and nourishing diet, in order to qualify them for future services.

751 ^o Transformed into Rams, &c.] The Sirens, according to the poets, were three sea-monsters, half women and half fish; their names were Parthenope, Ligea, and Leucosia. Their usual residence was about the island of Sicily, where, by the charming melody of their voices, they used to detain those that heard them, and then transform them into some sort of brute animals.

755 By the Husband ^p Mandrake, &c.] Naturalists report, that if a male and female Mandrake lie near each other, there will often be heard a sort of murmuring noise.

797 The ^u World is but two Parts, &c.] The equinoctial divides the globe into North and South.

819 Unless among the ¹ Amazons, &c.] The Amazons were women of Scythia, of heroick and great achievements. They suffered no men to live among them; but once every year used to have conversation with men, of the neighbouring countries, by which if they had a male child, they presently either killed or crippled it; but if a female, they brought it up to the use of arms, and burnt off one breast, leaving the other to suckle girls.

865 The Nymphs of chaste ^s Diana's, &c.] Diana's Nymphs, all of whom vowed perpetual virginity, and were much celebrated for the exact observation of their vow.

866 ^s Levokner's Lane.] Some years ago swarmed with notoriously lascivious and profligate strumpets.

877 The ^u Reason of it is, &c.] Demanding the clergy of her belly, which, for the reasons aforesaid, is pleaded in excuse by those who take the liberty to oblige themselves and friends.

1086 As ^w IRONSIDE or HARDKNUTE, &c.] Two famous and valiant princes of this country; the one a Saxon, the other a Dane.

1131 But those that trade in Gynancy, &c.] The Lapland Magi. The Laplanders are an idolatrous people, far North; and it is very credibly reported, by authors and persons that have travelled in their country, that they do perform things incredible by what is justly called Magic.

1158 To a burning with, &c.] An allusion to quaterizing in apoplexies, &c.

1321 The Queen of Night, &c.] The Moon influences the tides, and predominates over all humid bodies; and persons disordered in mind are called Lunatics.

1344 And growing to thy Horse, &c.] The Centaurs were a people of Thessaly, and supposed to be the first managers of horses; and the neighbouring inhabitants never having seen any such thing before, fabulously reported them Monsters half men and half horses.

1423 Sir (quoth the Voice,) &c.] Sophy is at present the name of the kings of Persia; not super-added, as Pharaoh was to the kings of Egypt, but the name of the family itself, and religion of Hali, whose descendants by Fatimas, Mahomet's daughter, took the name of Sophy.

1454 Wear wooden Peccadillo's, &c.] Peccadillo's were stiff pieces that went about the neck, and round about the shoulders, to pin the band, worn by persons nice in dressing; but his wooden one is a pillory.

1483 Hence 'tis Possessions, &c.] Criminals, in their indictments, are charged with not having the fear of God before their eyes, but being led by the instigation of the Devil.

1521 When to a legal Utlegation, &c.] When they return the excommunication into the Chancery, there is issued out a writ against the person.

1524 Disfranch on Soul, &c.] Excommunication, which deprives Men from being Members of the visible Church, and formally delivers them up to the Devil.

NOTES TO PART III. CANTO II.

1 The Learned write, &c.] An infect breeze. Breezes often bring along with them great quantities of insects, which some are of opinion, are generated from viscous exhalations in the air; but our Author makes them proceed from a cow's dung, and afterwards become a plague to that whence it received its original.

13 For as the Persian, &c.] The Magi were priests and philosophers among the Persians, intrusted with the government both civil and ecclesiastick, much addicted to the observation of the stars. Zoroaster is reported to be their first author. They had this custom amongst them, to preserve and continue their families by incestuous copulation with their own mothers. Some are of opinion, that the three wise men that came out of the East to worship our Saviour were some of these.

51 As Michael's Term, &c.] St. Michael, an archangel, mentioned in St. Jude's Epistle, Verse 9.

78 And laid about, &c.] William Pryne, of Lincoln's-Inn, Esq. born at Swanwick, who stiled himself Utter-Barrister, a very warm person, and voluminous writer; and after the restoration, keeper of the records in the Tower.

146 As Dutch Boors, &c.] It is reported of the Dutch women, that making so great use of stoves, and often putting them under their petticoats, they engender a kind of ugly monster, which is called a Sooterkin.

151 T'out-cant the Babylonian, &c.] At the building of the Tower of Babel, when God made the confusion of languages.

215 Toss'd in a furious Hurricane, &c.] At Oliver's death was a most furious tempest, such as had not been known in the memory of man, or hardly recorded to have been in this nation.

This Starry reported something, ridiculously fabulous, concerning Oliver, not unlike what Proculus did of Romulus.

224 Falſe ^o Heaven, &c.] After the Restoration Oliver's body was dug up, and his head ſet up at the ſeaſter end of Weſtminſter-hall, near which place there is an houſe of entertainment, which is commonly known by the name of Heaven.

227 So Romulus, ^p &c.] A Roman Senator, whoſe name was Procius, and much beloved by Romulus, made oath before the Senate, that this prince appeared to him after his death, and predicted the future grandeur of that city, promiſing to be protector of it; and expreſſly charged him, that he ſhould be adored there under name of Quirinus; and he had his temple on Mount Quirinale.

231 Next his ^o Son, &c.] Oliver's eldeſt ſon Richard was, by him before his death, declared his ſucceſſor; and, by order of privy-council, proclaimed Lord Protector, and received the compliments of congratulation and condolence, at the ſame time, from the Lord Mayor and Count of Aldermen: and addreſſes were preſented to him from all parts of the Nation, promiſing to ſtand by him with their lives and fortunes. He ſummoned a Parliament to meet at Weſtminſter, which recognized him Lord Protector: yet, notwithſtanding, Flectwood, Deſborow, and their partiſans, managed affairs ſo, that he was obliged to reſign.

245 To edify upon the Ruins, &c.] John of Leyden, whoſe name was Buckhold, was a butcher of the ſame place, but a crafty, eloquent, and ſeditious fellow, and one of thoſe called Anabaptiſts. He went and ſet up at Munſter, where, with Knipperdoling, and others of the ſame faction, they ſpread their abominable errors, and run about the ſtreets in enthuſiaſtical raptures, crying, Repent, and be baptized, pronouncing diſmal woes againſt all thoſe that would not embrace the r ^{eluctant}. About the year 1533 they broke out into an open insurrection, and seized the palace and magazines, and grew so formidable that it was very dangerous for those who were not of their persuasion to dwell in Munster; but at length he and his associates being subdued and taken, he was executed at Munster, had his flesh pulled off by two executioners with red-hot pincers for the space of an hour, and then run thro' with a sword.

351 Among these there was a * Politician, &c.] This was the famous E. of S. who was endued with a particular faculty of undermining and subverting all sorts of government.

409 And better than by * Napier's Bones, &c.] The famous Lord Napier, of Scotland, the first inventor of logarithms, contrived also a set of square pieces, with numbers on them, made generally of ivory, (which perform arithmetical and geometrical calculations,) and are commonly called Napier's Bones.

421 To match the * Saint, &c.] The great colonel John Lilbourn, whose trial is so remarkable, and well known at this time.

473 The * Trojan Mare, &c.] After the Grecians had spent ten years in the siege of Troy, without the least prospect of success, they bethought of a stratagem, and made a wooden horse capable of containing a considerable number of armed men: this they filled with the choicest of their army, and then pretended to raise the siege; upon which the credulous Trojans made a breach in the walls of the city to bring in this fatal plunder; but when it was brought in, the inclosed heroes soon appeared, and surprizing the city, the rest entered in at the breach.

520 (I mean * Margaret's Fast) &c.] That Parliament used to have publick fasts kept in St. Margaret's church, Westminster, as it is done to this present time.

• 605 To hang like Mahomet, &c.] It is reported of Mahomet the great impostor, that having built a mosque, the roof whereof was of loadstone, and ordering his corpse, when he was dead, to be put into an iron coffin, and brought into that place, the loadstone soon attracted it near the top, where it still hangs in the air.

No less fabulous is what the legend says of Ignatius Loyola, that his zeal and devotion transported him so, that at his prayers he has been seen to be raised from the ground for some considerable time together.

650 As easy as Serpents, &c.] Naturalists report, that Snakes, Serpents, &c. cast their skins every year.

655 As Barnacles turn Solan Geese, &c.] It is said that in the Islands of the Orcades, in Scotland, there are trees which bear those barnacles, which dropping off into the water, receive life, and become those birds called solan geese.

663 So be that keeps the Gate of Hell, &c.] The poets feign the dog Cerberus, that is the porter of hell, to have three heads.

685 The GIBELLINES, &c.] Two great factions in Italy, distinguished by those names, which miserably distracted and wasted it about the year 1130.

841 When three Saints Ears, &c.] Burton, Prynne, and Bastwick, three notorious ringleaders of the faction, just at the beginning of the late horrid rebellion.

894 But Fisher's Folly, &c.] Fisher's Folly was where Devonshire-Square now stands, and was a great place of consultation in those days.

907 Cut out more Work, &c.] Plato's year, or the grand revolution of the intire machine of the world, was accounted 4000 years.

1200 Thy great Croyssed General, &c.] General Palfax, who was soon laid aside after he had done some of their drudgery for them.

1242 ^b To pass for deep and learned Scholars, &c.] Two ridiculous scribblers, that were often pestering the world with nonsense.

1250 ⁱ Like Sir Pride, &c.] The one a brewer, the other a shoemaker, and both colonels in the rebels' army.

1505 The ^k beastly Rabble that came down, &c.] This is an accurate description of the mob's burning rumps upon the admission of the excluded Members, in contempt of the Rump-Parliament.

1534 Be ready list'd under ⁱ DON.] The hangman's name at that time was Don.

1550 They've ^moasted COOK already and PRIDE in.] Cook acted as solicitor-general against King Charles the First at his trial; and afterwards received his just reward for the same. Pride, a colonel in the Parliament's army.

1564 Their Founder was ⁿ a blown up Soldier.] Ignatius Loyola, the founder of the society of the Jesuits, was a gentleman of Biscay, in Spain, and bred a soldier; was at Pampelune when it was besieged by the French in the year 1521; and was so very lame in both feet, by the damage he sustained there, that he was forced to keep his bed.

1585 And from their Coptick Priests, ^o Kircherus.] Atbanasius Kircher, a Jesuit, hath wrote largely on the Egyptian mystical learning.

1587 For, as the ^p Egyptians us'd by Bees, &c.] The Egyptians represented their kings (many of whose names were Ptolemy) under the hieroglyphick of a bee, dispensing honey to the good and virtuous; and having a sting for the wicked and dissolute.

NOTES TO PART III. CANTO III.

8 Than Hags with all their ^a Imps and Teats.] Alluding to the vulgar opinion that witches have their imps, or familiar spirits, that are employed in their diabolical practices, and suck private teats they have about them.

15 As ^r Rosi-crucian Virtuoso's, &c.] The Rosicrucians were a sect that appeared in Germany in the beginning of the XVIIth age. They are also called the Enlightened, Immortal, and Invisible. They are a very enthusiastical sort of men, and hold many wild and extravagant opinions.

36 From ^s Marshal Legion's Regiment.] He used to preach, as if they might expect legions to drop down from heaven, for the propagation of the good Old Cause.

145 More plainly than the ^r Reverend Writer, &c.] A most Reverend Prelate, A. B. of Y. who sided with the disaffected party.

261 If ^u the Ancients crown'd their bravest Men, &c.] The Romans highly honoured, and nobly rewarded, those persons that were instrumental in the preservation of the lives of their citizens, either in battle or otherwise.

305 Or ^w else their Sultan Populaces, &c.] The author compares the arbitrary actings of the ungovernable mob to the Sultan or Grand Signior, who very seldom fails to sacrifice any of his chief commanders, called Bassas, if they prove unsuccessful in battle.

350 As the ancient ^x Mice attack'd the Frogs.] Homer wrote a poem of the War between the Mice and the Frogs.

383 And stout ^y Rinaldo gain'd his Bride, &c.] A story in Tasso, an Italian Poet, of a hero that gained his mistress by conquering her party.

577 ^a old Sir Set, who told the Clock, &c.] Prideaux, a justice of peace, a very pragmatic busy person in those times, and a mercenary and cruel magistrate, infamous for the following methods of getting of money among many others.

589 ^a And many a trusty Pimp and Crony, &c.] There was a gaol for puny offenders.

599 Made ^b Monsters fine, and Puppet-plays, &c.] He extorted money from those that kept shows.

715 From ^c Stiles's Pocket into Nokes's, &c.] John a Nokes, and John a Stiles, are two fictitious names made use of in stating cases of law only.

742 On ^d BONGEY for a Water Witch.] Bongey was a Franciscan, and lived towards the end of the thirteenth century, a doctor of divinity in Oxford, and a particular acquaintance of Filar Bacon's. In that ignorant age, every thing that seemed extraordinary was reputed magick; and so both Bacon and Bongey went under the imputation of studying the black-art. Bongey also, publishing a treatise of Natural Magick, confirmed some well-meaning credulous people in this opinion; but it was altogether groundless; for Bongey was chosen provincial of his order, being a person of most excellent parts and piety.

NOTES ON HUDIBRAS'S EPISTLE TO HIS LADY.

113 ^a Or who but Lovers can converse, &c.] Metaphysicians are of opinion, that angels and souls departed, being divested of all gross matter, understand each other's sentiments by intuition, and consequently maintain a sort of conversation without the organs of speech.

121 Or Heav'n itself a Sin^e resent, &c.] In regard children are capable of being inhabitants of Heaven, therefore it should not resent it as a crime to supply store of inhabitants for it.

177 ^h You would like ^h Parthians while you fly, &c.] Parthians are the inhabitants of a province in Persia: They were excellent horsemen, and very exquisite at their bows; and it is reported of them, that they generally slew more upon their retreat than they did in the engagement.

188 ^h Than Philip Nye's Thanksgiving Beard.] One of the Assembly of Divines, very remarkable for the singularity of his beard.

237 To what a Height did ^h Infant Rome, &c.] When Romulus had built Rome, he made it an asylum, or place of refuge, for all malefactors, and others obnoxious to the laws, to retire to; by which means it soon came to be very populous; but when he began to consider, that, without propagation, it would soon be destitute of inhabitants, he invented several fine shows, and invited the young Sabine women, then neighbours to them; and when they had them secure, they ravished them; from whence proceeded so numerous an offspring.

252 Till ^h Alimony or Death them parts.] Alimony is an allowance that the law gives the woman for her separate maintenance upon living from her husband. That and death are reckoned the only separations in a married state.

NOTES ON THE LADY'S ANSWER TO THE KNIGHT.

133 ^h Whose Arrows learned Poets hold, &c.] The poets feign Cupid to have two sorts of arrows; the one tipped with gold, and the other with lead. The golden always inspire and inflame love in the person he wounds with them; but, on the contrary, the leaden create the utmost aversion and hatred. With the first of these he shot Apollo, and with the other Daphne, according to Ovid.

277 While, like the mighty^m Prester John; &c.] Prester John, an absolute prince, emperor of Abyssinia or Ethiopia. One of them is reported to have had seventy kings for his vassals, and so superb and arrogant, that none durst look upon him without his permission.

285 Or.ⁿ Joan de Pucel's braver Name.] Joan of Arc, called also the Pucell, or Maid of Orleans. She was born at the town of Domremy, on the Meuse, daughter of James de Arc, and Isabella Romée; and was bred up a shepherdess in the country. At the age of eighteen or twenty she pretended to an express commission from God to go the relief of Orleans, then besieged by the English, and defended by John Comte de Dennis, and almost reduced to the last extremity. She went to the coronation of Charles the Seventh, when he was almost ruined. She knew that prince in the midst of his nobles, though meanly habited. The doctors of divinity, and members of parliament, openly declared that there was something supernatural in her conduct. She sent for a sword, which lay in the tomb of a knight, which was behind the great altar of the church of St. Katharine de Forbois, upon the blade of which the cross and flower-de-luces were engraven, which put the king in a very great surprise, in regard none besides himself knew of it. Upon this he sent her with the command of some troops, with which she relieved Orleans, and drove the English from it, defeated Talbot at the battle of Pattai, and recovered Champagne. At last she was unfortunately taken prisoner in a sally at Champagne in 1430, and tried for a witch or forceress, condemned, and burnt in Rouen market-place in May 1430.

378 Pass on ourselves a^o Salique Law.] The Salique Law is a law in France, whereby it is enacted, that no female shall inherit that crown.
